NO RESISTANCE MET BY TROOPS

Formerly Armed And Defiant Deputies Disappear As Guards Near

GOVERNOR DETHRONES HIS BITTER POLITICAL ENEMY

POINT-A-LA-HACHE, La., Oct. 9—(P)—Governor Sam Jones, in a daring stroke of martial law, dethroned his bitter political enemy, District Attorney Leander H. Perez, at the Plaquemines parish courthouse here today and set up a temporary military rule under the commander of the state guard, Brigadaer General Thomas Porter.

Jones issued a proclamation of martial law effective at 12:01 a.m. and with the use of about 600 state troopers removed Dr. Ben R. Slater from the sheriff's office and placed there his own appointee, Walter J. Blaize.

The move was carried out with such strength and precision that armed resistance to Blaize which had existed in the parish for four months was swept aside and the guard was not forced to fire a shot.

The governor's proclamation declared that martial law was invoked "to suppress insurrection and rebellion against law and order" in Plaquemines parish and to install Blaize in office and keep him from being interfered with "while lawfully performing" his duties.

The state guard convoy required approximately five hours to negotiate the 40 miles from New Orleans to this sleepy little river town by winding levee road.

It was held up twice by obstacles, first near the home of Perez at Braithwaite where a barricade of three trucks had to be moved from the road and then one mile outside of Pointe-a-la-Hache where a pile of oyster shells was fired with oil on the road.

The troops were carried in 31 army trucks, full equipped for action and with machine guns mounted. The only shots fired were some stray bullets in the accidental discharge of a machine gun at the truck barricade.

A clash with parish special deputies was narrowly averted at the Braithwaite barricade where 75 deputies were massed but the deputies retreated and scattered without giving fight.

When the convoy reached the courthouse Perez and his deputies had departed, carrying with them their sidearms and machine guns.

Practically the only officials in the building were the grand jury, which was in session, and Dr. Slater, occupying the sheriff's office.

The grand jury filed out shortly after the guard took over the premises and Dr. Slater was ousted under protest of his civil rights. Neither was molested by the guard.

Blaize, after taking office, said he would welcome the protection of the state guard.

"I will be a lot more comfortable with the military guard," Blaize said. Slater, on the way out, declared, "I don't think we will be able to resort to the civil law in this case. I think

REPUBLICANS RAP BIG TAX PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(P)—House Republicans used the administration's battered $10,500,000,000 tax program today as a springboard for a renewed attack on government spending.

"We are not going to let them strangle the public with new taxes without any effort to cut down expenses within the government," declared House Minority Leader Martin, Massachusetts.

It was the cocky Republican chieftain's first public expression on the treasury's tax proposals which received an attentive but hostile reception from both major parties on the ways and means committee this week.

"We're going to insist on more government economy," Martin said. "That seems to be a thing they're trying to overlook entirely."

Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, of the house appropriations committee, observed, however, that new taxes are inescapable as the only means of financing the government's huge war-time budget.

Secretary Morgenthau placed the administration's tax program before the ways and means committee Monday, recommending boosts in income and excise taxes to bring in most of the requested new revenue. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, promptly called it "indefensible."

The secretary contended that a cut in government spending—even should it total billions of dollars—would not alter the need for new taxes. He said the program is vital to take up the "inflationary gap" between the large national income and the limited amount of goods for which it can be spent.

CONGRESS LEERY OF COMMITMENTS

Critical Reports May Bring Changes In Dealing With Allies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(P)—The off-the-record report on the war the senate received this week from five of its members has started the ball rolling on what may be far-reaching changes in this nation's dealings with its Allies and the peoples of reconquered lands.

Even military strategy, which remains a matter for the high command, may feel the weight of legislative pressure as a result of the net critical summary of the war's conduct given their colleagues by Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, Mead, Democrat, New York, Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, and Brewster, Republican, Maine.

The effect of their serialized version of a 40,000 mile trip to the world's battlefields, delivered in two closed-door sessions, seems likely to be translated into these early results:

1. Strengthened opposition to any declaration of foreign policy that makes specific commitments in advance of a statement of post-war intentions by British and Russia.

2. Revision of lend-lease operations to prevent other countries (notably Britain) from obtaining credit for furnishing supplies which originate in the United States. Along with this is promised a check on the charge-backs made by other nations as reverse lend-lease.

3. Increased demand by congress that other countries share fully in relief and rehabilitation and that American agencies not promise post-war benefits that the United States may have difficulty delivering.

4. A developing contention that this country must maintain military bases far from this continent for its future security, as well as have military and commercial access to airports we are building everywhere.

There are other changes which many in congress would like to see made and some which already are under

Stalin Hints Triumphantly Crimea Will Be Invaded Soon

LONDON, Oct. 9—(P)—Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced tonight that his Red armies drove the last German from the Caucasus today after a great battle in which 20,000 Nazi troops were killed and 3,000 taken prisoner, and he hinted triumphantly that as a result the Crimea, Russia's "Florida," would soon be invaded.

The battle clearing the oil-rich Caucasus, about one-half of which the Germans at one time occupied, lasted for "many days," said Moscow's communique, and in addition to taking a heavy toll among German soldiers resulted in Soviet capture of great quantities of war material.

The Russians also won additional ground in their battle to broaden their three bridgeheads on the middle Dnieper, advanced to a town 25 miles southeast of Vitebsk in White Russia, and swept further toward the Latvian border in the fighting near Nevel.

Stalin in an order of the day to Colonel General Ivan Petrov said the Caucasus victory came "as the result of prolonged and bitter fighting" which "completed the destruction of the Taman forces of the enemy and completely cleared the Taman peninsula of enemy invaders."

Ordering an extended salute of 20 artillery salvos by Moscow guns to mark this milestone in Russian success, Stalin hinted in these words that the Crimea, just a few miles across the Kerch strait from the now-cleared Taman peninsula, would soon feel the weight of Russian assault:

"Thus has been finally liquidated the German Kuban stronghold which protected the Crimea for them and preserved for them the possibility of further attack against the Kuban," he said.

CHINESE REPUBLIC IS 32 YEARS OLD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(P)—The Chinese republic is 32 years old tomorrow and congress seems ready to help celebrate the anniversary—although a little belatedly—by brushing off the welcome mat to greet 105 Chinese immigrants yearly.

Known as "double ten" (because it falls on the tenth day of the tenth month), the date is the anniversary of the day when Sun Yat-sen began the revolution which overthrew the ancient Manchu dynasty and established the Chinese republic.

House leaders, remembering their cheers earlier this year when Madame Chiang Kai-Shek pleaded to them that China's cause is ours, say they are eager to honor the mile-stone by knocking down the 61-year-old bars against Chinese immigration. This would permit 105 Chinese to enter this country yearly under immigration quotas and make Chinese eligible for citizenship.

A bill to this end is on the house calendar and may come up next week after the house votes on the pending soldiers' dependency bill. If passed, it still must win senate approval to become effective.

ALLIED AIRMEN RAID JAPANESE

Australians Fan Out To Consolidate Positions In Ramu Valley

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Oct. 10—(P)—Allied airmen had the better of an exchange of moderately heavy blows in the Southwest Pacific during the past 48 hours while aground Australian troops fanned out in the Ramu valley of New Guinea to consolidate newly gained positions on a march toward Madang.

Admiral William F. Halsey's south Pacific command reported no additional Japanese attempts to withdraw from the central Solomons since an enemy navy task force was defeated by American warships the night of October 6 off Vella Lavella while bound for evacuation of troops from that island.

Neither was there any report of expected American landings on Kolombangara but south Pacific reports indicated some survivors of the repeatedly bombed enemy troops there had escaped by small craft during the past fortnight.

(A Japanese imperial headquarters communique said evacuation of both Kolombangara and Vella Lavella has been completed.)

Belated reports from the south Pacific described a heavy raid a few hours prior to the navy battle by American Liberators and Lightnings on the Japanese airdrome of Kahili on Bougainville. The Liberators went in low to bomb gun positions and grounded aircraft at night. The enemy

AMERICANS MAKE MIGHTY AIR RAID

91 ENEMY AIRCRAFT SHOT DOWN BY HEAVY BOMBERS

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 10—(P)—A mighty force of American Flying Fortresses and Liberators, in perhaps their biggest raid of the war, made what was officially described early today as their deepest penetration into Germany yesterday to blast remote Nazi industrial targets in Pomerania, East Prussia and Poland, and shoot down 91 enemy fighters.

Declaring that "good bombing results were reported," the United States army communique announced the record operation was carried out with a loss of 29 United States bombers. "Preliminary reports showed 91 enemy fighters were destroyed," the communique said.

The unescorted bombers fought many aerial combats with the enemy. Thunderbolts, which provided withdrawal support, were unopposed.

Targets of the American bombers were the fugitive German fleet's base at the former Polish city of Gdynia, the submarine yards at the former free city of Danzig, a large Focke-Wulf components factory an Anklam in Pomerania and a giant Focke-Wulf factory in the East Prussia city of Marienburg, 30 miles southeast of Danzig.

The Deutschlandsender, main radio station in the Berlin area, fell silent last night along with transmitters in Breslau, Germany; Kalundborg, Denmark; and Bratislava, Slovakia, indicating that the R. A. F. night shift was keeping up the rolling attack now going into its 12th day.

In their spectacular penetration American bombers yesterday dropped their loads approximately 450 miles from the active front line in Russia, offering direct support to the Soviet army on the eastern front, and completing the Allied aerial vise closing on Germany.

The attack on the plant at Marienburg, which has been assembling 50 per cent of Germany's fighter planes, caught the German air force completely by surprise. The factory had been moved to that city after being bombed out of Bremen.

Indicative of the aerial battles that raged over the lower arm of the Baltic sea, a Stockholm communique, issued before official details of the raids were announced, said three American Flying Fortresses had made a forced landing in neutral Sweden after raiding northeastern Germany. All crew members were reported safe. Two German fighter planes also were forced down in Sweden, Stockholm said.

Danzig is approximately 800 miles from London and the former Polish port of Gdynia is 12 miles northwest of Danzig. Anklam is 90 miles north of Berlin. The attack refuted the Germans' claim that their inner industrial empire is safe from aerial attacks.

The Russians in the past have frequently found it advantageous to bomb East Prussia and Pomerania in support of their gigantic land action.

BIDDLE IS PLEASED WITH A. P. RULING

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 9—(P)—Attorney General Francis Biddle termed tonight as "satisfactory to the government" the decision of a three-judge federal court in the government's suit against the Associated Press. Although reserving the "right to another opinion" pending any developments.

Speaking before the West Virginia Bar Association at its annual dinner, the attorney general made a brief review of the Associated Press case as part of his address.

The court on October 6 in New York upheld the right of the Associated Press to pass upon admission of applicants but directed that by-laws be changed to prevent a member in the same field (morning, evening or afternoon) from presenting any bar to election in the stated field.

In his review, the attorney general mentioned to the West Virginia attorneys that for more than a year the government had sought to "open up" the by-laws of the organization. He said action by the membership last spring resulted in bringing about a change for a majority of members to elect an applicant but asserted that actually the by-laws were "tightened" by a provision calling for payment of certain sums by an applicant to the established member or members.

PEOPLE HAVE BIG DAY ON TELEPHONE

POINTE-A-LA-HACHE, La., Oct. 9.—(P)—The hard-bitten, sun-darkened citizens of this district had a field day on their rural telephone line here today as Governor Sam Jones' state guard moved into this river village to install a new sheriff by force.

Whole families gathered around their antiquated u-grind-it phones, cranking the handles which serve as bell signals to the operators, whistling into the mouthpieces, singing French fishermen's songs, anything to keep the news of Jones' victory from flowing into New Orleans over the wires.

One woman interrupted a news bulletin with this succinct statement:

"I tal you fo sho it is a shame on the governor. His trucks (army trucks) scare my po dog so his tail stan' out so straight you can play the piano on it."

Said another:

"It is expensive, no? Jones needs five hunnert state malicious to keep a sheriff in office."

Meantime, the u-grind-it code of censorship was born. The natives cranked their bell gadgets vigorously when newsmen mentioned to editors the smooth operation of comparatively green state guard troops who installed Jones' appointee Walter J. Blaize as sheriff here today in the bloodless battle of the parish courthouse.

Here in Pointe-a-la-Hache the big general store was closed by its owners. Also closed and shuttered were the barber shop and two saloons which with the store comprise the business district.

Behind the two-toned brick courthouse in the clean little brick jail several imprisoned district deputies joked wanly about being "locked up in our own cottage." One of them had said Thursday that the state troops would have to "blow us off the map of Louisiana" to put Blaize in office.

Another, more chipper than the rest, said:

"They didn't take my badge away, see? It is quite pretty; I bought it myself."

Inside the courthous Blaize stood, apparently disconsolate, staring at the gutted files in his new office. The departing faction had ransacked the files and records.

"I guess I can file things in my pocket for a while," Blaize said.

One of Slaters' ousted deputies said he thought Blaize would need no permanent files.

"I give Blaize two weeks in office," he said. "Then he will have to call the state guard again."

U. S. WILL QUIT BUTTER MARKET

Decides To Leave Entire Supply To Civilians Until March

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(P)—Military and other government purchasing agencies have arranged to get out and stay out of the butter market until next March to permit the entire production to move into civilian consumption channels.

This action, said war food administration officials who disclosed it today, should help relieve shortages, which have developed in some areas, particularly those far distant from major producing areas, by making from ten producing areas, by making from 10 to 30 per cent more butter available for civilians than the average consumed by them during the past seven months.

They make no prediction, however, as to possible changes in the ration point value of butter, which now is 16 points a pound compared with eight points last summer.

The notice of the government decision to remain out of the market until production begins to increase next spring has been sent to congressmen who have inquired about recent butter shortages and the sharp advance in the ration value.

Food officials say the government has already bought and stored sufficient butter to meet essential military, lend-lease, and other non-civilian requirements until next March. Stocks now held by the government total about 200,000,000 pounds, accumulated during the past seven months under an order requiring manufacturers to set aside specified percentages of their output for the government. That order was suspended this month.

WFA officials say the 16-point ration value which may be unchanged at least during the winter, was set principally to cut down consumption in areas closest to production, where, due to the fact that meat points may be used for butter, consumption was running far ahead of the per capita supply available.

ORLEANS MAN SHOT BY ARMED BANDIT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9—(P)—George A. Mansion, 59, drug store manager, was wounded today by an armed bandit in a daylight drug store holdup. Police said the gunman, a negro, apparently stumbled while backing out of the store with a cash box taken from Mansion and the gun was discharged.

Mansion, police said, was struck in the stomach and was believed to be in a serious condition.

NAZIS REPORTED IN NEW RETREAT

Cairo Radio Says Germans Falling Back To Garigliano River

MOST OF CLARK'S TROOPS NOT YET ACROSS STREAM

By Edward Kennedy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 9—(P)—American Fifty army patrols have smashed across the Volturno river, where the Nazis have chosen to fight the first round in the battle for Rome, and clashed in hit-and-run engagements with German troops reinforced by an entire new division, headquarters announced today.

(The Cairo radio said in a broadcast recorded in London late Saturday that Allied forces had crossed the Volturno "on a broad front." The Germans were retreating to positions along the Garigliano river, some 15 to 20 miles north of the Volturno and 80 to 85 miles from Rome, the broadcast added.)

Caserta, strategic rail and highway center 16 miles north of Naples, fell to the Fifth army as the last enemy resistance on the south side of the Volturno and Calore rivers was wiped out and front dispatches said the Allies now were in control of the Volturno's south bank along a front at least 30 miles in length.

The Fifth army patrols crossed the rain-swollen stream under the cover of darkness, took a number of smacks at the enemy and encountered considerable return fire, some of it from artillery.

Their task is to probe German positions along the north bank of the river and feel out the enemy's fighting mettle there.

Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent with the Fifth army, said in a dispatch from the front that Allied troops had reached the Volturno "along its whole length from the mountains to the sea"—a distance of approximately 30 airline miles.

A communique from allied headquarters said the American Fifth army in the west and the British Eighth army in the east both advanced two to three miles in spite of heavy rains which caused floods in some areas.

Although the bad weather continued, bomber and fighter squadrons of the northwest African air forces kept up their hammering of enemy supply lines on both sides of the Italian mainland and teamed with Middle East air units to smash at Nazi air fields in Greece, Crete and the Dodecanese.

Morin's front line dispatch, dated today, said the Volturno crossing by American and British patrols was made west of Benevento in an area where American troops, their advance slowed but not halted by the rains, were making steady progress and were threatening the German left flank. "Heavy artillery bombardment is continuing and the Germans are subjected to relentless pressure," he said.

While Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's forces were in complete control of the south bank of the Volturno, an officer at headquarters emphasized that reports from the battle area indicated that no major body of the Fifth army had yet crossed the river.

(NBC correspondent Merill Mueller reported from the Fifth army front that "although only our patrols have so far crossed the river, the signal for the main force to fight its way to the other bank is expected momentarily.")

The partols which fought their way across the stream ran into brisk small arms and light artillery fire.

"There is every indication the Germans intend to try their best to hold there," a headquarters spokesman declared.

FORMER ARMY MEN FOES IN ELECTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(P)—A former corporal and a retired lieutenant general have squared off against each other in New York state's wartime election with the leaders of both major parties serving as the big guns behind the lines of their respective candidates.

Behind William N. Haskell, the 65-year-old general and Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, is President Roosevelt. Backing Joe R. Hanley, 67-year-old former corporal and Republican candidate, are Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee, and Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Mr. Roosevelt announced he would vote for Haskell on November 2. Dewey and Willkie will not only vote for Hanley, they will campaign for him.

The outcome of the election necessitated by the death of Lieutenant Governor Thomas W. Wallace, may affect Dewey's availability as a potential Republican presidential candidate in '44. Should Haskell win, he would automatically succeed to the governorship in the event that Dewey ran for the presidency and was elected.

Jones Declares Martial Law And Installs Appointed Sheriff In Plaquemines Parish

GOVERNOR DETHRONES HIS BITTER POLITICAL ENEMY

POINT-A-LA-HACHE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Governor Sam Jones, in a daring stroke of martial law, dethroned his bitter political enemy, District Attorney Leander H. Perez, at the Plaquemines parish courthouse here today and set up a temporary military rule under the commander of the state guard, Brigadaer General Thomas Porter.

Jones issued a proclamation of martial law effective at 12:01 a.m. and with the use of about 600 state troopers removed Dr. Ben R. Slater from the sheriff's office and placed there his own appointee, Walter J. Blaize.

The move was carried out with such strength and precision that armed resistance to Blaize which had existed in the parish for four months was swept aside and the guard was not forced to fire a shot.

The governor's proclamation declared that martial law was invoked "to suppress insurrection and rebellion against law and order" in Plaquemines parish and to install Blaize in office and keep him from being interfered wth "while lawfully performing" his duties.

The state guard convoy required approximately five hours to negotiate the 40 miles from New Orleans to this sleepy little river town by winding levee road.

It was held up twice by obstacles, first near the home of Perez at Braithwaite where a barricade of three trucks had to be moved from the road and then one mile outside of Pointe-a-la-Hache where a pile of oyster shells was fired with oil on the road.

The troops were carried in 31 army trucks, full equipped for action and with machine guns mounted. The only shots fired were some stray bullets in the accidental discharge of a machine gun as the truck barricade.

A clash with parish special deputies was narrowly averted at the Braithwaite barricade where 75 deputies were massed but the deputies retreated and scattered without giving fight.

When the convoy reached the courthouse Perez and his deputies had departed, carrying with them their sidearms and machine guns.

Practically the only officials in the building were the grand jury, which was in session, and Dr. Slater, occupying the sheriff's office.

The grand jury filed out shortly after the guard took over the premises and Dr. Slater was ousted under protest of his civil rights. Neither was molested by the guard.

Blaize, after taking office, said he would welcome the protection of the state guard.

"I will be a lot more comfortable with the military guard," Blaize said. Slater, on the way out, declared, "I don't think we will be able to resort to the civil law in this case. I think

REPUBLICANS RAP BIG TAX PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—House Republicans used the administration's battered $10,500,000,000 tax program today as a springboard for a renewed attack on government spending.

"We are not going to let them strangle the public with new taxes without any effort to cut down expenses within the government," declared House Minority Leader Martin, Massachusetts.

It was the cocky Republican chieftain's first public expression on the treasury's tax proposals which received an attentive but hostile reception from both major parties on the ways and means committee this week.

"We're going to insist on more government economy," Martin said. "That seems to be a thing they're trying to overlook entirely."

Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, of the house appropriations committee, observed, however, that new taxes are inescapable as the only means of financing the government's huge war-time budget.

Secretary Morgenthau placed the administration's tax program before the ways and means committee Monday, recommending boosts in income and excise taxes to bring in most of the requested new revenue. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, promptly called it "indefensible."

The secretary contended that a cut in government spending—even should it total billions of dollars—would not alter the need for new taxes. He said the program is vital to take up the "inflationary gap" between the large national income and the limited amount of goods for which it can be spent.

Last Nazis Driven From Caucasus

Stalin Hints Triumphantly Crimea Will Be Invaded Soon

LONDON, Oct. 9. — (AP) — Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced tonight that his Red armies drove the last German from the Caucasus today after a great battle in which 20,000 Nazi troops were killed and 3,000 taken prisoner, and he hinted triumphantly that as a result the Crimea, Russia's "Florida," would soon be invaded.

The battle clearing the oil-rich Caucasus, about one-half of which the Germans at one time occupied, lasted for "many days," said Moscow's communique, and in addition to taking a heavy toll among German soldiers resulted in Soviet capture of great quantities of war material.

The Russians also won additional ground in their battle to broaden their three bridgeheads on the middle Dnieper, advanced to a town 25 miles southeast of Vitebsk in White Russia, and swept further toward the Latvian border in the fighting near Nevel.

Stalin in an order of the day to Colonel General Ivan Petrov said the Caucasus victory came "as the result of prolonged and bitter fighting" which "completed the destruction of the Taman forces of the enemy and completely cleared the Taman peninsula of enemy invaders."

Ordering an extended salute of 20 artillery salvos by Moscow guns to mark this milestone in Russian success, Stalin hinted in these words that the Crimea, just a few miles across the Kerch strait from the now-cleared Taman peninsula, would soon feel the weight of Russian assault:

"Thus has been finally liquidated the German Kuban stronghold which protected the Crimea for them and preserved for them the possibility of further attack against the Kuban," he said.

CHINESE REPUBLIC IS 32 YEARS OLD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Chinese republic is 32 years old tomorrow and congress seems ready to help celebrate the anniversary—although a little belatedly—by brushing off the welcome mat to greet 105 Chinese immigrants yearly.

Known as "double ten" (because it falls on the tenth day of the tenth month), the date is the anniversary of the day when Sun Yat-sen began the revolution which overthrew the ancient Manchu dynasty and established the Chinese republic.

House leaders, remembering their cheers earlier this year when Madame Chiang Kai-Shek pleaded to them that China's cause is ours, say they are eager to honor the mile-stone by knocking down the 61-year-old bars against Chinese immigration. This would permit 105 Chinese to enter this country yearly under immigration quotas and make Chinese eligible for citizenship.

A bill to this end is on the house calendar and may come up next week after the house votes on the pending soldiers' dependency bill. If passed it still must win senate approval to become effective.

CONGRESS LEERY OF COMMITMENTS

Critical Reports May Bring Changes In Dealing With Allies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The off-the-record report on the war the senate received this week from five of its members has started the ball rolling on what may be far-reaching changes in this nation's dealings with its Allies and the peoples of reconquered lands.

Even military strategy, which remains a matter for the high command, may feel the weight of legislative pressure as a result of the net critical summary of the war's conduct given their colleagues by Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, Mead, Democrat, New York, Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, and Brewster, Republican, Maine.

The effect of their serialized version of a 40,000 mile trip to the world's battlefields, delivered in two closed-door sessions, seems likely to be translated into these early results:

1. Strengthened opposition to any declaration of foreign policy that makes specific commitments in advance of a statement of post-war intentions by British and Russia.

2. Revision of lend-lease operations to prevent other countries (notably Britain) from obtaining credit for furnishing supplies which originate in the United States. Along with this is promised a check on the charge-backs made by other nations as reverse lend-lease.

3. Increased demand by congress that other countries share fully in relief and rehabilitation and that American agencies not promise post-war benefits that the United States may have difficulty delivering.

4. A developing contention that this country must maintain military bases far from this continent for its future security, as well as have military and commercial access to airports we are building everywhere.

There are other changes which many in congress would like to see made and some which already are under

ALLIED AIRMEN RAID JAPANESE

Australians Fan Out To Consolidate Positions In Ramu Valley

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Allied airmen had the better of an exchange of moderately heavy blows in the Southwest Pacific during the past 48 hours while aground Australian troops fanned out in the Ramu valley of New Guinea to consolidate newly gained positions on a march toward Madang.

Admiral William F. Halsey's south Pacific command reported no additional Japanese attempts to withdraw from the central Solomons since an enemy navy task force was defeated by American warships the night of October 6 off Vella Lavella while bound for evacuation of troops from that island.

Neither was there any report of expected American landings on Kolombangara but south Pacific reports indicated some survivors of the repeatedly bombed enemy troops there had escaped by small craft during the past fortnight.

(A Japanese imperial headquarters communique said evacuation of both Kolombangara and Vella Lavella has been completed.)

Belated reports from the south Pacific described a heavy raid a few hours prior to the navy battle by American Liberators and Lightnings on the Japanese airdrome of Kahlili on Bougainville. The Liberators went in low to bomb gun positions and grounded aircraft at night. The enemy

JOHN W. MYERS DIES SUDDENLY

John W. Myers, 60, superintendent of streets and parks for the city of Monroe, suffered a sudden heart attack at the city hall here yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock and was taken to St. Francis sanitarium where he died shortly afterward.

Mr. Myers, well known in this area, was born in Richland parish but had lived here for the past 30 years and had been connected with the city streets and parks department for many years. He resided at 603 Stubbs avenue.

He is survived by his wife; a son, John Myers, Jr., a sergeant in the U. S. army; five daughters, Mrs. G. A. Boyd, Mrs. R. E. McConnell and Mrs. Morgan Landry, all of Monroe, Mrs. C. M. Jordan of Shreveport and Miss Kathleen Myers of Monroe; and a brother, Robert Myers of Rayville.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, but services will be held at the First Methodist church with Rev. A. M. Serex officiating. Burial, under the direction of Peters Funeral home, will be in Riverview Burial park.

AMERICANS MAKE MIGHTY AIR RAID

91 ENEMY AIRCRAFT SHOT DOWN BY HEAVY BOMBERS

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A mighty force of American Flying Fortresses and Liberators, in perhaps their biggest raid of the war, made what was officially described early today as their deepest penetration into Germany yesterday to blast remote Nazi industrial targets in Pomerania, East Prussia and Poland, and shoot down 91 enemy fighters.

Declaring that "good bombing results were reported," the United States army communique announced the record operation was carried out with a loss of 29 United States bombers. "Preliminary reports showed 91 enemy fighters were destroyed," the communique said.

The unescorted bombers fought many aerial combats with the enemy. Thunderbolts, which provided withdrawal support, were unopposed.

Targets of the American bombers were the fugitive German fleet's base at the former Polish city of Gdynia, the submarine yards at the former free city of Danzig, a large Focke-Wulf components factory an Anklam in Pomerania and a giant Focke-Wulf factory in the East Prussia city of Marienburg, 30 miles southeast of Danzig.

The Deutschlandsender, main radio station in the Berlin area, fell silent last night along with transmitters in Breslau, Germany; Kalundborg, Denmark; and Bratislava, Slovakia, indicating that the R. A. F. night shift was keeping up the rolling attack now going into its 12th day.

In their spectacular penetration American bombers yesterday dropped their loads approximately 450 miles from the active front line in Russia, offering direct support to the Soviet army on the eastern front, and completing the Allied aerial vise closing on Germany.

The attack on the plant at Marienburg, which has been assembling 50 per cent of Germany's fighter planes, caught the German air force completely by surprise. The factory had been moved to that city after being bombed out of Bremen.

Indicative of the aerial battles that raged over the lower arm of the Baltic sea, a Stockholm communique, issued before official details of the raids were announced, said three American Flying Fortresses had made a forced landing in neutral Sweden after raiding northeastern Germany. All crew members were reported safe. Two German fighter planes also were forced down in Sweden, Stockholm said.

Danzig is approximately 800 miles from London and the former Polish port of Gdynia is 12 miles northwest of Danzig. Anklam is 90 miles north of Berlin. The attack refuted the Germans' claim that their inner industrial empire is safe from aerial attacks.

The Russians in the past have frequently found it advantageous to bomb East Prussia and Pomerania in support of their gigantic land action.

BIDDLE IS PLEASED WITH A. P. RULING

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Attorney General Francis Biddle termed tonight as "satisfactory to the government" the decision of a three-judge federal court in the government's suit against the Associated Press. Although reserving the "right to another opinion" pending any developments.

Speaking before the West Virginia Bar Association at its annual dinner, the attorney general made a brief review of the Associated Press case as part of his address.

The court on October 6 in New York upheld the right of the Associated Press to pass upon admission of applicants but directed that by-laws be changed to prevent a member in the same field (morning, evening or afternoon) from presenting any bar to election in the stated field.

In his review, the attorney general mentioned to the West Virginia attorneys that for more than a year the government had sought to "open up" the by-laws of the organization. He said action by the membership last spring resulted in bringing about a change for a majority of members to elect an applicant but asserted that actually the by-laws were "tightened" by a provision calling for payment of certain sums by an applicant to the established member or members.

PEOPLE HAVE BIG DAY ON TELEPHONE

POINTE-A-LA-HACHE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The hard-bitten, sun-darkened citizens of this district had a field day on their rural telephone line here today as Governor Sam Jones' state guard moved into this river village to install a new sheriff by force.

Whole families gathered around their antiquated u-grind-it phones, cranking the handles which serve as bell signals to the operators, whistling into the mouthpieces, singing French fishermen's songs, anything to keep the news of Jones' victory from flowing into New Orleans over the wires.

One woman interrupted a news bulletin with this succinct statement:

"I tal you fo sho it is a shame on the governor. His trucks (army trucks) scare my po dog so his tail stan' out so straight you can play the piano on it."

Said another:

"It is expensive, no? Jonez needs five hunnert state malicious to keep a sheriff in office."

Meantime, the u-grind-it code of censorship was born. The natives cranked their bell gadgets vigorously when newsmen mentioned to editors the smooth operation of comparatively green state guard troops who installed Jones' appointee Walter J. Blaize as sheriff here today in the bloodless battle of the parish courthouse.

Here in Pointe-a-la-Hache the big general store was closed by its owners. Also closed and shuttered were the barber shop and two saloons which with the store comprise the business district.

Behind the two-toned brick courthouse in the clean little brick jail several imprisoned district deputies joked wanly about being "locked up in our own cottage." One of them had said Thursday that the state troops would have to "blow us off the map of Louisiana" to put Blaize in office.

Another, more chipper than the rest, said:

"They didn't take my badge away, see? It is quite pretty; I bought it myself."

Inside the courthous Blaize stood, apparently disconsolate, staring at the gutted files in his new office. The departing faction had ransacked the files and records.

"I guess I can file things in my pocket for a while," Blaize said.

One of Slaters' ousted deputies said he thought Blaize would need no permanent files.

"I give Blaize two weeks in office," he said. "Then he will have to call the state guard again."

U. S. WILL QUIT BUTTER MARKET

Decides To Leave Entire Supply To Civilians Until March

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Military and other government purchasing agencies have arranged to get out and stay out of the butter market until next March to permit the entire production to move into civilian consumption channels.

This action, said war food administration officials who disclosed it today, should help relieve shortages which have developed in some areas, particularly those far distant from major producing areas, by making from ten producing areas, by making from 10 to 30 per cent more butter available for civilians than the average consumed by them during the past seven months.

They make no prediction, however, as to possible changes in the ration point value of butter, which now is 16 points a pound compared with eight points last summer.

The notice of the government decision to remain out of the market until production begins to increase next spring has been sent to congressmen who have inquired about recent butter shortages and the sharp advance in the ration value.

Food officials say the government has already bought and stored sufficient butter to meet essential military, lend-lease, and other non-civilian requirements until next March. Stocks now held by the government total about 200,000,000 pounds, accumulated during the past seven months under an order requiring manufacturers to set aside specified percentages of their output for the government. That order was suspended this month.

WFA officials say the 16-point ration value which may be unchanged at least during the winter, was set principally to cut down consumption in areas closest to production, where, due to the fact that meat points may be used for butter, consumption was running far ahead of the per capita supply available.

ORLEANS MAN SHOT BY ARMED BANDIT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—George A. Mansion, 59, drug store manager, was wounded today by an armed bandit in a daylight drug store holdup. Police said the gunman, a negro, apparently stumbled while backing out of the store with a cash box taken from Mansion and the gun was discharged.

Mansion, police said, was struck in the stomach and was believed to be in a serious condition.

NAZIS REPORTED IN NEW RETREAT

MOST OF CLARK'S TROOPS NOT YET ACROSS STREAM

By Edward Kennedy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 9.—(AP)—American Fifty army patrols have smashed across the Volturno river, where the Nazis have chosen to fight the first round in the battle for Rome, and clashed in hit-and-run engagements with German troops reinforced by an entire new division, headquarters announced today.

(The Cairo radio said in a broadcast recorded in London late Saturday that Allied forces had crossed the Volturno "on a broad front." The Germans were retreating to positions along the Garigliano river, some 15 to 20 miles north of the Volturno and 80 to 85 miles from Rome, the broadcast added.)

Caserta, strategic rail and highway center 16 miles north of Naples, fell to the Fifth army as the last enemy resistance on the south side of the Volturno and Calore rivers was wiped out and front dispatches said the Allies now were in control of the Volturno's south bank along a front at least 30 miles in length.

The Fifth army patrols crossed the rain-swollen stream under the cover of darkness, took a number of smacks at the enemy and encountered considerable return fire, some of it from artillery.

Their task is to probe German positions along the north bank of the river and feel out the enemy's fighting mettle there.

Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent with the Fifth army, said in a dispatch from the front that Allied troops had reached the Volturno "along its whole length from the mountains to the sea"—a distance of approximately 30 airline miles.

A communique from allied headquarters said the American Fifth army in the west and the British Eighth army in the east both advanced two to three miles in spite of heavy rains which caused floods in some areas.

Although the bad weather continued, bomber and fighter squadrons of the northwest African air forces kept up their hammering of enemy supply lines on both sides of the Italian mainland and teamed with Middle East air units to smash at Nazi air fields in Greece, Crete and the Dodecanese.

Morin's front line dispatch, dated today, said the Volturno crossing by American and British patrols was made west of Benevento in an area where American troops, their advance slowed but not halted by the rains, were making steady progress and were threatening the German left flank. "Heavy artillery bombardment is continuing and the Germans are subjected to relentless pressure," he said.

While Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's forces were in complete control of the south bank of the Volturno, an officer at headquarters emphasized that reports from the battle area indicated that no major body of the Fifth army had yet crossed the river.

(NBC correspondent Merill Mueller reported from the Fifth army front that "although only our patrols have so far crossed the river, the signal for the main force to fight its way to the other bank is expected momentarily.")

The partols which fought their way across the stream ran into brisk small arms and light artillery fire.

"There is every indication the Germans intend to try their best to hold there," a headquarters spokesman declared.

FORMER ARMY MEN FOES IN ELECTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A former corporal and a retired lieutenant general have squared off against each other in New York state's wartime election with the leaders of both major parties serving as the big guns behind the lines of their respective candidates.

Behind William N. Haskell, the 65-year-old general and Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, is President Roosevelt. Backing Joe R. Hanley, 67-year-old former corporal and Republican candidate, are Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee, and Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Mr. Roosevelt announced he would vote for Haskell on November 2. Dewey and Willkie will not only vote for Hanley, they will campaign for him.

The outcome of the election necessitated by the death of Lieutenant Governor Thomas W. Wallace, may affect Dewey's availability as a potential Republican presidential candidate in '44. Should Haskell win, he would automatically succeed to the governorship in the event that Dewey ran for the presidency and was elected.

ROTARIANS HEAR TWO ADDRESSES

Professor Stephenson, Capt. Fred Marx, Are Dinner Guests

The Monroe Rotary club had two interesting speakers at the luncheon held in Hotel Virginia the past week. The program was in charge of Rotarian Bill Rodriguez, chairman of the international service committee, who presented W. H. Stephenson, professor of arts and sciences at Louisiana State university. Captain Fred Marx, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Marx, who is on a short leave from North African service, also gave a graphic description of life in the area.

Mr. Stephenson briefly discussed wars in general and recalled one war that found everyone who had participated in it earlier dead when peace actually was returned. He alluded to the so-called 100 years' war.

He compared prices in the Civil war with those today. In the former conflict, all commodities were priced unreasonably high. Even coffee was $14 a pound and other commodities in like proportion. Viewed in this light, he said we today have little reason to complain of "high prices." Those high prices in the Civil war were due to overproduction of Confederate money, of inflation, which we must not permit to occur again, he said.

He stated that now the colleges and universities are engaged in war or preparing for war but when peace comes he predicted they will resume their peace-time programs.

Captain Marx told of the climate and people in the Mediterranean area, carefully avoiding any military references that might be taboo. In the desert of Africa he said the cold in winter was so intense that one would sleep under five blankets. That in summer, the thermometer went far past 100 degrees in the "shade" and there was no "shade."

Sicily he described as a land of friendly people and with an abundance of tropical fruits and vegetables.

Messina, once a large and beautiful city, he said was badly bombed. When American troops landed on the "toe" of Italy, they found that this was an extremely poor country, agriculturally. Food was far scarcer than in Sicily.

He said it took five or six weeks to go over the Mediterranean by boat but that he flew back in one week.

Lieutenant Colonel Prentiss Gray, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Gray, was a guest. Also Harry Frazer, Jr., who will leave soon for armed service.

'SOONERS' ESCAPING FATE COUNT DAYS AS THEY WAIT

E. S. Eby, Jr., Of Monroe One To Receive Letter Of Commendation

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Oct. 9.—(Special)—A story of patience and hope has been unfolding here in the Pacific for many months. It is a story of the Lost Legion of the marine corps—the "Sooners." Their ship was the U. S. S. Oklahoma; now they wait and hope for a new assignment—another ship.

Although officially disbanded last October, the "Sooners," a group of twenty-seven leathernecks who escaped the disaster which struck their vessel December 7, 1941, work and live together, counting the days until once more they'll man battle stations aboard ship.

Following Pearl Harbor the surviving "Sooners" did a short stretch of duty aboard another battlewagon, then on a cruiser in the south Pacific. On their return they were dispatched to various parts of this island to build defenses.

There they raised their first flag; watched the depot grow around them from a rice paddy to a sprawling, busy post; bunked and messed in an old warehouse until barracks were constructed for them.

Meanwhile, these stranded leathernecks continue to perform their duties. Two of the deatchment, Platoon Sergeant Walter H. Gilbert, Jr., of Carbon, Tex., and Corporal Eugene S. Eby, Jr., of 105 Texas avenue, Monroe, La., recently were awarded letters of commendation when their quick-thinking saved thousands of dollars worth of supplies jeopardized by a flooded storage area.

In their spare time, the "Sooners" have formed athletic teams, landscaped their post, paved its street and planted fine victory gardens under the direction of corporal Armando S. Giambruno of Vicksburg, Miss.

And still they go on hoping and waiting for a ship.

There's a story of bravery to be told about each. Five received citations for outstanding heroism when their ship was lost and two were awarded the navy cross.

Private First Class James D. Black, of Smoke Shop, Rotan, N. M., can tell you, if he will, how he leaped from the clover leaf fifty feet above the main deck when the ship was listing and how he luckily hit the water after striking his heels on the blister ledge. Later he manned an anti-aircraft gun and was one of a crew responsible for a Jap plane downed.

Or Private First Class Williard L. Brasher of Tulsa, Okla., who stood on the blister ledge of another ship, after escaping himself, and pulled sailors to safety amid the strafing of enemy planes.

Corporal Arthur J. Druktenis, of 4517 South Fairfield, Chicago, Ill., has been awarded the purple heart award, having suffered a severe shoulder injury when the ship went down. He was knocked unconscious, rescued and taken to a hospital which was bombed. Accepting only emergency treatment, he immediately returned to duty, and manned a machine gun untill ordered to a hospital.

CALLS CAPITOL WORLD'S FINEST

Private L. R. Cantrell, with replacement depot 1, Fort Meade, Md., son of Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Cantrell, of Monroe, wrote his parents such an interesting letter of what he saw in Washington, D. C., that it is given herewith in part:

"I arrived in Washington about 10 a.m. and took a first good look at the capitol. It was visible from the station where I alighted. When I drew near to it my heart thumped for it was the biggest, most elaborate building I had ever seen. I climbed the many steps to the top with my head thrown back to get a good look at the great dome. Within a guided tour of the building was forming, which I joined. Looking up into the inside of the dome I saw a painting called, 'The Spirit of Washington' which is painted on a huge copper bowl that makes up the interior of the dome. It shows George Washington with uplifted hand, surrounded by angels, clouds, etc. Below this painting is a band of plaster around the interior of the dome, on which is painted a cycle of time beginning with the cave man and on up to about the time of World War 1.

"The artist who started painting "The Cycle of Time" died before it was finished. No one in all the world has been found able to finish the painting because it is believed to be a lost art. A Russian attempted to finish it but could not do it.

"We toured the various famous rooms; saw the two wings where the senate and house meet; visited the statuary hall where are portrayed Will Rogers, Theodore Roosevelt, Huey Long and others."

He then told of the marvelous view to be had from the top of Washington monument and closed his letter with a laudation of the most beautiful city in the world.

SEES SUCCESSFUL LIVESTOCK SHOW

4-H Club Boys From 17 Parishes Will Have Exhibits

Probably the largest and most successful northeast Louisiana junior livestock show ever produced is predicted for this year by Sam Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Fattened hogs and feeder pigs will be exhibited by 4-H club boys from 17 northeast Louisiana parishes Thursday and Friday of this week and sold on the second day of the auction.

Selling of the exhibited hogs and pigs is an innovation this year, according to Mr. Smith who stated that buyers from commercial and packing houses of Louisiana as well as adjoining states would be on hand Friday to enliven the bidding.

Another innovation the chamber president observed, is that these hogs will be the first to be fed out in 4-H club feed loads and marketed in the fall. Heretofore, he said, practice of farmers has been to allow pigs from spring litters to more or less "root hog or die." They have not finished them for fall markets and practically all hogs fed out for markets have come from fall litters marketed in the spring.

One of the main purposes of the junior livestock show is to demonstrate to northeast Louisiana farmers the economic feasibility of feeding spring litter pigs for fall markets, stated Mr. Smith. He added further that indications pointed to this objective being accomplished, judging from the interest in the show and the number of entries which have been made in spite of the summer drouth and the shortage of commercial hog feeds.

Auction of the pigs takes place at 2 o'clock Friday, second day of the show. No admission is charged for for the rodeo performances which take place Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon.

In spite of train handicaps it is said there will be a great number of bucking broncos, cowboys and girls on hand for calf roping and bull dogging, President Smith stated.

Mr. Smith expressed his gratitude and appreciation to county agents and to officials of the Louisiana agricultural extension service for their help in making the show its expected success. Monroe business firms who gave generous financial support were also thanked.

Chamber of Commerce members raised a cash sum of $1,664 to finance the show, of which $1,200 will be used for premiums to be paid the 4-H contestors. Remainder of the money went for additional pig pens and weighing facilities, it was stated.

SAYS TREATMENT NOT UNDERSTOOD

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sister Elizabeth Kenny, Australian nurse who devised a method of treating infantile paralysis, was quoted by the Herald-Tribune today as saying physicians in the United States had administered the treatments in "shoddy fashion."

"It takes at least two years to learn by technique," she said in the interview. "* * * In Australia it is a two-year course and nere in the United States doctors look into my concepts for as little as one week and then consider they are experts."

Sister Kenny was quoted by the Herald-Tribune as saying that during her three and a half years in the United States "no one has completely learned my technique" and "that has been a great sadness to me."

THE LITTLE THEATER CHRONICL

As has been recounted in this space, the entire action of the play, "Rebecca," takes place in the shadow, as it were, of the dead Rebecca, and it's a cold, damp, sinister gloom that's cast by the shadow.

Four evenings a week and even on bright Sunday afternoons, members of the cast come together under the direction of Mickey Merrill, leaving the joys and sorrows of their private lives, to pass a couple of suspenseful hours voluntarily under the pall of Rebecca's baleful shade.

Not only are the lines recited, the business carefully studied and the relationships probed, but always the actors and actresses strive to envelope their souls with the authentic chill that springs from the damp, noxious atmosphere of the play.

It's only two weeks from Tuesday, October 26, that these willing devotees of civic culture will present themselves for public appraisal at Northeast Junior college auditorium, and no trouble is spared to have the vehicle in smooth running order for that evening, the first of the 1943-44 season.

No one will begrudge these hard workers a little horseplay to lighten the self-induced suspense that crowds the unpretentious workshop at 3404 DeSiard road. Like a refreshing breeze, each antic eases the strain momentarily, and the players go back to their sadistic portrayals with renewed vigor.

CREW STAYS ON BURNING PLANE

Lands With Engines Dead, Throttles Shot Away, Fires Aboard

By Kenneth L. Dixon

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE IN Africa, Oct. 5.—(AP)—(Delayed)—Low over the Mediterranean the Liberator lurched homeward in the dusk. The wind screamed through holes in her fuselage. Her throttles were shot away, her instrument panels were ripped out, her wind screen was shattered, her brakes were leaking, her starboard engines were only dead weight and her gas was almost gone.

Inside she was swept by three fires, her bombardier was dead, the pilot, co-pilot and navigator were wounded. One of the pilot's legs was torn almost off, the navigator was seriously wounded and the co-pilot was injured in one foot.

But the co-pilot stayed put and into the skipper's blood-spattered seat stepped "Speedy" Powell, crack R. A. F. pilot of "Target for Tonight" movie fame who had never flown a Liberator before. He had been riding as an observer while the big planes unleashed their first raid on Germany from North Africa.

The Yank and the Tommy fought side by side and somehow pushed the shattered shell of their plane to the North African shore while the maimed pilot begged his men to bail out and save themselves.

Then, as the rest of the American crew strained their eyes through the thickening darkness the last engine failed suddenly. Technical Sergeant James H. Smith of Bell, Calif., spotted a flat space ahead, just over an olive grove. He waved to the men at the controls and while "Speedy" fought the controls the co-pilot prepared for a landing. ROTARIANS HEAR TWO ADDRESSES

Professor Stephenson, Capt. Fred Marx, Are Dinner Guests

The Monroe Rotary club had two interesting speakers at the luncheon held in Hotel Virginia the past week. The program was in charge of Rotarian Bill Rodriguez, chairman of the international service committee, who presented W. H. Stephenson, professor of arts and sciences at Louisiana State university. Captain Fred Marx, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Marx, who is on a short leave from North African service, also gave a graphic description of life in the area.

Mr. Stephenson briefly discussed wars in general and recalled one war that found everyone who had participated in it earlier dead when peace actually was returned. He alluded to the so-called 100 years' war.

He compared prices in the Civil war with those today. In the former conflict, all commodities were priced unreasonably high. Even coffee was $14 a pound and other commodities in like proportion. Viewed in this light, he said we today have little reason to complain of "high prices." Those high prices in the Civil war were due to overproduction of Confederate money, of inflation, which we must not permit to occur again, he said.

He stated that now the colleges and universities are engaged in war or preparing for war but when peace comes he predicted they will resume their peace-time programs.

Captain Marx told of the climate and people in the Mediterranean area, carefully avoiding any military references that might be taboo. In the desert of Africa he said the cold in winter was so intense that one would sleep under five blankets. That in summer, the thermometer went far past 100 degrees in the "shade" and there was no "shade."

Sicily he described as a land of friendly people and with an abundance of tropical fruits and vegetables.

Messina, once a large and beautiful city, he said was badly bombed. When American troops landed on the "toe" of Italy, they found that this was an extremely poor country, agriculturally. Food was far scarcer than in Sicily.

He said it took five or six weeks to go over the Mediterranean by boat but that he flew back in one week.

Lieutenant Colonel Prentiss Gray, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Gray, was a guest. Also Harry Frazer, Jr., who will leave soon for armed service.

'SOONERS' ESCAPING FATE COUNT DAYS AS THEY WAIT

E. S. Eby, Jr., Of Monroe One To Receive Letter Of Commendation

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Oct. 9.—(Special)—A story of patience and hope has been unfolding here in the Pacific for many months. It is a story of the Lost Legion of the marine corps—the "Sooners." Their ship was the U. S. S. Oklahoma; now they wait and hope for a new assignment—another ship.

Although officially disbanded last October, the "Sooners," a group of twenty-seven leathernecks who escaped the disaster which struck their vessel December 7, 1941, work and live together, counting the days until once more they'll man battle stations aboard ship.

Following Pearl Harbor the surviving "Sooners" did a short stretch of duty aboard another battlewagon, then on a cruiser in the south Pacific. On their return they were dispatched to various parts of this island to build defenses.

There they raised their first flag; watched the depot grow around them from a rice paddy to a sprawling, busy post; bunked and messed in an old warehouse until barracks were constructed for them.

Meanwhile, these stranded leathernecks continue to perform their duties. Two of the deatchment, Platoon Sergeant Walter H. Gilbert, Jr., of Carbon, Tex., and Corporal Eugene S. Eby, Jr., of 105 Texas avenue, Monroe, La., recently were awarded letters of commendation when their quick-thinking saved thousands of dollars worth of supplies jeopardized by a flooded storage area.

In their spare time the "Sooners" have formed athletic teams, landscaped their post, paved its street and planted fine victory gardens under the direction of corporal Armando S. Giambruno of Vicksburg, Miss.

And still they go on hoping and waiting for a ship.

There's a story of bravery to be told about each. Five received citations for outstanding heroism when their ship was lost and two were awarded the navy cross.

Private First Class James D. Black, of Smoke Shop, Rotan, N. M., can tell you, if he will, how he leaped from the clover leaf fifty feet above the main deck when the ship was listing and how he luckily hit the water after striking his heels on the blister ledge. Later he manned an anti-aircraft gun and was one of a crew responsible for a Jap plane downed.

Or Private First Class Williard L. Brasher of Tulsa, Okla., who stood on the blister ledge of another ship, after escaping himself, and pulled sailors to safety amid the strafing of enemy planes.

Corporal Arthur J. Druktenis, of 4517 South Fairfield, Chicago, Ill., has been awarded the purple heart award, having suffered a severe shoulder injury when the ship went down. He was knocked unconscious, rescued and taken to a hospital which was bombed. Accepting only emergency treatment, he immediately returned to duty, and manned a machine gun untill ordered to a hospital.

CALLS CAPITOL WORLD'S FINEST

Private L. R. Cantrell, with replacement depot 1, Fort Meade, Md., son of Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Cantrell, of Monroe, wrote his parents such an interesting letter of what he saw in Washington, D. C., that it is given herewith in part:

"I arrived in Washington about 10 a.m. and took a first good look at the capitol. It was visible from the station where I alighted. When I drew near to it my heart thumped for it was the biggest, most elaborate building I had ever seen. I climbed the many steps to the top with my head thrown back to get a good look at the great dome. Within a guided tour of the building was forming, which I joined. Looking up into the inside of the dome I saw a painting called, 'The Spirit of Washington' which is painted on a huge copper bowl that makes up the interior of the dome. It shows George Washington with uplifted hand, surrounded by angels, clouds, etc. Below this painting is a band of plaster around the interior of the dome, on which is painted a cycle of time beginning with the cave man and on up to about the time of World War 1.

"The artist who started painting "The Cycle of Time" died before it was finished. No one in all the world has been found able to finish the painting because it is believed to be a lost art. A Russian attempted to finish it but could not do it.

"We toured the various famous rooms; saw the two wings where the senate and house meet; visited the statuary hall where are portrayed Will Rogers, Theodore Roosevelt, Huey Long and others."

He then told of the marvelous view to be had from the top of Washington monument and closed his letter with a laudation of the most beautiful city in the world.

SEES SUCCESSFUL LIVESTOCK SHOW

4-H Club Boys From 17 Parishes Will Have Exhibits

Probably the largest and most successful northeast Louisiana junior livestock show ever produced is predicted for this year by Sam Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Fattened hogs and feeder pigs will be exhibited by 4-H club boys from 17 northeast Louisiana parishes Thursday and Friday of this week and sold on the second day of the auction.

Selling of the exhibited hogs and pigs is an innovation this year, according to Mr. Smith who stated that buyers from commercial and packing houses of Louisiana as well as adjoining states would be on hand Friday to enliven the bidding.

Another innovation the chamber president observed, is that these hogs will be the first to be fed out in 4-H club feed loads and marketed in the fall. Heretofore, he said, practice of farmers has been to allow pigs from spring litters to more or less "root hog or die." They have not finished them for fall markets and practically all hogs fed out for markets have come from fall litters marketed in the spring.

One of the main purposes of the junior livestock show is to demonstrate to northeast Louisiana farmers the economic feasibility of feeding spring litter pigs for fall markets, stated Mr. Smith. He added further that indications pointed to this objective being accomplished, judging from the interest in the show and the number of entries which have been made in spite of the summer drouth and the shortage of commercial hog feeds.

Auction of the pigs takes place at 2 o'clock Friday, second day of the show. No admission is charged for for the rodeo performances which take place Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon.

In spite of train handicaps it is said there will be a great number of bucking broncos, cowboys and girls on hand for calf roping and bull dogging, President Smith stated.

Mr. Smith expressed his gratitude and appreciation to county agents and to officials of the Louisiana agricultural extension service for their help in making the show its expected success. Monroe business firms who gave generous financial support were also thanked.

Chamber of Commerce members raised a cash sum of $1,664 to finance the show, of which $1,200 will be used for premiums to be paid the 4-H contestors. Remainder of the money went for additional pig pens and weighing facilities, it was stated.

SAYS TREATMENT NOT UNDERSTOOD

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sister Elizabeth Kenny, Australian nurse who devised a method of treating infantile peralysis, was quoted by the Herald-Tribune today as saying physicians in the United States had administered the treatments in "shoddy fashion."

HICKS ANNOUNCES FOR REELECTION

President Of Ouachita Parish Police Jury To Seek Another Term

Tom Hicks, president of the Ouachita parish police jury, yesterday formally announced his candidacy for reelection from Ward Five.

Mr. Hicks is now serving his second term as a police juror and his second year as president of the parish's governing body. Prior to his election as a police juror Mr. Hicks served as a member of the West Monroe board of aldermen for four years, and has been active in civic work throughout the community for many years. He has devoted considerable time to such projects as war bond drives, the Red Cross, Community Chest, scrap campaigns and various programs for the advancement of agriculture throughout the parish.

Mr. Hicks is particularly interested in state and federal plans for post-war projects which will provide work for returning veterans. At the present time, a complete survey is being made in Monroe, West Monroe and Ouachita parish to determine what public works will be feasible and Mr. Hicks, as president of the police jury, has taken an active leadership in assuring that the parish will be in a position to share in this post-war program.

"During the time I have held public office," Mr. Hicks said, "I have tried my best to cooperate with every movement for the betterment of the people I serve. Our police jury has been extremely cooperative with the municipal governments of Monroe and West Monroe and the state. It is only through cooperation that any group or groups can accomplish their objectives and I have always tried to keep that fact in mind. I have repeatedly reiterated that we of the police jury are servants of the people we represent and in every instance we have attempted to manage the affairs of the parish to the best interests of our citizens."

The latest report of the supervisor of public funds showed a most laudatory account of the finances of the parish under the presidency of Mr. Hicks.

"Operations for the years 1941 and 1942 resulted in surpluses of $15,617.78 and $18,459.55, respectively, as shown by exhibit B," the report stated. "Making the accumulated operating surplus $192,476.40 at December 31, 1942. The police jury is to be commended for having kept its expenditures so well within its revenues.

"In addition, a cash balance of $159,336.54 resulting from the sale of the parish airport to the federal government was transferred from the airport tax fund to the general fund. Of this amount, $7,437.11 represented reimbursement for airport notes and interest paid by the general fund and the sum of $25,889.35 was paid to the road maintenance fund, leaving a balance in the general fund of $126,010.08. Serverance taxes accrued at December 31, 1942 amounted to $595.04, making the total airport surplus $126,605.12. This surplus is being invested in United States war bonds."

During Mr. Hicks presidency, a number of improvements have been made, the most important of which were the expansion of Selman field, the construction of the agriculture building in West Monroe and the continued improvement of farm-to-market roads throughout the parish.

BERRY OUT FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Veteran Member Of Police Jury Seeks State Post In Primary

Sandel Berry, veteran member of the Ouachita Parish Police jury, yesterday formally announced his candidacy for state representative from Ouachita parish, subject to the Democratic primary of January 18.

"Upon the solicitation of a number of my friends, I have decided that I can better serve the citizens of Ouachita parish as their state representative," Mr. Berry said, "and thus I will not seek reelection as a police juror but instead will enter the race for representatives in the coming primary."

Mr. Berry has served as a member of the police jury from Ward 8 for the past 12 years. He has been chairman of the road committee for eight years, during which time many improvements have been made in the parish road system, with particular emphasis on farm-to-market roads. He also is a member of the executive board of the Louisiana Police Jury association, representing the Fifth district.

Mr. Berry was born and reared in Ouachita parish, and has never lived elsewhere. He is married and has five children, three sons and two daughters. Two of his sons are in the army and one is in the navy. His first political venture was when he first ran for police juror some 12 years ago and he has been successful in each race thereafter.

Mr. Berry operates a 240-acre farm some miles southwest of here. He is a staunch advocate of diversification, and has proved the success of such a program on his own farm. He has installed numerous modern methods at his place and it is now one of the most successful farming ventures of its size in the parish.

"I feel that I know the needs of our citizens," Mr. Berry said. "After 12 years of intimate contact with people of all walks of life throughout the parish, I believe that I am qualified to represent all interests with fairness and aggressiveness. Only my desire to be of greater service to Ouachita parish has led me to announce my candidacy for representative."

Whatever Front It Is

The old argument about a second front goes merrily on, with all sorts of useless differences as to whether the Italian front is the second or the third—and if it is the third, where is the second? Moscow says there isn't any second, and will we please bring one on, in a hurry.

Really, does it matter whether the front in Italy is the second, the third, the fourth or fifth? In spite of all denials from Russia, the Italian front is doing what the long-sought "second front" was intended to do, and to that extent the argument seems pretty fruitless.

Russia wanted a second front to pull Nazi troops out of the east—originally to relieve the pressure of German offensive, and later to soften the armor of German resistance. This the Italian front has done.

It is in no way detracting from the marvelous job done by the Red armies to point out that their present rapid progress is made possible by the fact that Hitler has taken enormous numbers of men and quantities of equipment off the the Russian front to meet the Anglo-American threat coming up from the Mediterranean, and to replace Italian forces no longer in the war.

The number of Nazis pulled off the Russian front has not been made known, although our intelligence service undoubtedly could guess rather accurately. It includes not only those who are actually facing the Anglo-American invasion forces, but many times that number who are waiting to see where we shall strike next.

We, like Premier Stalin, would like to see a front, be it second or third or whatever, in France. It looks like the shortest way to Berlin. But our reason for favoring that route is not necessarily the same as that of Mr. Stalin. He would like to see us concentrate in the west, where he has no immediate ambitions, if any at all, and leave to him the Balkans area where Russian interest is strong.

We are interested in winning the war wherever it can be won. If victory can come quickest by an Anglo-American invasion of the Balkans before the cross-channel climax, we can't be greatly worried by post-war ambitions.

So far as we are concerned, the front designed to distract Nazis from Russia now exists. We shall develop that front to the limit, and leave it to historians to decide whether it is the Second Front.

AMERICAN CASUALTIES

A joint report of all the United States armed forces and the merchant marine, rendered on September 1, shows that during the 21 months since Pearl Harbor, 103,932 have been killed in action, wounded, reported missing or taken prisoner. The figures do not include deaths from accidents and other causes, and of course do not include current casualties in Italy.

During the 19 months that the United States was in the first World war, the total of casualties in the same classifications, without the merchant marine and excluding men taken prisoner, was 233,978. If allowance is made for the fact that in the current casualty list, 38,895 men are listed as missing, and 23,804 are listed as prisoners of war, the difference is considerably emphasized. It is probable that many who are listed as missing will be reported as prisoners or will turn up in areas now occupied by the enemy.

Some of the difference is certainly due to the great success of this war's medical groups in all arms of the service. They have reduced the death rate from wounds to an undetermined extent, but it may account for the fact that only 19,581 men have been listed as dead, while in the 19 months of the first World war the battle deaths—killed in action and died of wounds received in action—were 50,510.

Many differences in the conditions of combat and transportation in the two wars can be examined with profit in the way of deductions to show that the casualty probability in this war will be less than in any American war. This will stimulate the morale of the combat forces and will be especially encouraging to civilians whose loved ones are in the theaters of war.

Any price in death or disability is beyond appraisal in individual instances, but in the aggregate the result testifies to the determination of all American military leaders to win the war with the least possible cost in men.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS

The 168th anniversary of the founding of the army corps of engineers is being observed. It was in June, 1775, that General Washington engaged Colonel Richard Gridley to head a separate branch of the army to be known as the corps of engineers. Three years earlier the British had organized a company of "sappers and miners" at Gibraltar. This company became the nucleus of the royal engineers, and it is probable that Washington knew of the British plan to concentrate military engineering in a unit of specialists.

The United States army corps of engineers is much more than a combat and service arm of the line. It is the agency through which the federal government exercises its control of navigable streams and carries out general engineering projects for the improvement of rivers and harbors and for flood control. It maintains and operates the Panama canal.

War is the main business of the corps of engineers today. Wherever there is a job to be done for the army, the engineers are in the thick of it. They built the Alcan highway. Combat engineers, too, are with the army wherever it fights. When the army pursues a retreating foe, combat engineers must be well in front to repair roads and bridges which the enemy has destroyed.

Engineers and men skilled in all kinds of construction work are badly needed today to build the corps of engineers to full war strength. The corps offers an opportunity for varied experience, further schooling, and a patriotic contribution to early victory.

Moscow and Berlin dispute each other's claims as to casualties in Russia, but there is no disputing the fact that from here on in Nazi casualties will increase steadily.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—The Writers Congress, recently convened in Los Angeles, was productive of much serious discussion, several laudable resolutions—and a great quantity of tongue-in-cheek chuckles. Since the first two have been duly reported in the press, I shall confine my remarks to a few of the last named.

Among the speakers was Senor Jorge Delano, a Chilean magazine editor with a flair for speaking his mind. Facing an audience heavly dominated by representatives of the film industry, he accused Hollywood of depicting South America unfavorably, thereby upsetting intercontinental relations. "When you portray us," charged El Senor Delano, "you ridicule us. The mass of North Americans, influenced by your films, believes that when we are not sleeping to avoid work, we are tearing around as swashbuckling bandits."

Movie men in El Senor's audience doubtless gnashed their teeth with rage. They've been so proud, and so very voluble, about their wonderful propaganda toward inter-American harmony.

The other chuckle is no laughing matter. It is ironic, even a little terrifying. Darryl F. Zanuck, discussing 20th Century-Fox plans, mentioned his proposed movie of the life of Eddie Rickenbacker. Many of the writers present hissed. A few hours later, they adopted a credo pledging themselves to guard freedom of expression and the right to independent faith!

Well, Zanuck's right to produce this film is no less American than the writers' right to hiss his plan which in turn is no less American than their credo to guard freedom of expression—which is what they tried to deny Zanuck by hissing his film.

Funny, ain't it? Or is it?

According to trade papers, a major studio is campaigning to get a deferment for actor John Craven—not because he is working in a half-completed film, but because he is wanted for a picture not yet started. Off-hand, I can think of nothing more apt to arouse public resentment. Admittedly, a studio has cause to request deferment of an actor as his loss, during production, would necessitate reshooting thousands of dollars worth of film. The public can understand that. But this is a horse of a different color—a color, incidentally, that has been much too common in Hollywood since Pearl Harbor.

What does a girl need to win success in Hollywood? Had you asked me that question two years ago, I would have pointed out June Havoc and said: "Look her over—and see for yourself." Miss Havoc, fresh from a hit performance on the New York stage, seemed to have everything—youth, beauty, personality, experience and a remarkable flair for showmanship. Today—after being kicked from Hollywood pillar to Hollywood post and living on a diet of alternate promises and disappointments until her digestion rebelled—she is on the way back to the footlights, a thoroughly disgusted young lady. With all of her assets, she lacked one thing without which no one has ever won screen stardom: Luck!

Scanning a list of actors now serving Uncle Sam, I always generate a grin when I come to the name of Freddie Bartholomew. There, I reason, is one soldier who has found peace of mind in a uniform. Perhaps he encounters a few annoyances now and then. Maybe he doesn't enjoy being routed out of bed at dawn; possibly army chow lacks some of the trimmings dear to his palate—but there's a compensation that more than offsets such trivia. He's been in the army now almost a year—and no one has filed suit for a slice of his $52 bucks a month!

I dropped into a neighborhood theater the other day and saw the now ancient picture, "Bomber's Moon." To keep my mind off general lack of quality, I focused my attention on one absurdity in particular—the use of accents. "Bomber's Moon" is laid in Germany. With the locale well established in the audience's mind, why not translate their speech into good English, instead of having each actor give his interpretation of the Katzenjammer Kids—and garble his speech with phony gutterals until fifty per cent of the dialogue becomes gibberish? How long are movie producers going to underestimate audience intelligence?

BY HENRY McLEMORE

They tell me that the army has a lot of disadvantages but I am not at all sure that they outweigh the advantages of being in the armed services. Naturally, a man going into the army after nearly a decade of fairly soft life isn't going into ecstasies over getting up at an hour when even chickens are turning over for another snooze, and he isn't going to write sonnets on the delights of walking more than a postman, cleaning and scrubbing various bits of pottery and brass, and being ordered around as if he were nothing more than a cocker spaniel who could talk.

Those things will come a little hard at first, but I believe I will be able to comfort myself by thinking of the inconveniences of civilian life that I am missing by laying aside the blue serge for the khaki. It's getting tougher and tougher on civilians as the war goes along. Those ration cards alone are enough to make strong men weep and weak women moan. It was with pure delight that I took my ration cards today and mailed them to the ration board with a note informing the head rationer that I was through with them, being as I was about to go in the army and wouldn't need them anymore.

It will be a joy not to have to worry about the gasoline ration anymore. Nuts to the A card, and B card, and the C card and all the other cards. Let the gasoline tank be empty. Let the old bus sit in the garage until the spiders spin webs on the steering wheel and the termites set up light housekeeping in the dashboard. No more will I have to worry about whether I can afford a two-block trip to the grocery or a six-block ride to see Aunt Emma. Fromn now on, I'll do my riding in a jeep or a two-ton truck.

The same goes for food ration cards. I won't have to worry whether X coupons expire at eleven o'clock Thursday, the red ones on September 22nd or whether or not lima beans have been advanced a point while boiled tongue has been reduced to six, seven or eight points. When food time comes around I'll just get in line and walk myself past Uncle Sam's buffet and let him worry about whether or not the points are holding out.

And that shoe coupon, old No. 18. Starting Saturday I'll have all the shoes I want. No, they won't be pretty things, with wing tips, a lot of engraving on the toes, and a lot of other fancy trimming, but they'll be all leather, a yard wide, and will keep my feet dry.

There are a lot of other advantages to being in the army, too. When I want to make a long distance phone call I won't feel ashamed to step in the booth. I have read the ads saying that soldiers should have first shot at the long distance business. And I won't mind travelling on a train. When the army makes me a reservation I'll be able to go to sleep without feeling that perhaps I should have stayed home and helped to make room for the movement of troops.

And, this is best of all—I have a feeling that I will be surrounded by pretty girls most of the time. Soldiers must have lots of beautiful feminine company else the advertisements are lying. Every time you pick up a magazine or paper you see some buck private all but half smothered by a mass of pulchritude trying to make him happy and comfortable. I am a man who can stand a lot of that sort of attention.

Of course, my sergeant may not pick me as the one to pose for these ads, but from what I have seen of sergeants they have been much maligned, and at heart are sweet, charming men, ready to help the buck private at all times. I am quite sure that's the kind they have at Camp Blanding.

Boy! I hope the sergeants read this.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson For October 17

Lesson Text: Exodus 20: 8-11; Isaiah 58; 13, 14; Mark 2: 23; 3: 6.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Among the most memorable words of Jesus is the great invitation, "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest."

Jesus was a Jew, and the religion that He brought to men, in teaching and example, is rooted and grounded, as Jesus constantly reminded those of His day, in the great principles and teachings of the Old Testament. He had come not to destroy, but to fulfill. When He promised rest to men He promised what all men need. Food, and water, and rest are the three essentials of life; and they were the three essentials that Jesus offered men in the spiritual realm: "I am the bread of life"; "If any man thirst let him come unto Me and drink"; "Come unto Me and I will give you rest."

So far as I know, the Jewish religon, and the Christian religion, as an outgrowth from it, are the only religions that have given a proper and essential place to the need and sacredness of physical rest. Irreligion in our modern life is doing much to abolish all the gain that the institution of the Sabbath brought into the world. For the most part in laws governing our industrial life, and in the conditions that trades unions have been able to establish, the principle of a rest day has become recognized, even among those who do not attach any sacredness to it. But to one who recognizes what the Sabbath has meant religiously and socially, the fact that the day has become primarily a day of pleasure-loving habits and ways, that can hardly be said to be restful or recreational, is appalling.

I was brought up in a home where Sabbath observance was strict—perhaps a little too strict. Yet Sunday was anything but a day of gloom. We went to church and Sunday school; we had music in the home; we had good reading; sometimes we had friends and visitors. But the day was restful. One began the week's work on Monday refreshed and rested; whereas many of the typical Sabbath-breakers of today are so used up from the strenuous exertions of Sunday outings that they are of little use on Mondays. When I contrast the quietude, peacefulness, and restfulness of the home that I knew with the toil, turmoil, and restlessness that Sunday means for masses of people today, I am tempted to stress, and to try to recover something of that old-time strictness.

Yet one recognibes that that old-time strictness was not always ideal. There were homes in which the Sabbath was a day of gloom; and there were habits and teachings that made it a burden instead of a joy. Much of the present irreligion concerning the Sabbath began in reaction against that strict, lifeless and joyless formalsim. In spit of Christ's plain words, there were those who wished to make man for the Sabbath, instead of the Sabbath for man. They were the modern successors of those ancient formalists who had so mistaken the nature and purpose of the day of rest that they forbade healing afflicted mortals on the Sabbath, or the doing of good, when it did not conform to their narrow ways.

We shall never in our modern and complex society recover the simple and strict Sabbath of primitive Jewish and Christian communities, but can we recover the spirit of the Sabbath?

That is the question, and upon its successful answer depend as great issues as any that face humanity in a war-torn world.

IN WASHINGTON

By James Thrasher
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Pass the opium, Pappy, and let's have a look at the general situation. What general situation? Why, the general situation as regards generals, but naturally.

Let's see now, how do we stand? General George C. Marshall is going to be removed as chief of staff and rendered completely powerless by being given command of all American and British forces.

With General Marshall thus shackled and shoved into an obscure corner, Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell will be made chief of staff and put to work reorganizing the war department along global and political lines. First order of business will be a world-wide WPA, which will guarantee a fourth term for President Roosevelt. (No need to fear those doubtful middle western states if he can carry Iraq, the Balkans and the Solid South.)

General Somervell will fire the five major generals who are chiefs of the quartermaster, engineer and transportation corps, the Ordnance department and the Chemical Warfare service. He will then replace them with civilian braintrusters, recruited from Justice Felix Frankfurter's old law classes at Harvard.

Well, there you have it. Bit confusing, isn't it? But that is the general situation as set forth by Representative Paul W. Shafer, Republican, Michigan, in a speech printed in the Congressional Record and later amplified by statements to a reporter and duly published.

Rumors Rife

It all started with the recent hue and cry about General Marshall being "kicked upstairs" by Mr. Churchill and or the White House "palace guard" and or somebody else.

The hue and cry is a little amazing in the first place, since the rumor of General Marshall's overseas transfer has been heard around Washington for six months, and was never considered as anything but a richly deserved promotion.

The contention that the British are gunning for the chief of staff because he wants to invade Europe from across the channel is equally surprising. Not only did Mr. Churchill spike that in his recent speech to Commons, but he asked General Marshall to accompany him and Anthony Eden to Africa (where they conferred with General Eisenhower) and to England, after the last Washington conference. Seems a queer way to deal with a general whose strategy you distrust and disagree with.

As for General Somervell, the villainous role assigned him by Representative Shafer is only the latest of at least three that he has been given recently. When he was WPA director in New York he was accused of communistic leanings. As chief of the Army Service Forces (his present post) he has been charged with being the head of a reactionary fascist army clique. Now he's cast as the menace in the fourth-term plot. In short, a versatile man.

Some of the five major generals whom General Somervell is supposed to fire, if Representative Shafer doesn't avert his appointment as chief of staff, are General Somervell's own choices. All have worked with and under him in ASF and, judging from the course of the war, have done a pretty good job. Major General C. P. Gress, chief of transportation, was a West Point classmate of General Somervell's, and remains one of his choicest friends.

Representative Shafer told the press that among those being considered as replacements for these five men are Dr. Eli Ginzberg and James P. Mitchell. He said he "understood" that both these civilians are graduates of Harvard Law school in the days when Justice Frankfurter taught there.

The fact is that Dr. Ginzberg never went to Harvard, and Mitchell has no college degree of any sort. The latter is director of industrial personnel (civilian) in the ASF, while Dr. Ginzberg is a statistical clerk in the ASF control division.

Representative Shafer bases all his charges on a "blueprint of a plan which presumably would streamline the war department, but in reality ... convert that great department into a New Deal political organization."

It's no secret that a streamlining plan is in the offing, and has been worked on for some time. It has been talked about, too, but Representative Shafer is the first person to discover anything remotely resembling a "New Deal political organization."

SON'S TESTIMONY CONVICTS FATHER

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 39-year-old housepainter has been found guilty of first degree murder, and the chief witness against him was his 10-year-old son who gave his dad a hug, stepped to the stand in district court and described how his father stuck a knife into his mother's throat.

The boy, Jess Bingham, ran to his father, Alfred Bingham, charged with the murder of his estranged wife, Mary, and put his arms around his neck, and wept. But when he was called to the witness stand yesterday he gave his account of the slaying in a clear, unhalting voice.

"I saw daddy standing under a tree in front of mother's house," he related. "He had a long-bladed knife in his hand.

"I asked him if he was going to hurt mother. He said if he saw her with a man he would hurt her. Then mother came home and daddy jumped up quick. He looked glary.

"Daddy jumped toward mother with the knife in his hand. She screamed and stepped back. Then he stuck the knife in her neck and she fell into the gutter. I grabbed daddy's shirt but he hit me in the chest and ran away."

Bingham's defense was based on a plea of insanity. Judge S. J. Clendinning set October 20 for sentencing.

Whatever Front It Is

The old argument about a second front goes merrily on, with all sorts of useless differences as to whether the Italian front is the second or the third—and if it is the third, where is the second? Moscow says there isn't any second, and will we please bring one on, in a hurry.

Really, does it matter whether the front in Italy is the second, the third, the fourth or fifth? In spite of all denials from Russia, the Italian front is doing what the long-sought "second front" was intended to do, and to that extent the argument seems pretty fruitless.

Russia wanted a second front to pull Nazi troops out of the east—originally to relieve the pressure of German offensive, and later to soften the armor of German resistance. This the Italian front has done.

It is in no way detracting from the marvelous job done by the Red armies to point out that their present rapid progress is made possible by the fact that Hitler has taken enormous numbers of men and quantities of equipment off the the Russian front to meet the Anglo-American threat coming up from the Mediterranean, and to replace Italian forces no longer in the war.

The number of Nazis pulled off the Russian front has not been made known, although our intelligence service undoubtedly could guess rather accurately. It includes not only those who are actually facing the Anglo-American invasion forces, but many times that number who are waiting to see where we shall strike next.

We, like Premier Stalin, would like to see a front, be it second or third or whatever, in France. It looks like the shortest way to Berlin. But our reason for favoring that route is not necessarily the same as that of Mr. Stalin. He would like to see us concentrate in the west, where he has no immediate ambitions, if any at all, and leave to him the Balkans area where Russian interest is strong.

We are interested in winning the war wherever it can be won. If victory can come quickest by an Anglo-American invasion of the Balkans before the cross-channel climax, we can't be greatly worried by post-war ambitions.

So far as we are concerned, the front designed to distract Nazis from Russia now exists. We shall develop that front to the limit, and leave it to historians to decide whether it is the Second Front.

AMERICAN CASUALTIES

A joint report of all the United States armed forces and the merchant marine, rendered on September 1, shows that during the 21 months since Pearl Harbor, 103,932 have been killed in action, wounded, reported missing or taken prisoner. The figures do not include deaths from accidents and other causes, and of course do not include current casualties in Italy.

During the 19 months that the United States was in the first World war, the total of casualties in the same classifications, without the merchant marine and excluding men taken prisoner, was 233,978. If allowance is made for the fact that in the current casualty list, 38,895 men are listed as missing, and 23,804 are listed as prisoners of war, the difference is considerably emphasized. It is probable that many who are listed as missing will be reported as prisoners or will turn up in areas now occupied by the enemy.

Some of the difference is certainly due to the great success of this war's medical groups in all arms of the service. They have reduced the death rate from wounds to an undetermined extent, but it may account for the fact that only 19,581 men have been listed as dead, while in the 19 months of the first World war the battle deaths—killed in action and died of wounds received in action—were 50,510.

Many differences in the conditions of combat and transportation in the two wars can be examined with profit in the way of deductions to show that the casualty probability in this war will be less than in any American war. This will stimulate the morale of the combat forces and will be especially encouraging to civilians whose loved ones are in the theaters of war.

Any price in death or disability is beyond appraisal in individual instances, but in the aggregate the result testifies to the determination of all American military leaders to win the war with the least possible cost in men.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS

The 168th anniversary of the founding of the army corps of engineers is being observed. It was in June, 1775, that General Washington engaged Colonel Richard Gridley to head a separate branch of the army to be known as the corps of engineers. Three years earlier the British had organized a company of "sappers and miners" at Gibraltar. This company became the nucleus of the royal engineers, and it is probable that Washington knew of the British plan to concentrate military engineering in a unit of specialists.

The United States army corps of engineers is much more than a combat and service arm of the line. It is the agency through which the federal government exercises its control of navigable streams and carries out general engineering projects for the improvement of rivers and harbors and for flood control. It maintains and operates the Panama canal.

War is the main business of the corps of engineers today. Wherever there is a job to be done for the army, the engineers are in the thick of it. They built the Alcan highway. Combat engineers, too, are with the army wherever it fights. When the army pursues a retreating foe, combat engineers must be well in front to repair roads and bridges which the enemy has destroyed.

Engineers and men skilled in all kinds of construction work are badly needed today to build the corps of engineers to full war strength. The corps offers an opportunity for varied experience, further schooling, and a patriotic contribution to early victory.

Moscow and Berlin dispute each other's claims as to casualties in Russia, but there is no disputing the fact that from here on in Nazi casualties will increase steadily.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—The Writers Congress, recently convened in Los Angeles, was productive of much serious discussion, several laudable resolutions—and a great quantity of tongue-in-cheek chuckles. Since the first two have been duly reported in the press, I shall confine my remarks to a few of the last named.

Among the speakers was Senor Jorge Delano, a Chilean magazine editor with a flair for speaking his mind. Facing an audience heavily dominated by representatives of the film industry, he accused Hollywood of depicting South America unfavorably, thereby upsetting intercontinental relations. "When you portray us," charged El Senor Delano, "you ridicule us. The mass of North Americans, influenced by your films, believes that when we are not sleeping to avoid work, we are tearing around as swashbuckling bandits."

Movie men in El Senor's audience doubtless gnashed their teeth with rage. They've been so proud, and so very voluble, about their wonderful propaganda toward inter-American harmony.

The other chuckle is no laughing matter. It is ironic, even a little terrifying. Darryl F. Zanuck, discussing 20th Century-Fox plans, mentioned his proposed movie of the life of Eddie Rickenbacker. Many of the writers present hissed. A few hours later, they adopted a credo pledging themselves to guard freedom of expression and the right to independent faith!

Well, Zanuck's right to produce this film is no less American than the writers' right to hiss his plan which in turn is no less American than their credo to guard freedom of expression —which is what they tried to deny Zanuck by hissing his film.

Funny, ain't it? Or is it?

According to trade papers, a major studio is campaigning to get a deferment for actor John Craven—not because he is working in a half-completed film, but because he is wanted for a picture not yet started. Off-hand, I can think of nothing more apt to arouse public resentment. Admittedly, a studio has cause to request deferment of an actor as his loss, during production, would necessitate reshooting thousands of dollars worth of film. The public can understand that. But this is a horse of a different color—a color, incidentally, that has been much too common in Hollywood since Pearl Harbor.

What does a girl need to win success in Hollywood? Had you asked me that question two years ago, I would have pointed out June Havoc and said: "Look her over—and see for yourself." Miss Havoc, fresh from a hit performance on the New York stage, seemed to have everything—youth, beauty, personality, experience and a remarkable flair for showmanship. Today—after being kicked from Hollywood pillar to Hollywood post and living on a diet of alternate promises and disappointments until her digestion rebelled—she is on the way back to the footlights, a thoroughly disgusted young lady. With all of her assets, she lacked one thing without which no one has ever won screen stardom: Luck!

Scanning a list of actors now serving Uncle Sam, I always generate a grin when I come to the name of Freddie Bartholomew. There, I reason, is one soldier who has found peace of mind in a uniform. Perhaps he encounters a few annoyances now and then. Maybe he doesn't enjoy being routed out of bed at dawn; possibly army chow lacks some of the trimmings dear to his palate—but there's a compensation that more than offsets such trivia. He's been in the army now almost a year—and no one has filed suit for a slice of his $52 bucks a month!

I dropped into a neighborhood theater the other day and saw the now ancient picture, "Bomber's Moon." To keep my mind off general lack of quality, I focused my attention on one absurdity in particular—the use of accents. "Bomber's Moon" is laid in Germany. With the locale well established in the audience's mind, why not translate their speech into good English, instead of having each actor give his interpretation of the Katzenjammer Kids—and garble his speech with phony gutterals until fifty per cent of the dialogue becomes gibberish? How long are movie producers going to underestimate audience intelligence?

BY HENRY McLEMORE

They tell me that the army has a lot of disadvantages but I am not at all sure that they outweigh the advantages of being in the armed services. Naturally, a man going into the army after nearly a decade of fairly soft life isn't going into ecstasies over getting up at an hour when even chickens are turning over for another snooze, and he isn't going to write sonnets on the delights of walking more than a postman, cleaning and scrubbing various bits of pottery and brass, and being ordered around as if he were nothing more than a cocker spaniel who could talk.

Those things will come a little hard at first, but I believe I will be able to comfort myself by thinking of the inconveniences of civilian life that I am missing by laying aside the blue serge for the khaki. It's getting tougher and tougher on civilians as the war goes along. Those ration cards alone are enough to make strong men weep and weak women moan. It was with pure delight that I took my ration cards today and mailed them to the ration board with a note informing the head rationer that I was through with them, being as I was about to go in the army and wouldn't need them anymore.

It will be a joy not to have to worry about the gasoline ration anymore. Nuts to the A card, and B card, and the C card and all the other cards. Let the gasoline tank be empty. Let the old bus sit in the garage until the spiders spin webs on the steering wheel and the termites set up light housekeeping in the dashboard. No more will I have to worry about whether I can afford a two-block trip to the grocery or a six-block ride to see Aunt Emma. Fromn now on, I'll do my riding in a jeep or a two-ton truck.

The same goes for food ration cards. I won't have to worry whether X coupons expire at eleven o'clock Thursday, the red ones on September 22nd or whether or not lima beans have been advanced a point while boiled tongue has been reduced to six, seven or eight points. When food time comes around I'll just get in line and walk myself past Uncle Sam's buffet and let him worry about whether or not the points are holding out.

And that shoe coupon, old No. 18. Starting Saturday I'll have all the shoes I want. No, they won't be pretty things, with wing tips, a lot of engraving on the toes, and a lot of other fancy trimming, but they'll be all leather, a yard wide, and will keep my feet dry.

There are a lot of other advantages to being in the army, too. When I want to make a long distance phone call I won't feel ashamed to step in the booth. I have read the ads saying that soldiers should have first shot at the long distance business. And I won't mind travelling on a train. When the army makes me a reservation I'll be able to go to sleep without feeling that perhaps I should have stayed home and helped to make room for the movement of troops.

And, this is best of all—I have a feeling that I will be surrounded by pretty girls most of the time. Soldiers must have lots of beautiful feminine company else the advertisements are lying. Every time you pick up a magazine or paper you see some buck private all but half smothered by a mass of pulchritude trying to make him happy and comfortable. I am a man who can stand a lot of that sort of attention.

Of course, my sergeant may not pick me as the one to pose for these ads, but from what I have seen of sergeants they have been much maligned, and at heart are sweet, charming men, ready to help the buck private at all times. I am quite sure that's the kind they have at Camp Blanding.

Boy! I hope the sergeants read this.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson For October 17

Lesson Text: Exodus 20: 8-11; Isaiah 58; 13, 14; Mark 2: 23; 3: 6.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Among the most memorable words of Jesus is the great invitation, "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest."

Jesus was a Jew, and the religion that He brought to men, in teaching and example, is rooted and grounded, as Jesus constantly reminded those of His day, in the great principles and teachings of the Old Testament. He had come not to destroy, but to fulfill. When He promised rest to men He promised what all men need. Food, and water, and rest are the three essentials of life; and they were the three essentials that Jesus offered men in the spiritual realm: "I am the bread of life"; "If any man thirst let him come unto Me and drink"; "Come unto Me and I will give you rest."

So far as I know, the Jewish religon, and the Christian religion, as an outgrowth from it, are the only religions that have given a proper and essential place to the need and sacredness of physical rest. Irreligion in our modern life is doing much to abolish all the gain that the institution of the Sabbath brought into the world. For the most part in laws governing our industrial life, and in the conditions that trades unions have been able to establish, the principle of a rest day has become recognized, even among those who do not attach any sacredness to it. But to one who recognizes what the Sabbath has meant religiously and socially, the fact that the day has become primarily a day of pleasure-loving habits and ways, that can hardly be said to be restful or recreational, is appalling.

I was brought up in a home where Sabbath observance was strict—perhaps a little too strict. Yet Sunday was anything but a day of gloom. We went to church and Sunday school; we had music in the home; we had good reading; sometimes we had friends and visitors. But the day was restful. One began the week's work on Monday refreshed and rested; whereas many of the typical Sabbath-breakers of today are so used up from the strenuous exertions of Sunday outings that they are of little use on Mondays. When I contrast the quietude, peacefulness, and restfulness of the home that I knew with the toil, turmoil, and restlessness that Sunday means for masses of people today, I am tempted to stress, and to try to recover something of that old-time strictness.

Yet one recognibes that that old-time strictness was not always ideal. There were homes in which the Sabbath was a day of gloom; and there were habits and teachings that made it a burden instead of a joy. Much of the present irreligion concerning the Sabbath began in reaction against that strict, lifeless and joyless formalsim. In spit of Christ's plain words, there were those who wished to make man for the Sabbath, instead of the Sabbath for man. They were the modern successors of those ancient formalists who had so mistaken the nature and purpose of the day of rest that they forbade healing afflicted mortals on the Sabbath, or the doing of good, when it did not conform to their narrow ways.

We shall never in our modern and complex society recover the simple and strict Sabbath of primitive Jewish and Christian communities, but can we recover the spirit of the Sabbath?

That is the question, and upon its successful answer depend as great issues as any that face humanity in a war-torn world.

IN WASHINGTON

By James Thrasher
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Pass the opium, Pappy, and let's have a look at the general situation. What general situation? Why, the general situation as regards generals, but naturally.

Let's see now, how do we stand? General George C. Marshall is going to be removed as chief of staff and rendered completely powerless by being given command of all American and British forces.

With General Marshall thus shackled and shoved into an obscure corner, Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell will be made chief of staff and put to work reorganizing the war department along global and political lines. First order of business will be a world-wide WPA, which will guarantee a fourth term for President Roosevelt. (No need to fear those doubtful middle western states if he can carry Iraq, the Balkans and the Solid South.)

General Somervell will fire the five major generals who are chiefs of the quartermaster, engineer and transportation corps, the Ordnance department and the Chemical Warfare service. He will then replace them with civilian braintrusters, recruited from Justice Felix Frankfurter's old law classes at Harvard.

Well, there you have it. Bit confusing, isn't it? But that is the general situation as set forth by Representative Paul W. Shafer, Republican, Michigan, in a speech printed in the Congressional Record and later amplified by statements to a reporter and duly published.

Rumors Rife

It all started with the recent hue and cry about General Marshall being "kicked upstairs" by Mr. Churchill and/or the White House "palace guard" and/or somebody else.

The hue and cry is a little amazing in the first place, since the rumor of General Marshall's overseas transfer has been heard around Washington for six months, and was never considered as anything but a richly deserved promotion.

The contention that the British are gunning for the chief of staff because he wants to invade Europe from across the channel is equally surprising. Not only did Mr. Churchill spike that in his recent speech to Commons, but he asked General Marshall to accompany him and Anthony Eden to Africa (where they conferred with General Eisenhower) and to England, after the last Washington conference. Seems a queer way to deal with a general whose strategy you distrust and disagree with.

As for General Somervell, the villainous role assigned him by Representative Shafer is only the latest of at least three that he has been given recently. When he was WPA director in New York he was accused of communistic leanings. As chief of the Army Service Forces (his present post) he has been charged with being the head of a reactionary fascist army clique. Now he's cast as the menace in the fourth-term plot. In short, a versatile man.

Some of the five major generals whom General Somervell is supposed to fire, if Representative Shafer doesn't avert his appointment as chief of staff, are General Somervell's own choices. All have worked with and under him in ASF and, judging from the course of the war, have done a pretty good job. Major General C. P. Gress, chief of transportation, was a West Point classmate of General Somervell's, and remains one of his choicest friends.

Representative Shafer told the press that among those being considered as replacements for these five men are Dr. Eli Ginzberg and James P. Mitchell. He said he "understood" that both these civilians are graduates of Harvard Law school in the days when Justice Frankfurter taught there.

The fact is that Dr. Ginzberg never went to Harvard, and Mitchell has no college degree of any sort. The latter is director of industrial personnel (civilian) in the ASF, while Dr. Ginzberg is a statistical clerk in the ASF control division.

Representative Shafer bases all his charges on a "blueprint of a plan which presumably would streamline the war department, but in reality . . . convert that great department into a New Deal political organization."

It's no secret that a streamlining plan is in the offing, and has been worked on for some time. It has been talked about, too, but Representative Shafer is the first person to discover anything remotely resembling a "New Deal political organization."

Q—What two great tunnels pass under the Alps and connect Switzerland with Germany?

A—The Simplon and St. Gotthard.

Q—What large island would in all probability be used as a naval base in event of a campaign against the Japs in Burman and Thailand?

A—Ceylon.

Q—In heraldry, what is the meaning of "passant"?

A—The term, usually used in describing an animal appearing on a shield or crest, means that the figure is represented as in a walking position.

Q—Would you wear, play, or eat a passepied?

A—Play it; you could dance to it, too, as a passepied is a dance originating in Brittany, and the name also applies to the music written for the dance.

SON'S TESTIMONY CONVICTS FATHER

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 39-year-old housepainter has been found guilty of first degree murder, and the chief witness against him was his 10-year-old son who gave his dad a hug, stepped to the stand in district court and described how his father stuck a knife into his mother's throat.

The boy, Jess Bingham, ran to his father, Alfred Bingham, charged with the murder of his estranged wife, Mary, and put his arms around his neck and wept. But when he was called to the witness stand yesterday he gave his account of the slaying in a clear, unhalting voice.

"I saw daddy standing under a tree in front of mother's house," he related. "He had a long-bladed knife in his hand.

"I asked him if he was going to hurt mother. He said if he saw her with a man he would hurt her. Then mother came home and daddy jumped up quick. He looked glary.

"Daddy jumped toward mother with the knife in his hand. She screamed and stepped back. Then he stuck the knife in her neck and she fell into the gutter. I grabbed daddy's shirt but he hit me in the chest and ran away."

Bingham's defense was based on a plea of insanity. Judge S. J. Clendinning set October 20 for sentencing.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: Well, the elms on the Fifth avenue side Rockefeller Center came through summer alive, but that's about all can say for them. They didn't dev enough foliage to make them look trees, and I think the business planting sixty-foot trees, at $ each, along the avenue, is over. . Hard at work at the typewriter e in the morning, and self-consc about the noise I am making, Friend Frank Markey is asleep in next room, and he has told me I should get at least eight hours every night, as he does. Or, he stay in bed the eight hours and even if you can't sleep. . . . He's bably right, for he is full of ene during his waking hours, whil sleeping only five or six hours, apt to find myself staring into s about three o'clock in the aftern

The north end of the Param building is disfigured by thous of inscriptions done in lipstick. S are in large lettering, some in s and there is a minority of slo done in black, seemingly with cra or eyebrow pencil.

Most of the inscriptions, distin feminine in character, record the scriber's undying devotion to Fr Sinatra or Harry James.

Fair samples: "Frank Sinatra, I you!" "Give me Harry James!" "Fr I swoon when I hear you!" "Sin forever!"

About a third of the wall mess declare the various heroes to be dopes, pains in the neck, and so In each such case the writer demns one singer or band leade order to praise and pledge devotio another.

How did all this mural work c about?

Why, it's simple. Long lines of yo girls and boys have stood on this s walk, week in and week out, wai for admission to the Paramount t ter, around the corner. The girls their escorts have passed the time expressing themselves in golden p on the nearest wall.

I have never read an obituary torial to equal the one carried by Sun the day after the passing o editor, Frank M. O'Brien. Occup the first column and a quarter of editorial page, the editorial set f the virtues of a really great e without sentimentality or wringin hands, but with the pride that a newspaper feels in the loyal work distinguished employe.

This, it seems to me, is the hig praise one could honestly bestow "He never forgot a man know a keeper of his word; he neither got nor forgave a breaker of pro a betrayer of trusts."

O'Brien was an eminent editor has left behind him someone wo to write his epitaph.

When the Veterans of Foreign were meeting in New York I am myself by reading the names of home towns on their caps and g ing the occupation of the wearer. dom did I venture to attempt to fy my guesses, but it was fun, way.

Seeing Keene, N. H., on a cap, looking the man over, I decided he was a manufacturer, or prob a quarry operator.

So I asked him. He was William Croix, foreman. No, Keene isn't a ble town, he said, but it produces of bronze. He was formerly a res of Southbridge, Mass., and has a regular reader of this column many years.

I have a very encouraging cheerful card from Sergeant Ge Schafer, the cheerful philosopher has been immobilized in bed sinc was injured in the last war. write you a helpful note, too, if drop him a card at St. Joseph's pital, Reading, Pa.

ined up with the Republican bloc some Democrats from farm proing states. Chairman Steagall, nocrat, Alabama, bluntly asserted t no authority now exists for the ce of price administration to fix e ceilings below the cost of protion under the theory of making the difference through subsidies.

he arguments of those in favor of ting a subsidy ban into the CCC ension bill range from the assers that this method of fighting inion passes on the debt to the servmen, to the claim that consumers er were in a better position to their grocery bills than now.

teagall said that the committee bably would continue hearings on CCC measure for another week ten days. The agency is asking a new lease from January 1, 1943, uly 1, 1945, an increase in its borving authority from $3,000,000,000 $3,500,000,000, and permission to sell shable foods below parity prices.

'FLYING HIGH' IS GIVEN BIG OVATION

Climbing to a new peak in entertainment at Selman field, the Shreveport Kiwanis club production "Flying High" kept a packed audience at the post theater howling with glee and enthralled with glowing music and enchanting scenery last night.

Excellently staged, 'Flying High' lasted over two hours and was received with a tremendous ovation by the soldier audience at Selman field.

A blue-eyed winsome blonde, eight-year-old Sandra Stringer, a talented accordionist, who has four years of acting behind her despite her mere eight years, hit the jack pot of applause with a mirthful ditty, "Pistol Packing Mamma."

Divide dinto two parts the show boasted a cast of over 100 talented performers. The first part of "Flying High" was a variety of dances and comedy mixed with plenty slapstick from stooges in the audience, while the latter part of the production was an old fashioned and highly entertaining minstrel show. With Juage Cris Barnett playing the part of middle man in the streamlined version of ancient American stage favorite, the minstrel rolled through song, dancing and comedy to spontaneous acclaim of the responsive throng jamming the post theater.

grenadiers, once regarded as a crack combat unit.

(The Paris radio declared that the Allies now have 20 divisions in action in Italy, including fresh reinforcements for the Fifth army.)

As the fight for Rome and central Italy proceeds with German forces there commanded by Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel presumably is organizing his defenses for northern Italy.

This second line, which undoubtedly will be much tougher to crack than the Volturno-Termoli line, may be based on the natural barrier of a mountain line more than 30 miles wide and 6,000 feet high stretching from the Ligurian sea to the Adriatic.

'FLYING HIGH' IS GIVEN BIG OVATION

Climbing to a new peak in entertainment at Selman field, the Shreveport Kiwanis club production "Flying High" kept a packed audience at the post theater howling with glee and enthralled with glowing music and enchanting scenery last night.

Excellently staged, 'Flying High' lasted over two hours and was received with a tremendous ovation by the soldier audience at Selman field.

A blue-eyed winsome blonde, eight-year-old Sandra Stringer, a talented accordionist, who has four years of acting behind her despite her mere eight years, hit the jack pot of applause with a mirthful ditty, "Pistol Packing Mamma."

Divide dinto two parts the show boasted a cast of over 100 talented performers. The first part of "Flying High" was a variety of dances and comedy mixed with plenty slapstick from stooges in the audience, while the latter part of the production was an old fashioned and highly entertaining minstrel show. With Judge Cris Barnett playing the part of middle man in the streamlined version of ancient American stage favorite, the minstrel rolled through song, dancing and comedy to spontaneous acclaim of the responsive throng jamming the post theater.

TULANE ROLLS OVER RICE BY 33-TO-0 COUNT

GREENIES MUCH IMPROVED TEAM

Fast Backs And Hard-Hitting Line Prove Too Much For Owl Eleven

By J. B. Krueger

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Underrated Tulane smashed slow-moving Rice institute into its worst defeat of their 37-year rivalry today, scoring in every period for an upset 33-0 intersectional victory.

That perfect combination of smart, fast backs operating behind a hard-hitting line gave the Green Wave from New Orleans more than enough stuff to overrun the floundering Owls.

Statistics of the game told the story: Tulane's 18 first downs to Rice's five; 262 yards gained aground to Rice's net 23.

Among the many backs who shone for the Louisianans was a half-pint named James Shiver, 158 pounds, a Valdosta, Ga., boy who played freshman football for Auburn. He scored the first touchdown and was on hand for much of the later scoring.

Shiver started things rolling for Tulane by returning a 50-yard kick through most of the field to Rice's 16. He passed to Kenneth Tarzotti on the two. Joe Renfroe flipped to Shiver, who was over the goal waiting for the touchdown pass. Bill Jones, Tulane's steady star, made the kick.

In the second a lateral from Jones to Renfroe got another touchdown for the Greenies and Jones again kicked true.

Next came Rice's only threat of the day, a threat halted at the three-yard line by a line under the dogged leadership of Buddy Gatewood, who was an all-Southwest conference center for Baylor university last year. Three passes, with Buck Sheffield pitching, put the ball there, but four tries at the line crumbled.

Late in the third Tulane struck again, Gatewood taking a Rice pass and running about 15 yards for another score. Leonard Finley missed the kick.

The fourth produced two more for the Wave, which was running around and through the game but groggy Owls like kids around a maypole. Alex Athas teamed with Shiver to power and pass the ball from mid-

FARMERVILLE BOY 'MOST VALUABLE'

EWA, T. H., Oct. 9.—(Special)—Private First Class Robert U. Brasher, U. S. marine corps, has been elected the "most valuable player" by his teammates on the Marine Hawks baseball team here.

Private First Class Brasher, one-time crack outfielder and third baseman for the Farmerville, La., high school nine, was awarded the trophy by Colonel John S. E. Young, who praised him for "not only playing at third base, in the outfield and behind the bat—but playing all these positions well."

Young Brasher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brasher of Farmerville.

He was lead-off man and a .290 hitter with the leatherneck outfit all season. He began the season in the outfield but when the regular third baseman was benched with injuries he moved into the "hot corner." Later he worked behind the bat when the regular catcher was out with a broken finger.

Brasher played four years at third base and in the outfield for Farmerville High school and was looking forward to a baseball career in college before he decided to postpone his education to fight the Japs.

(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct 9.—Sergeant Houston A. Lawing tells me how interested and amused were the boys of the 514th Fighter Bomber squadron at learning that Frankie Sinkwich was available as a Detroit Lion because he was physically unfit for the Marine Corps' Officers' Candidate school.

"How can a man who is physically unqualified for Officers' Candidate school perform so well as a professional football player, or any kind of a football player, for that matter?" asks Sergeant Lawing, the former Greensboro sports editor.

"I have seen many graduates of OCS who were physical wrecks compared to the Sinkwich who the past two falls took his place among the great all-around backs."

Sergeant Lawing and the boys of the 514th Fighter Bomber squadron are not the only ones puzzled. They undoubtedly are beginning to realize the truth of the saying: "If you want to find something wrong with you, just consult any service examining physician."

Sinkwich, Georgia's will-o'-the-wisp, is not the first football player to be rejected. Tuffy Leemans of the New York Giants, tougher than a keg of nails, had a bad ear, or something, and Ken Strong, one of the top backs of all-time, couldn't get in any branch of the armed forces on a pass, although he is still capable of throwing one.

Army refused admittance to Al Blozis, the record-holding shotputter of Georgetown and the Giants; John Adams, Notre Dame tackle; and Howie Schultz, new Brooklyn first baseman, because they were too big. I would think it would be worth while to have oversize equipment made for men like them. Why, Blozis could put cannonballs. He wouldn't have to shoot them.

While turning away Blozis, Adams and Schultz, the army took Jockey Irving Anderson and yanked little Basil James off Alsab's back.

Young Tami Mauriello was fresh from two fights with Jimmy Bivins when the army found something wrong with his heel. Yet the army gladly accepted the 38-year-old Red Ruffing, whose toes were blown off in a mine explosion.

Greg Rice couldn't get in anything because he had a triple hernia, finally crashed the merchant marine.

Beau Jack is not in uniform because he is illiterate. What do they want the golden bootblack to do? Lecture the Japs on Shakespeare?

George McQuinn of the Browns was rejected because of arthritis, yet Jim Braddock, who was suffering from it when he won the heavyweight championship and still is, was commissioned by the transportation corps.

Junior Schoendienst, Rochester's remarkable 20-year-old shortstop, is 4F because he incurred a sight defect in a war plant explosion. Red Schoendienst can't see to such an extent that he led International league hitters with .340.

Legions of professional ball players, capable of playing 154-game schedules, have been excused for everything from housemaid's knee to dandruff.

Well, it's nice to know that we have a hardy lot of 4Fs backing up the line.

Irish Hand Wolverines Their Worst Defeat On Gridiron In Six Years

ANN ARBOR, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Roaring to the heights reached by any of Notre Dames' greatest teams, the Fighting Irish today battered Michigan's touted Wolverines, 35-12, for their worst defeat in six years before a record crowd of 86,000 at the vast Michigan stadium.

History was dramatically repeated as Creighton Miller streaked to two of five Irish touchdowns to match the performance of his father, the immortal Harry (Red) Miller, in Notre Dames' only other win over Michigan in 11 games. That was 34 years ago in 1909 when the Fighting Irish last invaded Ann Arbor.

Frank Leahy's "T" formation, sparked by Angelo Bertelli, Miller and stabbing Jim Mello, slashed the Wolverines to ribbons, with the Irish scoring in all but an error-shortened fourth period. The closing quarter only went seven minutes by agreement of the coaches after the time clock went awry in a 23-minute third quarter.

The Irish tallied once in the opening period and twice each in the second and third quarters, with Bertelli converting after all five scores to extend his place-kicking record to 14 out of 15.

Michigan's first touchdown came in the second period, the handiwork of big Bill Daley, who was a gallant figure even in the Wolverines' rout. The second Michigan score came on the last play of the game, a 13-yard pass from Elroy Hirsch to Captain Paul White. Tackle Mervin Pregulman, with a previous record of 12 conversions in 13 tries, missed both point attempts.

Bertelli, the Irish sling-shot, made good on five of eight passes, covering 70 yards for a touchdown and another 31 yards to set up another score.

After six minutes of play Irish thunder first rumbled from Notre Dame's 34. Miller popped through Michigan's right side, streaked into the clear and outmaneuvered the Wolverine secondary in a 66-yard touchdown run.

Michigan hung on by scoring at the outset of the second period. Daley intercepted Bertelli's pass on his 28, returned to midfield, then broke loose for 23, passed to Art Renner on the Irish four, and finally bulled across.

One minute later the Irish stabbed for another score. Freshman Freddie Earley sprinted 11 to Notre Dame's 35. Two plays lost to the Irish 30 and then Bertelli winged a long toss to Earley who was wide open on Michigan's 45 and he galloped easily to pay dirt.

After Miller lost a 58-yard touchdown run when a teammate was caught holding, the Irish charged again with Bertelli's passes and Mello's plunges carrying to the one. Mello smashed over from there.

In the third period Julius Rykovich lugged a punt 42 yards to Michigan's 31 and after cracks at the line by Mello and Miller, Bertelli slipped across from the two. The last Irish touchdown was on a 17-yard pass from Bertelli to Miller.

PITT 20; WEST VIRGINIA 0

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Clark Shaughnessy's first University of Pittsburgh football team demonstrated today that it can click behind the popular "T" formation in its own class by turning back a scrappy West Virginia university eleven, 20 to 0, before a crowd of 12,000. It was the Panthers' first victory of the season.

The Panthers, sparked by a couple of fuzz-faced 17-year-old kids in Quarterback Joe Mocha and Tommy Kalmanir struck for their first touchdown in the second quarter and then made the triumph a convincing one in the last period with two more scores.

In addition the Panthers had another 45-yard touchdown run nullified in the last period by a clipping penalty and were threatening again from the Mountaineer 14 at the game whistle.

CARDINALS HOPE TO SQUARE COUNT

Choice Of Russo By Yanks Is Surprise; Lanier Is Ready To Go

By Judson Bailey

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Two southpaws, Max Lanier and Marius Russo, were named definitely today to the pitching assignments for the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees tomorrow when the world series is resumed at Sportsman's park.

Russo's selection by Manager Joe McCarthy surprised many of the observers who expect to be in the crowd of 34,000 at the fourth installment of baseball's annual classic and it surprised Manager Billy Southworth of the Cardinals, too.

McCarthy mentioned Russo as his likely choice after the teams completed their three-game stand in Yankee stadium, but in the two open days since that time there has been almost constant speculation over the possibility of his switching to Spud Chandler, who beat Lanier in the first game of the series.

Before the two teams worked out on the series scene today Southworth said he doubted very much that the Yankees would pitch a lefthander. Essentially the Cardinals are a right-handed hitting ball club and Russo has been bothered for two years by a sore arm which reduced his record this season to five victories and ten defeats.

But after Russo was named, Southworth declared, "That's okay with us, we don't care whom they pitch." He said there would be no change whatever in the St. Louis batting order, which includes three lefthanded batters, Stan Musial, Harry Walker and Ray Sanders.

McCarthy, reticent as ever, gave no explanation of his reason for choosing Russo, but it appeared that Chandler needed another day of rest. He won 20 games and lost four during the regular season when he had five or six days between assignments. McCarthy probably felt that his ace, who had some difficulty trumping the Cards in New York, might be beaten if hurried back for another appearance.

Holding Chandler until Monday's game means that he may make only two starts even if the series goes the full seven games.

Russo, despite his record, has convinced McCarthy he has recovered from his arm ailment, which was caused by a sinus condition. In his tests during September the young southpaw pitched three good games in succession and in one of them shut out the righthanded-hitting Detroit Tigers on four blows.

There was no similar question about the Cardinals opening with Lanier tomorrow, but some doubts about his effectiveness came up when word got around that the stocky southpaw was suffering from a cold.

However, Lanier said he felt fine and was ready to go. He was present at the practice today, but did not get into uniform.

In the first game of the series at New York, he pitched an able rebuttal to Chandler, allowing six hits and striking out seven batters in the seven innings he worked, but he lost the game through his own fielding error at first base and a wild pitch.

RICHMOND 16; VIRGINIA 7

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct 9.—(AP)—The University of Richmond won its first football game in history from the University of Virginia today, 16 to 7, before a homecoming crowd of 4,500.

The heavier Spider team, with a letter man or a nevy transfer who was a varsity man at some other school in every position, scored in the first and second periods, protected its margin in a hectic third period and added a field goal in the final stanza. Virginia registered seven points on a brilliant 49-yard run in the first period by Halfback Bruce Bailey.

Jackie Freeman, William and Mary star in 1942, contributed materially to the Spider victory with a great punting performance.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—When Harvard let down the bars for a football game with Boston college, it just about wiped out hopes for a Yale-Harvard war bond game this fall. . . . Yale was holding open November 20 for such a game with the idea that a couple more good games by the Crimson "informals"—coupled with the Elis' terrible showing—might make Harvard change its mind about not playing this year but Harvard put B. C. in that date. . . . Ruby Hunter, described by the WMCA press department as "an attractive blonde" will act as spotter for the broadcasts of Columbia football games this fall. . . . That reverses the usual procedure of trying to spot an attractive blonde at the game. . . . Harry Balogh has retired as Madison Square garden fight announcer. Taking his place is John Kobb, who delivers his speeches without corn.

Bench Banter

A local baseball scribe, seeing a lineup of his colleagues in the cool recess of the Cardinals' dugout before Thursday's World Series game while the athletes were sweating through practice, stuck his head inside and asked: "Are these the fellows that the Yanks have to be afraid of?" . . . One of the more critical members of the profession eyed him coldly and replied: "Sometimes."

Shorts And Shells

Leo Houck, old-time middleweight who coaches the Penn State boxing team, polled the highest vote among the Democratic aspirants for a post on the Lancaster county board of county commissioners in the recent primary election. . . . Bob Gantt has scored 17 points for Duke this fall without ever being offically in the game. With three broken bones in his right hand, Gantt can't play regularly, but turns up after every touchdown to boot the extra point. . . . Luis Rodriguez Olmo, Puerto Rico's gift to the Dodgers, is due for a big welcome when he gets home to Caguas. Citizens of his native town are planning a huge celebration, featured by a baseball game. Olmo will toss out the first ball—without even borrowing Judge Landis' hat for the occasion.

At the next meeting of the Notre Dame club of New York A. Jordanoff will talk about "Visual Training and its Application to Post-War World Construction." . . . We suppose that means how to spot a good high school half back and what to do about it when you see him.

Unanswered Question

Note to St. Louis fans: After you see him in the World Series tomorrow, will you decide whether that's a stance Nick Etten takes at the plate—or a sitz?

THINKS TEXAS LEAGUE TO FUNCTION NEXT SEASON

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—John Reeves, who as secretary of the Fort Worth Cats is interested more than somewhat in reviving the prostrate Texas league, believes the circuit will be in operation next spring.

Texas league owners and franchise representatives will meet in Dallas November 13 to discuss possibilities of hauling the Texas league to its feet, and Reeves believes four teams will be ready to go with two new cities added to make up a six-club one-year program.

The four teams ready to operate, Reeves said, are Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, Dallas and Shreveport.

There is a strong possibility, he said, that Wichita, Kans., and either Wichita Falls, Tex., or Topeka, Kans., will be added.

However, he said, if the league finds transportation more favorable to the south, Austin and Corpus Christi may be interested.

Such plans would omit four old Texas league standbys: Houston, San Antonio, Beaumont and Tulsa—all chain clubs and all leaders in the move to abandon play last February.

YALE 20; COLUMBIA 7

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Columbia may be the gem of the ocean but it wasn't even a dime trinket to the Yale football team today as the Elis exploded in the second period for a 20-to-7 triumph before 20,000 spectators.

Yale never took the blankets off Tim Hoopes, its ace ball carrier, but his absence was little consolation for Columbia as Ray Scussel, a scat-back naval trainee from the University of Connecticut, romped in his stead.

YOUNGEST CARD

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Stan Musial, besides being the Cardinals' leading hitter this year, is their youngest. He will be 23 on Nov. 21. He was born in Donora, Pa., where he still lives.

NAVY EDGES OUT DUKE, 14 TO 13

Bitter Contest Knocks Blue Devils From Undefeated Grid Ranks

BALTIMORE STADIUM, Oct. 9.—(AP)—In a bitterly contested, rough and tumble battle Navy's middies barely managed to drop Duke's Blue Devils from the undefeated class tonight, 14 to 13, as Bob Gantt, an expert place kicker, missed the tying point with two minutes left to play after the Durham eleven had rallied to push over a final touchdown.

All season long the great Blue Devil end, who has missed play because of a broken hand, had kicked extra points like a sharpshooter, his first conversion tonight making it 18 of 20 this year.

Then, with time running out and obviously neither of the tired teams able to score again, he substituted. Fifty-six thousand fans sat spellbound as the ball went back, the Navy line surged forward and Gantt booted. The ball sailed to the left of the uprights, and there went the ball game.

The fortunes of battle between these two among the nation's top-flight elevens eddied back and forth like the tide. The Dukesmen drew first blood in the initial period as Preston smashed through the sailor line to smother little Hal Hamberg's attempted punt from behind the goal. Pat fell on the oval for a touchdown and Gantt made the point to put the Blue Devils ahead, 7 to 0.

Somehow that seemed to arouse the ire of the middies, who struck back savagely as soon as the second period began. Bobby Jenkins raced a Duke punt back 15 yards to his 47, and the sailors were under way. Jenkins coolly shot one to Jim Pettit, who gathered it in on the Blue Devil 45 and slipped away to the 34. Jenkins heaved another that Roe Johnston gathered in on the 22, and then the former Alabama back passed to Hillis Hume on the five. Hamberg came back in and his quick flat toss to Hume on the three enabled the Navy back to scamper over. Vic Finos placekicked the point, and it was tied up.

With about three minutes of the half to play, the midshipmen struck again with determination, beginning a 77-yard march to the eventual victory touchdown as Bill Crawley heaved one to Johnston on the Navy 35, and Johnston lateralled sharply to Joe Sullivan, who got up to the 44. Hamberg, Ben Martin and Sullivan collaborated on the ground to make a first down on the Duke 38. On a startling reverse Hamberg handed the ball to Martin, who swept left end to the 22 with the clock showing 25 seconds left of the half.

With 10 seconds left of the half to play, Sullivan went over standing from the five. Finos placekicked the conversion, and Navy was out in front, 14-7.

The play was bitter and rough throughout the scoreless third period, and several players went to the sidelines with injuries and both teams drew several penalties for unnecessary roughness.

Howie Hartley, Duke sub back, entered the game in the fourth quarter and almost single-handed led the Blue Devils on a 63-yard drive to payoff territory, winding up by dishing around right end from the 14-yard line for the tally.

Al Channell, Ben Chase, Ed Sprinkle and Don Whitmire stamped themselves as Navy "greats." Preston, Bill McCain and Ben Cittadino were outstanding for Duke.

S. L. I. TO BEGIN GRID SEASON FRIDAY

LAFAYETTE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana institute's star-studded V-12 football team will open its 1943 season here next Friday night against the Fort Benning, Ga., army eleven, R. L. Browne, S. L. I. athletic director, announced today.

Browne said the S. L. I.-Fort Benning clash will replace an intrasquad all-star game originally scheduled for that date. Fort Benning was scheduled in an effort to speed preparations for S. L. I.'s big game with Southwestern university of Georgetown, Tex., at Houston October 23.

S. L. I., along with five other state schools, was given permission to compete in intercollegiate athletics by the state board of education last Wednesday and players have been working out only a week. The Bulldogs boast potentially one of the nation's strongest teams, with standout players from Rice, L. S. U., Tulsa and other schools dotting the line-up.

Fort Benning will bring a squad of 45 to S. L. I.'s McNaspy stadium Friday. Spearhead of the army attack will be Bob Waterfield, All-American participant for U. C. L. A. in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day. George Poeschner, brilliant pass receiver for Frankie Sinkwich at Georgia last fall, will also be in the Fort Benning line-up, as will Sulcer Harris, formerly of L. S. U.

The Georgia soldiers defeated South Carolina, 13 to 7, in their last start.

SEAHAWKS 25; IOWA 0

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Iowa Seahawks, Uncle Sam's embryo fliers, gave a striking demonstration of their aerial adroitness today by rolling up a 25-to-0 victory over Iowa, their campus football rivals, before a crowd of 8,000.

The Seahawks counted three of their four touchdowns by brilliant pass plays. Their final score followed a 55-yard dash by Jimmy Smith, former Illinois star, to the five-yard line.

Tops of the touchdown plays came in the second period when Frank Maznicki, once of the Chicago Bears, tossed a pass to Leonard Heinz, who ran 25 yards to wind up a 59-yard play

GEORGIA TECH BEATS PRE-FLIGHT ELEVEN

ATLANTA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Georgia Tech knew all the answers today, including some that weren't in the book, and while 12,000 fans looked on the Engineers gave the navy's Georgia pre-flight team a fancy football lesson and a fancy licking, 35-7.

Tech's great line, which crumbled under the sledge hammers of Notre Oame a week ago, withstood a navy version of the "T" formation, and opened the way for relays of Tech backs to race up and down Grant field.

Roughest, toughest citizen in the game was Wisconsin's former star, Pat Harder. Assigned to the pre-flight school only yesterday as a marine corps gunnery instructor, he was easily the standout defensive man on the field.

Tech scored six minutes after the kickoff when Eddie Prokop of Cleveland whipped a 39-yard pass to Wingback Mickey Logan, who dashed 19 yards unmolested for a touchdown.

Prokop later set up Tech's second touchdown with a 30-yard run to navy's 2. The Skycrackers gained momentary possession by intercepting a pass in the end zone, but a few seconds later Tech blocked Carl Nolte's punt and the ball rolled to the goal line. Maurice Furchgott, substitute guard, grabbed the ball and stepped over to score.

Two slashing plays which ate up 47 yards scored for Tech early in the third quarter. Prokop broke away for 25, and then big Ed Scharfswerdt streaked off tackle for the payoff. Later in the same period Tech went 76 yards in all-out assault which culminated in a 13-yard dash by Logan on the ancient Statue of Liberty play.

TULANE ROLLS OVER RICE BY 33-TO-0 COUNT

GREENIES MUCH IMPROVED TEAM

Fast Backs And Hard-Hitting Line Prove Too Much For Owl Eleven

By J. B. Krueger

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Underrated Tulane smashed slow-moving Rice institute into its worst defeat of their 37-year rivalry today, scoring in every period for an upset 33-0 intersectional victory.

That perfect combination of smart, fast backs operating behind a hard-hitting line gave the Green Wave from New Orleans more than enough stuff to overrun the floundering Owls.

Statistics of the game told the story: Tulane's 18 first downs to Rice's five; 262 yards gained aground to Rice's net 23.

Among the many backs who shone for the Louisianans was a half-pint named James Shiver, 158 pounds, a Valdosta, Ga., boy who played freshman football for Auburn. He scored the first touchdown and was on hand for much of the later scoring.

Shiver started things rolling for Tulane by returning a 50-yard kick through most of the field to Rice's 16. He passed to Kenneth Tarzotti on the two. Joe Renfroe flipped to Shiver, who was over the goal waiting for the touchdown pass. Bill Jones, Tulane's steady star, made the kick.

In the second a lateral from Jones to Renfroe got another touchdown for the Greenies and Jones again kicked true.

Next came Rice's only threat of the day, a threat halted at the three-yard line by a line under the dogged leadership of Buddy Gatewood, who was an all-Southwest conference center for Baylor university last year. Three passes, with Buck Sheffield pitching, put the ball there, but four tries at the line crumbled.

Late in the third Tulane struck again, Gatewood taking a Rice pass and running about 15 yards for another score. Leonard Finley missed the kick.

The fourth produced two more for the Wave, which was running around and through the game but groggy Owls like kids around a maypole. Alex Athas teamed with Shiver to power and pass the ball from mid-

FARMERVILLE BOY 'MOST VALUABLE'

EWA, T. H., Oct. 9.—(Special)—Private First Class Robert U. Brasher, U. S. marine corps, has been elected the "most valuable player" by his teammates on the Marine Hawks baseball team here.

Private First Class Brasher, one-time crack outfielder and third baseman for the Farmerville, La., high school nine, was awarded the trophy by Colonel John S. E. Young, who praised him for "not only playing at third base, in the outfield and behind the bat—but playing all these positions well."

Young Brasher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brasher of Farmerville.

He was lead-off man and a .290 hitter with the leatherneck outfit all season. He began the season in the outfield but when the regular third baseman was benched with injuries he moved into the "hot corner." Later he worked behind the bat when the regular catcher was out with a broken finger.

Brasher played four years at third base and in the outfield for Farmerville High school and was looking forward to a baseball career in college before he decided to postpone his education to fight the Japs.

NOTRE DAME ATTACK BLASTS MICHIGAN BY 35-12 SCORE

Irish Hand Wolverines Their Worst Defeat On Gridiron In Six Years

ANN ARBOR, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Roaring to the heights reached by any of Notre Dames' greatest teams, the Fighting Irish today battered Michigan's touted Wolverines, 35-12, for their worst defeat in six years before a record crowd of 86,000 at the vast Michigan stadium.

History was dramatically repeated as Creighton Miller streaked to two of five Irish touchdowns to match the performance of his father, the immortal Harry (Red) Miller, in Notre Dames' only other win over Michigan in 11 games. That was 34 years ago in 1909 when the Fighting Irish last invaded Ann Arbor.

Frank Leahy's "T" formation, sparked by Angelo Bertelli, Miller and stabbing Jim Mello, slashed the Wolverines to ribbons, with the Irish scoring in all but an error-shortened fourth period. The closing quarter only went seven minutes by agreement of the coaches after the time clock went awry in a 23-minute third quarter.

The Irish tallied once in the opening period and twice each in the second and third quarters, with Bertelli converting after all five scores to extend his place-kicking record to 14 out of 15.

Michigan's first touchdown came in the second period, the handiwork of big Bill Daley, who was a gallant figure even in the Wolverines' rout. The second Michigan score came on the last play of the game, a 13-yard pass from Elroy Hirsch to Captain Paul White. Tackle Mervin Pregulman, with a previous record of 12 conversions in 13 tries, missed both point attempts.

Bertelli, the Irish sling-shot, made good on five of eight passes, covering 70 yards for a touchdown and another 31 yards to set up another score.

After six minutes of play Irish thunder first rumbled from Notre Dame's 34. Miller popped through Michigan's right side, streaked into the clear and outmaneuvered the Wolverine secondary in a 66-yard touchdown run.

Michigan hung on by scoring at the outset of the second period. Daley intercepted Bertelli's pass on his 28, returned to midfield, then broke loose for 23, passed to Art Renner on the Irish four, and finally bulled across.

One minute later the Irish stabbed for another score. Freshman Freddie Earley sprinted 11 to Notre Dame's 35. Two plays lost to the Irish 30 and then Bertelli winged a long toss to Earley who was wide open on Michigan's 45 and he galloped easily to pay dirt.

After Miller lost a 58-yard touchdown run when a teammate was caught holding, the Irish charged again with Bertelli's passes and Mello's plunges carrying to the one. Mello smashed over from there.

In the third period Julius Rykovich lugged a punt 42 yards to Michigan's 31 and after cracks at the line by Mello and Miller, Bertelli slipped across from the two. The last Irish touchdown was on a 17-yard pass from Bertelli to Miller.

PITT 20; WEST VIRGINIA 0

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Clark Shaughnessy's first University of Pittsburgh football team demonstrated today that it can click behind the popular "T" formation in its own class by turning back a scrappy West Virginia university eleven, 20 to 0, before a crowd of 12,000. It was the Panthers' first victory of the season.

The Panthers, sparked by a couple of fuzz-faced 17-year-old kids in Quarterback Joe Mocha and Tommy Kalmanir struck for their first touchdown in the second quarter and then made the triumph a convincing one in the last period with two more scores.

In addition the Panthers had another 45-yard touchdown run nullified in the last period by a clipping penalty and were threatening again from the Mountaineer 14 at the game whistle.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct 9.—Sergeant Houston A. Lawing tells me how interested and amused were the boys of the 514th Fighter Bomber squadron at learning that Frankie Sinkwich was available as a Detroit Lion because he was physically unfit for the Marine Corps' Officers' Candidate school.

"How can a man who is physically unqualified for Officers' Candidate school perform so well as a professional football player, or any kind of a football player, for that matter?" asks Sergeant Lawing, the former Greensboro sports editor.

"I have seen many graduates of OCS who were physical wrecks compared to the Sinkwich who the past two falls took his place among the great all-around backs."

Sergeant Lawing and the boys of the 514th Fighter Bomber squadron are not the only ones puzzled. They undoubtedly are beginning to realize the truth of the saying: "If you want to find something wrong with you, just consult any service examining physician."

Sinkwich, Georgia's will-o'-the-wisp, is not the first football player to be rejected. Tuffy Leemans of the New York Giants, tougher than a keg of nails, had a bad ear, or something, and Ken Strong, one of the top backs of all-time, couldn't get in any branch of the armed forces on a pass, although he is still capable of throwing one.

Army refused admittance to Al Blozis, the record-holding shotputter of Georgetown and the Giants; John Adams, Notre Dame tackle; and Howie Schultz, new Brooklyn first baseman, because they were too big. I would think it would be worth while to have oversize equipment made for men like them. Why, Blozis could put cannonballs. He wouldn't have to shoot them.

While turning away Blozis, Adams and Schultz, the army took Jockey Irving Anderson and yanked little Basil James off Alsab's back.

Young Tami Mauriello was fresh from two fights with Jimmy Bivins when the army found something wrong with his heel. Yet the army gladly accepted the 38-year-old Red Ruffing, whose toes were blown off in a mine explosion.

Greg Rice couldn't get in anything because he had a triple hernia, finally crashed the merchant marine.

Beau Jack is not in uniform because he is illiterate. What do they want the golden bootblack to do? Lecture the Japs on Shakespeare?

George McQuinn of the Browns was rejected because of arthritis, yet Jim Braddock, who was suffering from it when he won the heavyweight championship and still is, was commissioned by the transportation corps.

Junior Schoendienst, Rochester's remarkable 20-year-old shortstop, is 4F because he incurred a sight defect in a war plant explosion. Red Schoendienst can't see to such an extent that he led International league hitters with .340.

Legions of professional ball players, capable of playing 154-game schedules, have been excused for everything from housemaid's knee to dandruff.

Well, it's nice to know that we have a hardy lot of 4Fs backing up the line.

CARDINALS HOPE TO SQUARE COUNT

Choice Of Russo By Yanks Is Surprise; Lanier Is Ready To Go

By Judson Bailey

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Two southpaws, Max Lanier and Marius Russo, were named definitely today to the pitching assignments for the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees tomorrow when the world series is resumed at Sportsman's park.

Russo's selection by Manager Joe McCarthy surprised many of the observers who expect to be in the crowd of 34,000 at the fourth installment of baseball's annual classic and it surprised Manager Billy Southworth of the Cardinals, too.

McCarthy mentioned Russo as his likely choice after the teams completed their three-game stand in Yankee stadium, but in the two open days since that time there has been almost constant speculation over the possibility of his switching to Spud Chandler, who beat Lanier in the first game of the series.

Before the two teams worked out on the series scene today Southworth said he doubted very much that the Yankees would pitch a lefthander. Essentially the Cardinals are a righthanded hitting ball club and Russo has been bothered for two years by a sore arm which reduced his record this season to five victories and ten defeats.

But after Russo was named, Southworth declared, "That's okay with us, we don't care whom they pitch." He said there would be no change whatever in the St. Louis batting order, which includes three lefthanded batters, Stan Musial, Harry Walker and Ray Sanders.

McCarthy, reticent as ever, gave no explanation of his reason for choosing Russo, but it appeared that Chandler needed another day of rest. He won 20 games and lost four during the regular season when he had five or six days between assignments. McCarthy probably felt that his ace, who had some difficulty trumping the Cards in New York, might be beaten if hurried back for another appearance.

Holding Chandler until Monday's game means that he may make only two starts even if the series goes the full seven games.

Russo, despite his record, has convinced McCarthy he has recovered from his arm ailment, which was caused by a sinus condition. In his tests during September the young southpaw pitched three good games in succession and in one of them shut out the righthanded-hitting Detroit Tigers on four blows.

There was no similar question about the Cardinals opening with Lanier tomorrow, but some doubts about his effectiveness came up when word got around that the stocky southpaw was suffering from a cold.

However, Lanier said he felt fine and was ready to go. He was present at the practice today, but did not get into uniform.

In the first game of the series at New York, he pitched an able rebuttal to Chandler, allowing six hits and striking out seven batters in the seven innings he worked, but he lost the game through his own fielding error at first base and a wild pitch.

RICHMOND 16; VIRGINIA 7

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct 9.—(AP)—The University of Richmond won its first football game in history from the University of Virginia today, 16 to 7, before a homecoming crowd of 4,500.

The heavier Spider team, with a letter man or a nevy transfer who was a varsity man at some other school in every position, scored in the first and second periods, protected its margin in a hectic third period and added a field goal in the final stanza. Virginia registered seven points on a brilliant 49-yard run in the first period by Halfback Bruce Bailey.

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—When Harvard let down the bars for a football game with Boston college, it just about wiped out hopes for a Yale-Harvard war bond game this fall. . . . Yale was holding open November 20 for such a game with the idea that a couple more good games by the Crimson "informals"—coupled with the Elis' terrible showing—might make Harvard change its mind about not playing this year but Harvard put B. That reverses the usual procedure of trying to spot an attractive blonde at the game. . . . Harry Balogh has retired as Madison Square garden fight announcer. Taking his place is John Kobb, who delivers his speeches without corn.

A local baseball scribe, seeing a lineup of his colleagues in the cool recess of the Cardinals' dugout before Thursday's World Series game while the athletes were sweating through practice, stuck his head inside and asked: "Are these the fellows that the Yanks have to be afraid of?" . . . One of the more critical members of the profession eyed him coldly and replied: "Sometimes."

With three broken bones in his right hand, Gantt can't play regularly, but turns up after every touchdown to boot the extra point. . . . THINKS TEXAS LEAGUE TO FUNCTION NEXT SEASON

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—John Reeves, who as secretary of the Fort Worth Cats is interested more than somewhat in reviving the prostrate Texas league, believes the circuit will be in operation next spring.

Texas league owners and franchise representatives will meet in Dallas November 13 to discuss possibilities of hauling the Texas league to its feet, and Reeves believes four teams will be ready to go with two new cities added to make up a six-club one-year program.

The four teams ready to operate, Reeves said, are Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, Dallas and Shreveport.

There is a strong possibility, he said, that Wichita, Kans., and either Wichita Falls, Tex., or Topeka, Kans., will be added.

However, he said, if the league finds transportation more favorable to the south, Austin and Corpus Christi may be interested.

Such plans would omit four old Texas league standbys: Houston, San Antonio, Beaumont and Tulsa—all chain clubs and all leaders in the move to abandon play last February.

YALE 20; COLUMBIA 7

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Columbia may be the gem of the ocean but it wasn't even a dime trinket to the Yale football team today as the Elis exploded in the second period for a 20-to-7 triumph before 20,000 spectators.

Yale never took the blankets off Tim Hoopes, its ace ball carrier, but his absence was little consolation for Columbia as Ray Scussel, a scat-back naval trainee from the University of Connecticut, romped in his stead.

YOUNGEST CARD

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Stan Musial, besides being the Cardinals' leading hitter this year, is their youngest. He will be 23 on Nov. 21. He was born in Donora, Pa., where he still lives.

NAVY EDGES OUT DUKE, 14 TO 13

Bitter Contest Knocks Blue Devils From Undefeated Grid Ranks

BALTIMORE STADIUM, Oct. 9.—(AP)—In a bitterly contested, rough and tumble battle Navy's middies barely managed to drop Duke's Blue Devils from the undefeated class tonight, 14 to 13, as Bob Gantt, an expert place kicker, missed the tying point with two minutes left to play after the Durham eleven had rallied to push over a final touchdown.

All season long the great Blue Devil end, who has missed play because of a broken hand, had kicked extra points like a sharpshooter, his first conversion tonight making it 18 of 20 this year.

Then, with time running out and obviously neither of the tired teams able to score again, he substituted. Fifty-six thousand fans sat spellbound as the ball went back, the Navy line surged forward and Gantt booted. The ball sailed to the left of the uprights, and there went the ball game.

The fortunes of battle between these two among the nation's top-flight elevens eddied back and forth like the tide. The Dukesmen drew first blood in the initial period as Preston smashed through the sailor line to smother little Hal Hamberg's attempted punt from behind the goal. Pat fell on the oval for a touchdown and Gantt made the point to put the Blue Devils ahead, 7 to 0.

Somehow that seemed to arouse the ire of the middies, who struck back savagely as soon as the second period began. Bobby Jenkins raced a Duke punt back 15 yards to his 47, and the sailors were under way. Jenkins coolly shot one to Jim Pettit, who gathered it in on the Blue Devil 45 and slipped away to the 34. Jenkins heaved another that Roe Johnston gathered in on the 22, and then the former Alabama back passed to Hillis Hume on the five. Hamberg came back in and his quick flat toss to Hume on the three enabled the Navy back to scamper over. Vic Finos placekicked the point, and it was tied up.

With about three minutes of the half to play, the midshipmen struck again with determination, beginning a 77-yard march to the eventual victory touchdown as Bill Crawley heaved one to Johnston on the Navy 35, and Johnston lateralled sharply to Joe Sullivan, who got up to the 44. Hamberg, Ben Martin and Sullivan collaborated on the ground to make a first down on the Duke 38. On a startling reverse Hamberg handed the ball to Martin, who swept left end to the 22 with the clock showing 25 seconds left of the half.

With 10 seconds left of the half to play, Sullivan went over standing from the five. Finos placekicked the conversion, and Navy was out in front, 14-7.

The play was bitter and rough throughout the scoreless third period, and several players went to the sidelines with injuries and both teams drew several penalties for unnecessary roughness.

Howie Hartley, Duke sub back, entered the game in the fourth quarter and almost single-handed led the Blue Devils on a 63-yard drive to payoff territory, winding up by dishing around right end from the 14-yard line for the tally.

Al Channell, Ben Chase, Ed Sprinkle and Don Whitmire stamped themselves as Navy "greats." Preston, Bill McCain and Ben Cittadino were outstanding for Duke.

S. L. I. TO BEGIN GRID SEASON FRIDAY

LAFAYETTE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana institute's star-studded V-12 football team will open its 1943 season here next Friday night against the Fort Benning, Ga., army eleven, R. L. Browne, S. L. I. athletic director, announced today.

Browne said the S. L. I.-Fort Benning clash will replace an intrasquad all-star game originally scheduled for that date. Fort Benning was scheduled in an effort to speed preparations for S. L. I.'s big game with Southwestern university of Georgetown, Tex., at Houston October 23.

S. L. I., along with five other state schools, was given permission to compete in intercollegiate athletics by the state board of education last Wednesday and players have been working out only a week. The Bulldogs boast potentially one of the nation's strongest teams, with standout players from Rice, L. S. U., Tulsa and other schools dotting the line-up.

Fort Benning will bring a squad of 45 to S. L. I.'s McNaspy stadium Friday. Spearhead of the army attack will be Bob Waterfield, All-American participant for U. C. L. A. in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day. George Poeschner, brilliant pass receiver for Frankie Sinkwich at Georgia last fall, will also be in the Fort Benning line-up, as will Sulcer Harris, formerly of L. S. U.

SEAHAWKS 25; IOWA 0

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Iowa Seahawks, Uncle Sam's embryo fliers, gave a striking demonstration of their aerial adroitness today by rolling up a 25-to-0 victory over Iowa, their campus football rivals, before a crowd of 8,000.

The Seahawks counted three of their four touchdowns by brilliant pass plays. Their final score followed a 55-yard dash by Jimmy Smith, former Illinois star, to the five-yard line.

Tops of the touchdown plays came in the second period when Frank Maznicki, once of the Chicago Bears, tossed a pass to Leonard Heinz, who ran 25 yards to wind up a 59-yard play.

GEORGIA TECH BEATS PRE-FLIGHT ELEVEN

ATLANTA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Georgia Tech knew all the answers today, including some that weren't in the book, and while 12,000 fans looked on the Engineers gave the navy's Georgia pre-flight team a fancy football lesson and a fancy licking, 35-7.

Tech's great line, which crumbled under the sledge hammers of Notre Oame a week ago, withstood a navy version of the "T" formation, and opened the way for relays of Tech backs to race up and down Grant field.

Roughest, toughest citizen in the game was Wisconsin's former star, Pat Harder. Assigned to the pre-flight school only yesterday as a marine corps gunnery instructor, he was easily the standout defensive man on the field.

Tech scored six minutes after the kickoff when Eddie Prokop of Cleveland whipped a 39-yard pass to Wingback Mickey Logan, who dashed 19 yards unmolested for a touchdown.

Prokop later set up Tech's second touchdown with a 30-yard run to navy's 2. The Skycrackers gained momentary possession by intercepting a pass in the end zone, but a few seconds later Tech blocked Carl Nolte's punt and the ball rolled to the goal line. Maurice Furchgott, substitute guard, grabbed the ball and stepped over to score.

Two slashing plays which ate up 47 yards scored for Tech early in the third quarter. Prokop broke away for 25, and then big Ed Scharfswerit streaked off tackle for the payoff. Later in the same period Tech went 76 yards in all-out assault which culminated in a 13-yard dash by Logan on the ancient Statue of Liberty play.

Hot Off The Gridiron

PENN 7; DARTMOUTH 6

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An alert undefeated University of Pennsylvania football team rated among the first ten in the country, capitalized on Dartmouth's mistakes today to win its third straight game by a slim 7-to-6 margin over the Big Green.

A crowd of 45,000 saw the Red and Blue emerge triumphant by striking swiftly in the second period after recovering a Dartmouth fumble on the Green 41. Joe Kane, slippery halfback, started the drive with a 17-yard run on a reverse and finished it by scooting around end from the one-yard line without a hand laid on him.

Frank McKernan dashed on to the field after the touchdown and booted the all-important extra point from placement.

Dartmouth penetrated time and again deep into Penn territory, once having third down on the one-yard line, but was repulsed until the last five minutes when three forward passes by Tob Kasprzak at up 72 yards in a lightning-like drive for a touchdown. The scoring pass covered 14 yards and was caught by Larry Bartnick on the goal line.

Harold Clayton's try for the extra point that would have tied the score went wide.

ARMY 51; TEMPLE 0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Army's undefeated football team tried out nearly every member of its big gridiron squad as well as every play in the book today as the cadets overwhelmed an outmanned Temple eleven, 51 to 0, for their third straight victory.

Less than 6,000 fans saw the scrappy Owls from Philadelphia put up a game battle before yielding two touchdowns in each of the first three periods and one in the fourth, as well as a safety in the second and a field goal in the final chapter.

The climax came in the last period when Chuck Sampson grabbed the pigskin out of an Owl's hands, galloped 65 yards down the side, and cut in toward the center of the field. With no one to stop him from scoring, he placed the ball in front of the goal posts on the one-inch line.

Bob Chabot took over from there and kicked the field goal Sampson had set up deliberately.

GREAT LAKES 13; OHIO STATE 6

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Ohio State's audacious youngsters earned the reputation as one of the country's finest civilian football teams today by losing to the vaunted Great Lakes bluejackets only 13-6 before a capacity crowd of 22,000 recruits at the naval training station's Ross Field stadium.

The sailors, chased all over the lot by the speedy Buckeyes during a scoreless first half, finally counted a touchdown in the third quarter as Steve Lach, formerly of Duke and the Chicago Cardinals, cruised 28 yards, and tallied again in the final period on a 45-yard gallop by Dewey Proctor, ex-Furman star.

But it remained for Coach Paul Brown's bunch of red-clad freshmen to bring the cheering in the third quarter, with probably the longest sprint of the season which failed to pay off for a touchdown.

With his dad watching from the stands, Sensanbaugher took a kickoff in his end zone and raced almost the length of the field, zig-zagging around Paul King Rogers two yards from scoring territory but finally being nabbed from behind on the three-yard stripe by Buist Warren.

N. Carolina 23; JACKSONVILLE NAVAL 0

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—North Carolina's V-12 studded Tarheels prepped for their clash next Saturday with Duke by sticking to straight football to defeat a stubborn Jacksonville, Fla., naval training center team, 23-0, here today before a crowd of 8,000.

The Tarheels got their first tally midway the first period after an exchange of punts gave them the ball on their 40. Teague heaved one to Bryant, who was downed on the navy 8. Teague carried it to the one, and then Rogers, former Alabama star, bucked over for the score. Grimes' kick was wide.

In the second Bryant intercepted a pass on the Carolina 40, and from there Myers passed to Poole to the navy 24, and to Hussey in the end zone. This time Grimes' kick was good.

Late in the same period, Myers heaved a long one from his 33 to Bryant on the navy 36.

Myers passed to Bryant again, this time to the navy 14. From there Thomason, sub back, swept left end to score standing. Grimes kicked the point.

From the 11-yard-line Ray Poole, former University of Mississippi end, angled a kick through the goal posts for a field goal in the final period.

V. M. I. 12; CLEMSON 7

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Willowy Billy Collins, six-foot halfback from Richmond, primed Virginia Military institute's touchdown pump with some dazzling runs in Maher stadium today to spark the cadets to a 12-7 triumph over a band of Clemson Tigers who had the 5,000 customers gasping right down to the finish.

Just about the time fans usually start treking out of stadium, Clemson cut loose with one terrific kick that fell short only by a few yards.

With three minutes left and the ball resting on the Bengals' 16, Leonard Riddle opened up with some bullet passes, three of which found their marks, picked up 53 yards and carried the Tigers to V. M. I.'s 17. There the drive bogged, when two passes were incomplete and two ground plays netted only two yards.

CORNELL 30; PRINCETON 0

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Cornell's football team, recovering in surprising style from last week's walloping at the hands of Navy, showed itself to be a well coached, if not a powerful, team today by trouncing Princeton, 30 to 0, in the 28th clash between these Ivy league rivals.

A crowd of about 12,000 in Princeton's big Palmer stadium saw the Big Red team score a safety before the game was a minute old and go on from there to shake Bill Maceyko and Howard Blose loose for a series of long runs that produced two touchdowns each and left the Tigers completely bewildered.

The only Tiger threat came from long passes thrown by Dave Marshall, who was perhaps the ablest performer in either backfield but who received little support. Princeton gained only 70 yards on the ground but 156 through the air.

The first break of the game came right after the opening kickoff when Marshall tried a quick kick from his own 25. Anthony Lascalla broke through to block the punt and Marshall had to chase it back behind the goal and fall on it for a safety.

Cornell stopped the first Tiger threat when Captain Meredith Cushing recovered Marshall's fumble on the Cornell nine-yard line and ran it back nine yards. From there Cornell went for a touchdown on five plays and a penalty.

Aggies Outsprint Powerful Bengals To Hand Them First Defeat

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—An eleven man track team in football toggery outsprinted and outpassed Louisiana State's powerful but slower Tigers 28-13 here tonight before a crowd of 25,000.

The speedy cadets zig-zagged and passed the previously undefeated Bengals dizzy and at the same time dashed through and around the L. S. U. wall to break up all but a few runs and heaves by Tigers' star back, Steve Van Buren.

At least four Aggie backs shared their team's third victory of the season almost equally, with Jim Hallmark of Kilgore probably deserving the largest share because of his accurate tossing.

Van Buren, who ran through Rice and Georgia, occasionally found himself meeting Texan backs behind his own line, and several times was surrounded before he could pass. His best gains, however, were made from the same situation, including a 38-yard sideline trip for a touchdown.

Fullback Stanley Turner of Beaumont, Tex., indirectly set up the first cadet score, by kicking out on the Tiger seven in the first quarter. The Tiger return punt was snatched by Marion Flanagan of Sweetwater, who zig-zagged to the 25. Hallmark heaved to Geer on the 19, circled left end to the 12 and right end to score. Turner converted.

The visitors scored again in each of the remaining periods, early in the second quarter on a one-yard drive by Turner following a 30-yard pass from Earl Beesley of Dallas to Flanagan, in the third quarter on another short plunge by Turner after alternate end runs and passes by Hallmark carried the cadets from the Aggie 40.

The fourth Aggie score, in the final period, was on a six-yard end run by Hallmark after Flanagan ran 12 yards following an L. S. U. fumble and loss on the Tiger 19.

The Tiger first score came early in the third quarter after Carroll Griffith, North Little Rock freshman half, intercepted one of Hallmark's passes on the Bengal 40, juggled the ball as he raced for a touchdown.

The Bengal second marker, near the end of the game, resulted when Van Buren, unable to find a pass receiver, pushed cadets out of his way for 38 yards to score.

The Tigers led the visitors 10 to 9 in first downs and 198 yards to 123 in net rushing yards, and trailed the Aggies 37 yards to 110 in net gains by passing.

ORLEANS FIGHT DELAYED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Promoter Hyp Guinle said today that the 10-round decision boxing match between Jackie Callura, Ontario, Canada, and Juan Villalba of Cuba, scheduled for Monday night, had been postponed until Wednesday, October 20, due to Callura's inability to arrive here in time for the bout.

Guinle, the fighters' managers and the Louisiana boxing commission agreed to the postponement when Callura advised them that he was awaiting a visa out of Canada. Callura said Canadian passport officials had advised him that it would be Monday or Tuesday before his passport was issued. Callura plans to fly from Detroit, Mich., for the fight.

ENEMY SUB LOSSES EXCEED SHIPS SUNK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill reported jointly tonight that the enemy lost more submarines, sunk or damaged, than the Allies lost merchant ships in the resumption of wolf-pack attacks on Atlantic shipping lanes in September.

The joint statement, issued here and in London, confirmed that the Axis had resumed intense undersea warfare in the Atlantic after a four-month lull.

It told specifically of an attack on a west-bound convoy in the north Atlantic September 19. In the four and one-half day running battle, in which at least 15 U-boats participated, three escort ships and a "small number" of merchant ships were sunk.

The prime minister and the president said the enemy will spare no efforts to turn the tide of the U-boat war and utmost exertion and vigilance will be required before its menace is finally removed.

PELICANS SCHEDULE GAME HERE FRIDAY

The Louisiana Training institute Pelicans, who battled the Lumberjacks of Clarks High school to a scoreless, 0-0, tie at Clarks Friday night, will meet the Lake Providence eleven here Friday afternoon on the L. T. I. gridiron, Coach Kermit Youngblood said last night.

The Pels put up a surprise performance against the heavier Clarks outfit, which rolled up 12 first downs to eight for L. T. I.

Brown and McDermott were Clarks' chief ball carriers with Captain Richmond outstanding in the line. Dejean, Mistretta and Anderson stood out in the Pelican backfield and Rogers and Babyneaux, the latter a reserve end who has made a definite threat for a first string job, led the performance in the forward wall.

Tulane's performance was a reversal of the beating it took from the Memphis navy team last week, 41 to 7, so evidently Coach Claude Simons wasn't fooling when he predicted Tulane would be a Wave of another color this Saturday.

ON THE TRAIL WITH BILL GEAGAN

(Associated Press Features)

Despite frequent rains that sent heavy heads of water swirling down Canada's Miramichi river, anglers who flicked feathered barbs on the famous salmon stream this season enjoyed excellent sport.

Two of the most successful anglers were Mr. and Mrs. J. William Middendorf of Baltimore, Md., who landed 35 salmon and grilse in little more than a week. They enjoyed thrilling sport with the selvery acrobats and returned many of them to the water.

Two women anglers Miss Anne Morgan of New York and her friend, Mrs. B. M. Lovett of Boston, produced convincing proof that members of the fair sex can hook and handle the powerful silvery warriors just as well as the men.

Sportsmen are swabbing oily rags through gun barrels and checking ammunition supplies for the hunting season.

While some nimrods have an ample supply of ammunition from last year there are many who have none at all. The less fortunate hunters are looking forward to the one box of shotgun shells and one box of rifle cartridges available to them by action of the war production board.

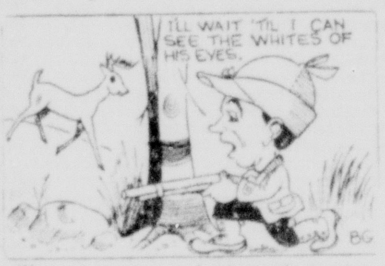
Call Your Shots

Due to this scarcity of sporting ammunition, hunters, who in lush times took all sorts of chance shots at fleeing game, are going to call their shots this year.

They're going to hold their fire until they're quite certain a part of their pellet patterns reach those fast winging quail, grouse, ducks, pheasants, doves and other small game. And in hunting big game, such as deer, moose, elk, sheep, goats and bear, there'll be no more blazing away at flashing flags or fleeting rumps.



I'LL WAIT 'TIL I CAN SEE THE WHITES OF HIS EYES.

PENN 7; DARTMOUTH 6

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An alert undefeated University of Pennsylvania football team rated among the first ten in the country, capitalized on Dartmouth's mistakes today to win its third straight game by a slim 7-to-6 margin over the Big Green.

A crowd of 45,000 saw the Red and Blue emerge triumphant by striking swiftly in the second period after recovering a Dartmouth fumble on the Green 41. Joe Kane, slippery halfback, started the drive with a 17-yard run on a reverse and finished it by scooting around end from the one-yard line without a hand laid on him.

Frank McKernan dashed on to the field after the touchdown and booted the all-important extra point from placement.

Dartmouth penetrated time and again deep into Penn territory, once having third down on the one-yard line, but was repulsed until the last five minutes when three forward passes by Tob Kasprzak at up 72 yards in a lightning-like drive for a touchdown. The scoring pass covered 14 yards and was caught by Larry Bartnick on the goal line.

Harold Clayton's try for the extra point that would have tied the score went wide.

Monroe's elevens have appeared in six games so far this year and have yet to score their first touchdown. Neville has been shut out by Jonesboro-Hodge and Natchez. Ouachita played two scoreless ties, one with Bossier City and the other with Ruston, and bowed to Homer and Jennings. The Lions cornered two points against Homer as the result of a safety.

Christy Mathewson blanked the A's three times as the Giants won the 1905 World Series, four games to one.

A. AND M. IS TOO FAST FOR TIGERS

Aggies Outsprint Powerful Bengals To Hand Them First Defeat

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—An eleven man track team in football toggery outsprinted and outpassed Louisiana State's powerful but slower Tigers 28-13 here tonight before a crowd of 25,000.

The speedy cadets zig-zagged and passed the previously undefeated Bengals dizzy and at the same time dashed through and around the L. S. U. wall to break up all but a few runs and heaves by Tigers' star back, Steve Van Buren.

At least four Aggie backs shared their team's third victory of the season almost equally, with Jim Hallmark of Kilgore probably deserving the largest share because of his accurate tossing.

Van Buren, who ran through Rice and Georgia, occasionally found himself meeting Texan backs behind his own line, and several times was surrounded before he could pass. His best gains, however, were made from the same situation, including a 38-yard sideline trip for a touchdown.

Fullback Stanley Turner of Beaumont, Tex., indirectly set up the first cadet score, by kicking out on the Tiger seven in the first quarter. The Tiger return punt was snatched by Marion Flanagan of Sweetwater, who zig-zagged to the 25. Hallmark heaved to Geer on the 19, circled left end to the 12 and right end to score. Turner converted.

The visitors scored again in each of the remaining periods, early in the second quarter on a one-yard drive by Turner following a 30-yard pass from Earl Beesley of Dallas to Flanagan, in the third quarter on another short plunge by Turner after alternate end runs and passes by Hallmark carried the cadets from the Aggie 40.

The fourth Aggie score, in the final period, was on a six-yard end run by Hallmark after Flanagan ran 12 yards following an L. S. U. fumble and loss on the Tiger 19.

The Tiger first score came early in the third quarter after Carrell Griffith, North Little Rock freshman half, intercepted one of Hallmark's passes on the Bengal 40, juggled the ball as he raced for a touchdown.

The Bengal second marker, near the end of the game, resulted when Van Buren, unable to find a pass receiver, pushed cadets out of his way for 38 yards to score.

The Tigers led the visitors 10 to 9 in first downs and 198 yards to 123 in net rushing yards, and trailed the Aggies 37 yards to 110 in net gains by passing.

ORLEANS FIGHT DELAYED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Promoter Hyp Guinle said today that the 10-round decision boxing match between Jackie Callura, Ontario, Canada, and Juan Villalba of Cuba, scheduled for Monday night, had been postponed until Wednesday, October 20, due to Callura's inability to arrive here in time for the bout.

Guinle, the fighters' managers and the Louisiana boxing commission agreed to the postponement when Callura advised them that he was awaiting a visa out of Canada. Callura said Canadian passport officials had advised him that it would be Monday or Tuesday before his passport was issued. Callura plans to fly from Detroit, Mich., for the fight.

ENEMY SUB LOSSES EXCEED SHIPS SUNK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill reported jointly tonight that the enemy lost more submarines, sunk or damaged, than the Allies lost merchant ships in the resumption of wolf-pack attacks on Atlantic shipping lanes in September.

The joint statement, issued here and in London, confirmed that the Axis had resumed intense undersea warfare in the Atlantic after a four-month lull.

It told specifically of an attack on a west-bound convoy in the north Atlantic September 19. In the four and one-half day running battle, in which at least 15 U-boats participated, three escort ships and a "small number" of merchant ships were sunk.

The prime minister and the president said the enemy will spare no efforts to turn the tide of the U-boat war and utmost exertion and vigilance will be required before its menace is finally removed.

PELICANS SCHEDULE GAME HERE FRIDAY

The Louisiana Training institute Pelicans, who battled the Lumberjacks of Clarks High school to a scoreless, 0-0, tie at Clarks Friday night, will meet the Lake Providence eleven here Friday afternoon on the L. T. I. gridiron, Coach Kermit Youngblood said last night.

The Pels put up a surprise performance against the heavier Clarks outfit, which rolled up 12 first downs to eight for L. T. I.

Brown and McDermott were Clarks' chief ball carriers with Captain Richmond outstanding in the line. Dejean, Mistretta and Anderson stood out in the Pelican backfield and Rogers and Babyneaux, the latter a reserve end who has made a definite threat for a first string job, led the performance in the forward wall.

field to a score. Shiver missed the kick, but it didn't matter. Athas, Ed Pechon, Shiver and Bill Jones got rolling again, and from midfield another touchdown was achieved in about 10 plays. Shiver scored the touchdown and kicked the point. Soon the gun, mercifully for Rice, ended the game.

Tulane's performance was a reversal of the beating it took from the Memphis navy team last week, 41 to 7, so evidently Coach Claude Simons wasn't fooling when he predicted Tulane would be a Wave of another color this Saturday.

The starting lineups:

Tulane	Pos.	Rice

WITH BILL GEAGAN

Despite frequent rains that sent heavy heads of water swirling down Canada's Miramichi river, anglers who flicked feathered barbs on the famous salmon stream this season enjoyed excellent sport.

Two of the most successful anglers were Mr. and Mrs. J. William Middendorf of Baltimore, Md., who landed 35 salmon and grilse in little more than a week. They enjoyed thrilling sport with the selvery acrobats and returned many of them to the water.

Two women anglers Miss Anne Morgan of New York and her friend, Mrs. B. M. Lovett of Boston, produced convincing proof that members of the fair sex can hook and handle the powerful silvery warriors just as well as the men.

Sportsmen are swabbing oily rags through gun barrels and checking ammunition supplies for the hunting season.

While some nimrods have an ample supply of ammunition from last year there are many who have none at all. The less fortunate hunters are looking forward to the one box of shotgun shells and one box of rifle cartridges available to them by action of the war production board.

Call Your Shots

Due to this scarcity of sporting ammunition, hunters, who in lush times took all sorts of chance shots at fleeing game, are going to call their shots this year.

They're going to hold their fire until they're quite certain a part of their pellet patterns reach those fast winging quail, grouse, ducks, pheasants, doves and other small game. And in hunting big game, such as deer, moose, elk, sheep, goats and bear, there'll be no more blazing away at flashing flags or fleeting rumps.

I'LL WAIT 'TIL I CAN SEE THE WHITES OF HIS EYES.

from now on we will have to depend on the Ten Commandments."

Blaize said he intended to select and swear in 20 or more deputy sheriffs as soon as possible "to maintain law and order when the state guard leaves."

The contest over the sheriff's office has been in progress between Jones and Perez since the death of Sheriff L. D. Dauterive June 1.

Perez held out for an election to name the successor but Jones acted to enforce his appointment after the state supreme court had upheld it.

Slater and Perez refused yesterday to surrender the office to Blaize on Jones' demand, claiming that the court action in the case had not been taken against Dr. Slater.

The military reported that three parish deputies were disarmed and taken into custody for trying to serve a court injunction order on the convoy en route.

The three parish deputies arrested were listed by the guard as Arnold Shields, Anthony Odo and Claude Borne. They were placed in a military stockade.

One of Blaize's first acts was to name Ernest Hingle as his chief deputy sheriff and to appoint seven other deputies. Blaize said the courthouse files had been gone through before he arrived and that some of the records were missing.

The guard convoy entered the town behind an armored car bearing a mounted machine gun. Alighting khaki-clad occupants approached Frank Giardina, a townsman, and asked him whether there were any armed men around.

"No, you can see that everything is quiet here," Giardina replied.

Then the main convoy of trucks filled with guardsmen began rolling into town and parked the trucks about the entrances to the courthouse.

Troopers afoot fanned out along the levee and searched through high weeds. Another group of guardsmen bearing rifles took up positions on the court-house grounds.

A small party of guardsmen entered the courthouse and started a systematic search. The guardsmen located Dr. Slater and two deputies, dismissing the latter.

Dr. Slater, describing himself as "acting sheriff," was told by one of the guardsmen that Brigadier General Porter wished to see him outside the building.

"If General Porter doesn't mind, let him come in and see me," Dr. Slater replied. "I have my civil rights."

The guardsmen delivered the message to General Porter and returned a few minutes later and informed Slater that he must leave the courthouse.

Dr. Slater protested and was escorted out of the building by four guardsmen.

Immediately following, Blaize was accompanied into the courthouse by troops and Slater returned. Blaize offered to shake hands but Slater refused.

"You have never made a fair demand for the office," the Plaquemines parish coroner told Blaize.

Earlier today state officials ordered J. B. Lancaster who recently audited the sheriff's books, to return for another check.

The whereabout of Perez was unannounced late today. He was reported on the Mississippi river in his motorboat shortly after the state troops passed his home. Perez was wearing a two-colored sports sweater.

Jones' martial law proclamation applied to Plaquemines parish where he said "insurrection and rebellion against law and order" existed and said it was to "guard against the imminent danger of insurrection and riot."

In a statement accompanying the proclamation Jones declared: "A group of armed men, considerable in number, acting pursuant to a conspiracy to violate the laws of Louisiana, have by a show of forces and threats of violence prevented the sheriff from entering his office * * * and from performing any of the duties or functions of sheriff * * * despite the final decrees of the supreme court of Louisiana and in open defiance thereof."

way. In the former category lies the suggestion of the five senators for strengthening the diplomatic corps and advancing members in rank. As an instance of the latter, the administration already has begun a readjustment to equalize the drain on British and American supplies of petroleum.

Military strategy naturally will be less affected by the report, but even the military leaders cannot disregard wholly the general dissatisfaction with which the five viewed the slow progress of the war in the Pacific. This does not mean, of course, that the high command will adopt the strategy suggested by Chandler of fighting a holding war against the Germans while we turn the full power of our offensive on the Japanese.

But outside of the strictly military field, the senate has something it can sink its legislative teeth into and its mood is far from conciliatory.

tially a year there have been no victories to hearten the army or the German home front.

With the need of troops to reinforce the Russian front patent to the most casual observer, it seems clear that only the shortest and least vulnerable front in Italy can be Nazi-held.

And that front is not on the Volturno river which the Allies now are crossing, or even on the Rome axis, but north of that on the Estruscan line or back to the Po.

Even without specific coordination through joint staff planning, the Allied offensive in Italy, threats from Britain and the Russian drive clearly are complementing each other. They are compelling the foe to shift his reserves back and forth, and to waste many divisions in policing the turbulent Balkans and Greece as well as France, the low countries and Norway.

Fulfillment of the Allied threat of new strokes is not far off. It is portended in French-American occupation of Corsica. There has been a specific pledge from highest Allied authority of cross-channel operations against the continent in due course. Almost hourly the grim necessity of shortening the front is being forced on the foe, and every foot he falls back anywhere brings that much closer the deadly air attack upon his war industries and upon obviously over-strained war nerves of the German public.

A month short of a quarter century ago, those war nerves cracked under a lesser strain. There can be small comfort in Nazidom now at the close approach of another anniversary of the surrender of 1918. Rumor runs fast in neutral Europe of German under-cover dickering without Hitler sanction for peace somewhere, anywhere, to ease the growing strain. It may be knowledge of that which prompted Hitler's gloomy summons to the German nation that arms alone would not assure victory, only the will of the people to fight it out to the end.

AMERICANS MAKE

terday by American Flying Fortresses. Swift, plywood Mosquito bombers of the R. A. F. attacked Berlin for the ninth such blow since mid-August.

In daylight yesterday while the American heavies were delivering their punch behind the eastern front, American Marauder medium bombers with an umbrella of Allied, R. A. F. and Dominion Spitfire fighters slashed at an airfield at Woensdrecht, Holland, keeping up their effective program of beating the German air force back away from bases closest to the western invasion coasts.

The American heavy bomber attack was one of the most significant aerial feats of the war, eclipsing in daring even the 1,800-mile round trip from Britain to Trondheim, Norway, last July and the more recent raid over a similar distance by American heavies based in North Africa which blasted Munich.

It surpassed the 1,500-mile England-to-North Africa shuttle raid by American Flying Fortresses on Regensburg, in southeastern Germany, on August 17.

Eight army ordnance tanks—survivors of a terrific hail of fire from German 88-mm. guns encountered before they even got ashore—fought their way up the beaches of the Gulf of Salerno and had a big role in beating off the first German counterattacks on the American beachhead a few hours after the landings.

COTTON

New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced slightly today and reached the best levels of the week. Nearby positions led the advance which reflected further trade price fixing and commission house buying.

Prospects of a smaller crop, expectation of large scale government buying of textiles and the lightness of hedge offerings helped the advance.

sent up no fighters but ground batteries downed three of the raiders.

Ranging over the equator north of New Ireland, a Liberator Friday morning spotted a convoy of three transports, escorted by destroyers, moving north. The big bomber attacked through an intense barrage thrown up by the enemy vessels and scored damaging hits on a 10,000-ton transport.

The badly battered enemy air force returned to the attack in both New Guinea and the Solomons.

Friday, 11 Japanese medium bombers with 18 Zeros, raided Allied positions around Finschhafen, the New Guinea air base on the Huon peninsula captured recently by Australians. The new raiders failed to cause any damage.

Over Vella Lavella in the Solomons Friday, patrolling Corsairs of the United States navy broke up a formation of 15 Zeros, downing one enemy fighter in a brief battle.

NO RESISTANCE

"from now on we will have to depend on the Ten Commandments."

Blaize said he intended to select and swear in 20 or more deputy sheriffs as soon as possible "to maintain law and order when the state guard leaves."

The contest over the sheriff's office has been in progress between Jones and Perez since the death of Sheriff L. D. Dauterive June 1.

Perez held out for an election to name the successor but Jones acted to enforce his appointment after the state supreme court had upheld it.

Slater and Perez refused yesterday to surrender the office to Blaize on Jones' demand, claiming that the court action in the case had not been taken against Dr. Slater.

The military reported that three parish deputies were disarmed and taken into custody for trying to serve a court injunction order on the convoy en route.

The three parish deputies arrested were listed by the guard as Arnold Shields, Anthony Odo and Claude Borne. They were placed in a military stockade.

One of Blaize's first acts was to name Ernest Hingle as his chief deputy sheriff and to appoint seven other deputies. Blaize said the courthouse files had been gone through before he arrived and that some of the records were missing.

The guard convoy entered the town behind an armored car bearing a mounted machine gun. Alighting khaki-clad occupants approached Frank Giardina, a townsman, and asked him whether there were any armed men around.

"No, you can see that everything is quiet here," Giardina replied.

Then the main convoy of trucks filled with guardsmen began rolling into town and parked the trucks about the entrances to the courthouse.

Troopers afoot fanned out along the levee and searched through high weeds. Another group of guardsmen bearing rifles took up positions on the court-house grounds.

A small party of guardsmen entered the courthouse and started a systematic search. The guardsmen located Dr. Slater and two deputies, dismissing the latter.

Dr. Slater, describing himself as "acting sheriff," was told by one of the guardsmen that Brigadier General Porter wished to see him outside the building.

"If General Porter doesn't mind, let him come in and see me," Dr. Slater replied. "I have my civil rights."

The guardsmen delivered the message to General Porter and returned a few minutes later and informed Slater that he must leave the courthouse.

Dr. Slater protested and was escorted out of the building by four guardsmen.

Immediately following, Blaize was accompanied into the courthouse by troops and Slater returned. Blaize offered to shake hands but Slater refused.

"You have never made a fair demand for the office," the Plaquemines parish coroner told Blaize.

Earlier today state officials ordered J. B. Lancaster who recently audited the sheriff's books, to return for another check.

The whereabout of Perez was unannounced late today. He was reported on the Mississippi river in his motorboat shortly after the state troops passed his home. Perez was wearing a two-colored sports sweater.

Jones' martial law proclamation applied to Plaquemines parish where he said "insurrection and rebellion against law and order" existed and said it was to "guard against the imminent danger of insurrection and riot."

In a statement accompanying the proclamation Jones declared: "A group of armed men, considerable in number, acting pursuant to a conspiracy to violate the laws of Louisiana, have by a show of forces and threats of violence prevented the sheriff from entering his office * * * and from performing any of the duties or functions of sheriff * * * despite the final decrees of the supreme court of Louisiana and in open defiance thereof."

way. In the former category lies the suggestion of the five senators for strengthening the diplomatic corps and advancing members in rank. As an instance of the latter, the adminstration already has begun a readjustment to equalize the drain on British and American supplies of petroleum.

Military strategy naturally will be less affected by the report, but even the military leaders cannot disregard wholly the general dissatisfaction with which the five viewed the slow progress of the war in the Pacific. This does not mean, of course, that the high command will adopt the strategy suggested by Chandler of fighting a holding war against the Germans while we turn the full power of our offensive on the Japanese.

But outside of the strictly military field, the senate has something it can sink its legislative teeth into and its mood is far from conciliatory.

NOW LIEUTENANT

Landon Miles, engineering officer, amphibious forces, United States navy, is on active duty in the southwest Pacific and has been recently promoted to the rank of lieutenant (j. g.). Lieutenant Miles is a graduate of Neville High school and of Louisiana Tech. He resigned a position with the firm of Ford, Bacon and Davis to accept a commission in the United States navy, July, 1942. He then attended the naval training school at Dartmouth college, Hanover, N. H. He is a son of Mrs. Gladys S. Miles, 605 K street, Monroe.

tially a year there have been no victories to hearten the army or the German home front.

With the need of troops to reinforce the Russian front patent to the most casual observer, it seems clear that only the shortest and least vulnerable front in Italy can be Nazi-held.

And that front is not on the Volturno river which the Allies now are crossing, or even on the Rome axis, but north of that on the Estruscan line or back to the Po.

Even without specific coordination through joint staff planning, the Allied offensive in Italy, threats from Britain and the Russian drive clearly are complementing each other. They are compelling the foe to shift his reserves back and forth, and to waste many divisions in policing the turbulent Balkans and Greece as well as France, the low countries and Norway.

Fulfillment of the Allied threat of new strokes is not far off. It is portended in French-American occupation of Corsica. There has been a specific pledge from highest Allied authority of cross-channel operations against the continent in due course. Almost hourly the grim necessity of shortening the front is being forced on the foe, and every foot he falls back anywhere brings that much closer the deadly air attack upon his war industries and upon obviously over-strained war nerves of the German public.

A month short of a quarter century ago, those war nerves cracked under a lesser strain. There can be small comfort in Nazidom now at the close approach of another anniversary of the surrender of 1918. Rumor runs fast in neutral Europe of German under-cover dickering without Hitler sanction for peace somewhere, anywhere, to ease the growing strain. It may be knowledge of that which prompted Hitler's gloomy summons to the German nation that arms alone would not assure victory, only the will of the people to fight it out to the end.

In daylight yesterday while the American heaves were delivering their punch behind the eastern front, American Marauder medium bombers with an umbrella of Allied, R. A. F. and Dominion Spitfire fighters slashed at an airfield at Woensdrecht, Holland, keeping up their effective program of beating the German air force back away from bases closest to the western invasion coasts.

The American heavy bomber attack was one of the most significant aerial feats of the war, eclipsing in daring even the 1,800-mile round trip from Britain to Trondheim, Norway, last July and the more recent raid over a similar distance by American heavies based in North Africa which blasted Munich.

It surpassed the 1,500-mile England-to-North Africa shuttle raid by American Flying Fortresses on Regensburg, in southeastern Germany, on August 17.

Eight army ordnance tanks—survivors of a terrific hail of fire from German 88-mm. guns encountered before they even got ashore—fought their way up the beaches of the Gulf of Salerno and had a big role in beating off the first German counter-attacks on the American beachhead a few hours after the landings.

COTTON

New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced slightly today and reached the best levels of the week. Nearby positions led the advance which reflected further trade price fixing and commission house buying.

Prospects of a smaller crop, expectation of large scale government buying of textiles and the lightness of hedge offerings helped the advance.

sent up no fighters but ground batteries downed three of the raiders.

Ranging over the equator north of New Ireland, a Liberator Friday morning spotted a convoy of three transports, escorted by destroyers, moving north. The big bomber attacked through an intense barrage thrown up by the enemy vessels and scored damaging hits on a 10,000-ton transport.

The badly battered enemy air force returned to the attack in both New Guinea and the Solomons.

Friday, 11 Japanese medium bombers with 18 Zeros, raided Allied positions around Finschhafen, the New Guinea air base on the Huon peninsula captured recently by Australians. The new raiders failed to cause any damage.

Over Vella Lavella in the Solomons Friday, patrolling Corsairs of the United States navy broke up a formation of 15 Zeros, downing one enemy fighter in a brief battle.

On New Guinea, where Australians have reached a point 45 miles southwest of their objective of Madang, today's communique said "our forces continued the advance and now are entering the foothills of the Uria river valley."

WACS RECEIVING SPECIAL COURSES

Girls Who Enlist Now To Get Post-War Vocational Training

Post-war futures in highly specialized vocations such as photography, radio and aviation are available at the expense of the army of the United States to girls who enroll now in the Women's Army corps, Lieutenant Vivia N. Locke, local WAC recruiting officer said today.

Young women who look forward to technical careers after the war will do well to consider enlisting in the army where technical history is being made, Lieutenant Locke advised.

"The greatest advances of science today are taking place in the military services where unlimited resources are available for research and observation," she said. "Women who receive technical training in the army will find themselves in a fortunate position, professionally, after this war is over."

Citing photography as one of the coming careers for women, Lieutenant Locke said that the WAC now trains women as still and motion picture photographers, photostat operators, and photo laboratory technicians. Many have completed their training and are already at work taking pictures of news events, making films to be used for training purposes, photographing documents and printing aerial photographs to be used in map making.

Training in radio operations, signal code and radio repairs also is offered at communications schools. WACs who have taken these courses are now at work with the army air forces. Other WACs, assigned to air bases, have received training as weather observers, parachute riggers, plane dispatchers and aircraft mechanics.

"These are only a few of 155 different types of jobs WACs are now doing," Lieutenant Locke said. "Every one of these jobs open up new opportunities and offer possibilities for future careers.

"General George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff, says he needs 500,000 more WACs to fill jobs of this kind. You can help win the war, and at the same time prepare yourself for an interesting post-war career by joining now. What is your answer to General Marshall's call?"

CAP GIVES COURSE TO FUTURE CADETS

Officials and CAP of Selman field outlined the course that is being given every Monday and Thursday night at Neville High school, when basic studies will be given to qualify boys for cadets. The initial lecture was given Thursday at 7:30 p.m. when the instructor, Captain C. D. Clark spent an hour in discussing the subject of "Military Courtesy and Discipline." This course will be completed in subsequent lectures.

The CAP plans to give courses after the students complete the basic training study, which will aid cadets in passing aviation cadet examinations. CAP has been recently made an auxiliary army of the army air forces and is at present engaged in recruiting aviation cadets and in helping boys to qualify as cadets.

The CAPs will be able to accommodate as many as 50 to 60 boys in these courses. Anyone interested is asked to report at Neville High school on Monday night. A class of 30 attended the initial lecture.

A. L. TATUM TO CONDUCT TESTS

ASTP And V 12 Examinations Slated Here Nov. 9

Additional supplies have been received by A. L. Tatum, instructor at Northeast Junior college, for the second qualifying test for the army specialized training program and the navy college program V-12. The examinations, which will be given throughout the country on Tuesday, November 9, will be administered at the local college by Mr. Tatum. Notice regarding the room and time for the test will be published next week.

All candidates for the test must file an application with Mr. Tatum in order to be eligible. A pamphlet of general information, which contains an admission-identification form, may be obtained from his office in the administration building. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by March 1, 1944.

The examination, which is to be administered to both army and navy candidates, is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training. Each candidate will be given a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate him to enlist in the service.

Those selected for the army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the navy program, after selection by the office of naval officer procurement, will be detailed to college. Those who attend schools under either program will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books, and uniforms will be paid by the army or navy.

METHODISTS WILL AID ORPHANAGE

In all Methodist churches in the Twin Cities and also in all other churches of this denomination throughout Louisiana, today there will be received contributions for the only orphanage that the denomination supports in the state, that located at Ruston.

The sole support of this institution is through these offerings which are received twice a year, at Easter and on the second Sunday in October.

The institution has for years performed a worthy service and Methodists are urged to see that the offering this time is generous as wartime conditions have made the need even greater than in years past.

MRS. HAYWARD IS ALEXANDER'S KIN

Mrs. E. F. Hayward, wife of the rector of Grace Episcopal church in Monroe, was pleasantly surprised to see in "Life" magazine, current issue, an illustrated story concerning A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, which corresponds to the United States navy. Mr. Alexander is a cousin of Mrs. Hayward.

The event was of international importance and one that it is believed will remain as one of historic significance. It was held at the Dorchester and was attended by Anglo-American military commanders stationed in England. A sumptuous banquet was followed by talks by Frank Knox, secretary of the United States navy; and Mr. Alexander.

Among those present were John Winant, United States ambassador to Great Britain; Admiral Harold Stark, commander of the United States naval forces in Europe; and the two guests of honor, the heads of the two navies, Frank Knox and A. V. Alexander.

GARLAND MAY IN SHERIFF'S RACE

Captain Of Monroe Police Department Resigns To Make Campaign

Garland May, formerly a member of the Monroe police department, announced Saturday afternoon that he had tendered his resignation and intended to become a candidate for the office of sheriff of Ouachita parish at the election to be held in January, 1944.

Mr. May stated that he had resigned his position under civil service status and would wage an active campaign because he felt that he was competent and qualified to serve as sheriff of Ouachita parish, and that during the many years he had served as a law enforcement officer he had awited the time when he felt that he could sincerely offer his candidacy for the important post he now seeks.

The following statement was released to the press:

"This is the first time that I have ever offered myself as a candidate for public office, and my present announcement is made in the sincere belief that I am properly qualified to discharge the duties of sheriff of Ouachita parish. No member of my family holds any public office in this parish nor is there any relation who possesses political power which can be exercised in my behalf during the next few months.

"My two brothers who would ordinarily be most interested in my announcement, are in foreign service with the United States army, one with MacArthur in the southwest Pacific and the other in the European theater of war. Those who support my candidacy will do so because of the faith and confidence they bear in by ability to serve them with fairness and understanding. I have never participated in political campaigns and am happy to realize that I owe no obligations to any group within this parish or state nor do I have the burden of attempting to aid other candidates simply to preserve political factions built up over a long number of years. I am running for only one office and am concerned only with the competent handling of the affairs of that office.

"I have devoted my life to the work of law enforcement and my desire to serve as your sheriff is a natural expression for advancement in my chosen profession. I have had more than seven years experience as a peace officer and while with the police department of the city of Monroe served as a patrolman, sergeant and night captain. These positions fully acquainted me with the duties not only of criminal investigation but of office management and verified systems of records.

"My work has allowed constant contact with the federal bureau of investigation, Louisiana bureau of identification, various municipal police departments throughout the state and sheriffs in the northeastern section of this state and form an adequate background for my future work. These years of service have also brought much knowledge of the criminal activities within this area and the manner and methods in which these offenders against society operate and I can assure you that every power I possess will continue to be directed against this dangerous group.

"I am married and maintain a home for my wife and four children on Lee avenue in Monroe. I am a member of the Methodist church, Graham Surghner Lodge of Free Masons, Stonewall Lodge of the Knights of Pythias and the Order of Karasan. I have watched Monroe grow through the years and have always attempted to do my part in working for a better city and parish, and in the difficult post-war years know that we must have our problems to face and solve.

"My belief in the American system of elective government, and my belief that I have the qualifications for the office which I seek, have led me to resign an office of security with the Monroe police department and leave a job with civil service status to seek a position of trust at the hands of the voters. This is not an easy race for a newcomer to politics to make, and I want to say to each of you that your interest and consideration in my candidacy will be deeply appreciated."

STORY OF ACADIANS IS TOLD BY HEBERT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The story of the Acadians who settled and have lived for generations in Louisiana was told to congress when Representative Hebert, Democrat, Louisiana, inserted in the record a discussion of the new book The Bayous of Louisiana, by Harnett Kane.

Hebert declared that the book offers a completely sympathetic and truthful interpretation of the fabulously rich scene of south Louisiana and of the generous-spirited people who live along and about its distinctive waterways, the bayous.

Asserting that he is a descendant of Acadian stock, the congressman said the book should make Americans of other states understand better the people of south Louisiana.

"America, in these troubled times, as perhaps never before, needs such sympathetic interpretation of one group of Americans to another," he said.

"The Bayous of Louisiana is the kind of book, based on intelligent observation and written in masterly style, that helps dispel un-American tolerance," he said.

HEAVY DAMAGE LAID TO DUCKS

Waterfowl Leave Grain Fields As Hunting Season Nears

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The battle of the grain fields and rice paddies is almost over as one of the largest duck migrations in history moves south.

The ducks are making an orderly withdrawal—the hunting season is just around the corner.

But it appears to be a hollow victory for the farmers. Acres and acres of valuable grain have been gobbled up.

It was largely a battle of noise. Casualties were few, if any. The principal weapons were airplanes, automobiles, shotguns and even bombs.

The farmers wheeled out their noisiest jalopies and went rattling about their fields. This scared the ducks away—to neighbors' fields. The neighbors promptly scared them back.

Some hired airplanes to fly low over their fields. This was a little more successful. The planes could chase the ducks farther.

The most effective method was to post men at the corner of fields, each man banging away furiously with a shotgun. This worked fine, but ammunition soon was exhausted, and no more could be bought.

In northern California the ducks settled on the rice paddies. Leo L. Laythe, regional director of the fish and wild life service, estimated they had caused $600,000 damage there in the past two years.

California farmers fired rocket bombs at the birds. At first this scared the ducks halfway to Mexico but even ducks get used to war conditions. Now, says Laythe, the ducks just circle the field cautiously after a bombing and then come down and have some more rice.

But now they're moving south in increasing numbers, and when the hunting season opens there probably won't be a duck in sight.

They're all ducking out.

FARMERS ASSAIL U. S. GOALS SET

Declare Task Is Impossible Unless Assurances Are Given

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—So far as Louisiana is concerned, the war food administration, in its suggested agricultural goals for 1944 production, has posed an impossible task for farmers. What with labor and feed shortages, high overhead costs, and limited marketing of relatively new products, such as soybeans and peanuts, it is not expected that production in this state will be more than that of this year, according to conclusions and recommendations reached by the state goals committee, which finished a three-day session Wednesday at Louisiana State university.

The committee adopted two sets of reports, one submitted by the subcommittee on production goals for 1944, and the other on "support and ceiling prices." Both reports were couched in emphatic terms indicating the impracticability of reaching the increased production suggested by the war food production administration for the coming year. In the case of peanuts and soybeans, as well as milk, production will be considerably less. These recommendations indicated accomplishment of the following s gested goals:

1—Definite prices to be paid for products are announced and guar teed before planting.

2—Definite markets are provided relatively new products, such as nuts and machinery is made avail to harvest such crops.

3—Definite assurance is made the major items of cost of product are not increased beyond pres levels.

4—Definite assurance is given an additional drain will not be m on the labor supply between plant and harvesting time.

The conference indicated it quite willing to go along with war food administration if conditi for adequate adjustment between fa prices and costs of production can reached, but declined to modify declaration of the sub-committee's port.

"We may seem drastic in mak these recommendations," said Dr. N. Efferson, chairman of the go sub-committee, "but the commit agreed that we must be realistic."

The recommendation was adop unanimously by the conference wh included representatives of vari agricultural agencies of the state, af its terms had been clarified for benefit of the war food administrat representatives.

Why Man's Prayers Did Not Stop Hitle

Millions of people daily practice meditation, prayer, new thought and other spiritual exercises. For many years, people of good will have been praying for the overthrow of Hitler, Hirohito and what they stand for. Why has the answer been so long delayed? Why do so many other prayers remain unanswered? Why does calamity often befall us in spite of our prayers?

Thirty years ago, in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world, a young Englishman named Edwin J. Dingle found the answers to these questions. A great mystic opened his eyes. A great change came over him. He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives.

That Power, he says, can transform the life of anyone. Questions, whatever they are, can be answered. The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong can be solved.

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health. He acquired wealth, too, as well as world-wide professional recognition. Thirty years ago, he was sick as a man could be and live. Once his coffin was bought. Years of almost continuous tropical fevers, broken bones, near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him, physically and mentally.

He was about to be sent back to England to die, when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet." He wants to tell the whole world what he learned there, under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his 21 years in the Far East. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came him.

Within 10 years, he was able to tire to this country with a fortu He had been honored by fellowsh in the World's leading geograph societies, for his work as a geograp And today, 30 years later, he is so athletic, capable of so much w so young in appearance, it is hard believe he has lived so long.

As a first step in their progress ward the Power that Knowle gives, Mr. Dingle wants to send readers of this notice a 9,000-w treatise. It is free. For your free co send your name and address to Institute of Mentalpsysics, 213 So Hobart Blvd., Dept. H-16, Los Ang (4), Calif. Write promptly.

"My two brothers who would ordinarily be most interested in my announcement, are in foreign service with the United States army, one with MacArthur in the southwest Pacific and the other in the European theater of war. Those who support my candidacy will do so because of the faith and confidence they bear in by ability to serve them with fairness and understanding. I have never participated in political campaigns and am happy to realize that I owe no obligations to any group within this parish or state nor do I have the burden of attempting to aid other candidates simply to preserve political factions built up over a long number of years. I am running for only one office and am concerned only with the competent handling of the affairs of that office.

"I have devoted my life to the work of law enforcement and my desire to serve as your sheriff is a natural expression for advancement in my chosen profession. I have had more than seven years experience as a peace officer and while with the police department of the city of Monroe served as a patrolman, sergeant and night captain. These positions fully acquainted me with the duties not only of criminal investigation but of office management and verified systems of records.

"My work has allowed constant contact with the federal bureau of investigation, Louisiana bureau of identification, various municipal police departments throughout the state and sheriffs in the northeastern section of this state and form an adequate background for my future work. These years of service have also brought much knowledge of the criminal activities within this area and the manner and methods in which these offenders against society operate and I can assure you that every power I possess will continue to be directed against this dangerous group.

"I am married and maintain a home for my wife and four children on Lee avenue in Monroe. I am a member of the Methodist church, Graham Surginer Lodge of Free Masons, Stonewall Lodge of the Knights of Pythias and the Order of Karasan. I have watched Monroe grow through the years and have always attempted to do my part in working for a better city and parish, and in the difficult post-war years know that we must have our problems to face and solve.

"My belief in the American system of elective government, and my belief that I have the qualifications for the office which I seek, have led me to resign an office of security with the Monroe police department and leave a job with civil service status to seek a position of trust at the hands of the voters. This is not an easy race for a newcomer to politics to make, and I want to say to each of you that your interest and consideration in my candidacy will be deeply appreciated."

STORY OF ACADIANS IS TOLD BY HEBERT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The story of the Acadians who settled and have lived for generations in Louisiana was told to congress when Representative Hebert, Democrat, Louisiana, inserted in the record a discussion of the new book The Bayous of Louisiana, by Harnett Kane.

Hebert declared that the book offers a completely sympathetic and truthful interpretation of the fabulously rich scene of south Louisiana and of the generous-spirited people who live along and about its distinctive waterways, the bayous.

Asserting that he is a descendant of Acadian stock, the congressman said the book should make Americans of other states understand better the people of south Louisiana.

"America, in these troubled times, as perhaps never before, needs such sympathetic interpretation of one group of Americans to another," he said.

"The Bayous of Louisiana is the kind of book, based on intelligent observation and written in masterly style, that helps dispel un-American tolerance," he said.

HEAVY DAMAGE LAID TO DUCKS

Waterfowl Leave Grain Fields As Hunting Season Nears

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The battle of the grain fields and rice paddies is almost over as one of the largest duck migrations in history moves south.

The ducks are making an orderly withdrawal—the hunting season is just around the corner.

But it appears to be a hollow victory for the farmers. Acres and acres of valuable grain have been gobbled up.

It was largely a battle of noise. Casualties were few, if any. The principal weapons were airplanes, automobiles, shotguns and even bombs.

The farmers wheeled out their noisiest jalopies and went rattling about their fields. This scared the ducks away—to neighbors' fields. The neighbors promptly scared them back.

Some hired airplanes to fly low over their fields. This was a little more successful. The planes could chase the ducks farther.

The most effective method was to post men at the corner of fields, each man banging away furiously with a shotgun. This worked fine, but ammunition soon was exhausted, and no more could be bought.

In northern California the ducks settled on the rice paddies. Leo L. Laythe, regional director of the fish and wild life service, estimated they had caused $600,000 damage there in the past two years.

California farmers fired rocket bombs at the birds. At first this scared the ducks halfway to Mexico, but even ducks get used to war conditions. Now, says Laythe, the ducks just circle the field cautiously after a bombing and then come down and have some more rice.

But now they're moving south in increasing numbers, and when the hunting season opens there probably won't be a duck in sight.

They're all ducking out.

FARMERS ASSAIL U. S. GOALS SET

Declare Task Is Impossible Unless Assurances Are Given

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—So far as Louisiana is concerned, the war food administration, in its suggested agricultural goals for 1944 production, has posed an impossible task for farmers. What with labor and feed shortages, high overhead costs, and limited marketing of relatively new products, such as soybeans and peanuts, it is not expected that production in this state will be more than that of this year, according to conclusions and recommendations reached by the state goals committee, which finished a three-day session Wednesday at Louisiana State university.

The committee adopted two sets of reports, one submitted by the subcommittee on production goals for 1944, and the other on "support and ceiling prices." Both reports were couched in emphatic terms indicating the impracticability of reaching the increased production suggested by the war food production administration for the coming year. In the case of peanuts and soybeans, as well as milk, production will be considerably less. These recommendations indicated accomplishment of the following su gested goals:

1—Definite prices to be paid for products are announced and guara teed before planting.

2—Definite markets are provided relatively new products, such as (p nuts and machinery is made availa to harvest such crops.

3—Definite assurance is made the major items of cost of producti are not increased beyond pres levels.

4—Definite assurance is given t an additional drain will not be ma on the labor supply between plant and harvesting time.

The conference indicated it w quite willing to go along with war food administration if conditio for adequate adjustment between fa prices and costs of production can reached, but declined to modify declaration of the sub-committee's port.

"We may seem drastic in mak these recommendations," said Dr. N. Efferson, chairman of the go sub-committee, "but the committ agreed that we must be realistic."

The recommendation was adop unanimously by the conference wh included representatives of vari agricultural agencies of the state, af its terms had been clarified for benefit of the war food administrat representatives.

Why Man's Prayers Did Not Stop Hitle

Millions of people daily practice meditation, prayer, new thought and other spiritual exercises. For many years, people of good will have been praying for the overthrow of Hitler, Hirohito and what they stand for. Why has the answer been so long delayed? Why do so many other prayers remain unanswered? Why does calamity often befall us in spite of our prayers?

Thirty years ago, in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world, a young Englishman named Edwin J. Dingle found the answers to these questions. A great mystic opened his eyes. A great change came over him. He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives.

That Power, he says, can transform the life of anyone. Questions, whatever they are, can be answered. The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong can be solved.

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health. He acquired wealth, too, as well as world-wide professional recognition. Thirty years ago, he was sick as a man could be and live. Once his coffin was bought. Years of almost continuous tropical fevers, broken bones, near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him, physically and mentally.

He was about to be sent back to England to die, when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet." He wants to tell the whole world what he learned there, under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his 21 years in the Far East. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came him.

Within 10 years, he was able to tire to this country with a fortu He had been honored by fellowsl in the World's leading geograph societies, for his work as a geograpl And today, 30 years later, he is so athletic, capable of so much w so young in appearance, it is hard believe he has lived so long.

McKenzie Home Scene Of Fashionable Gathering For Prenuptial Affair

Miss Virginia Earl Kersh wore one of her most distinctive trousseau models of Fuchsia crepe trimmed in sequins of the same color and roses of harmonizing color in her hair when she stood in the receiving line with her hostess, Miss Jane McKenzie, in the home of her parents, Congressman and Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, to receive guests who called between the hours of four and seven.

Miss Kersh, whose engagement to Lieutenant John Richard Miller, Jr., was recently announced by her parents, was the central figure on this occasion and her approaching marriage in Los Angeles, Calif., supplied the conversational theme.

Miss McKenzie, the hostess, was also a charming figure in a camellia pink light wool model with pink roses in her hair. Mrs. J. E. Kersh, the bride-elect's mother, wore a smoke blue crepe model studded in silver nail heads and Mrs. Harold Mouk, who also stood in the receiving line, was wearing a black chiffon model. Mrs. Lee Thompson, sister of the hostess, also assisted in receiving. She wore a black crepe model with rhinestone trimming.

Considerable artistry was noted in the arrangement of purple asters and pink roses clustered together in classic shaped urns and placed in the background of the reception suite.

The central decor, of silver wedding bells, was ingenuously arranged. One large bell adorned with a spray of Talisman roses centered the table. Miniature wedding bells fashioned of silver tulle were clustered at the base. At the four corners of the table white tapers gleamed in crystal candelabra. Monroe Clubwoman Says Fundamentals Of Life And Christianity To Survive

"Two influences will survive when swords are scrapped and cannons corroded. The first is a wholesome and hopeful perception of the fundamentals of life which buds and flowers into different forms of faith. That is Christianity. The other is the irresistible impulse to clothe this offspring of intellect and emotion in the garments of beauty. This is 'poetry'."

These words were spoken by Mrs. J. R. White, prominent Monroe club woman, when she addressed members of the Lambda Kappa club in Rayville last week on the subject of "Poetry."

Mrs. White accepted the invitation from the Rayville Federated club with customary graciousness and delighted her audience with remarks concerning a subject of great interest to this particular group of women.

Mrs. White said in part:

" 'Today unnoticed among the shattering, day-by-day reports of world-wide strife, something remarkable has been happening to people. They have been turning to old, old values. Muisc, art and poetry are becoming a part of everyday living as they never before have been in modern times. In the blacked-out homes of England and where gas masks are strapped to every shoulder, collections of verse of every kind lead all other books in sales' These are the words of Stanton A. Coblentz.

"Two reasons are given for the increased interest in poetry. One is that soldiers, off to the front, have discovered that an infinite richness of good writing can be found in a small book of poems, easily tucked into a knapsack. As one British Tommy put it: 'It's hardly ever you want to read a story over again as soon as you have finished it. But you take a good poem, now; the more you read it the more you get for reading that poem.' These were the words of a strong young man, who was ladden, from headgear to boots, with war paraphernalia—and was off to a place from which he might never return.

"The inspiration to be found in poetry is given as the reason why those who stay at home in England are turning to it. Poets always have written of love and parting, of war and death and heart-break. They have managed to give the saddest of these things a meaning that gives those who have suffered the courage to endure.

"Music, Art, Poetry, maybe the new, fresh interest in them is only an escape from the unbearable events of the day. If so, such an escape to beauty is not to be scorned. Rather, it should be said that people are returning to the classic values, the good values, the values that never have failed them.

"Over two hundred years ago, during the Napoleonic wars, William Blake wrote this: The times require that every one should speak out boldly. England expects that every man shall do his duty in arts and in arms or in parliament."

"Quoting from the Southern Literary Messenger, this article says: 'The arts have spoken for liberty in every age and every land, and with our own ideals of liberty, our arts should now leap into leadership.'

"It has recently been said, 'poetry should be encouraged in a nation, because it enriches the language by creating phrases which express an emotion as no other art can."

"Quoting Dr. Guy Inman, from Yale university, who appeared on the fine arts forum at the G. F. W. C. council meeting held in Fort Worth last May, he said in part, that in Latin America, 90 per cent of them would be 'writers.' He also stated that poetry was taught and the writing of it was stressed in the schools, and that most all of the school children write and publish their poetry, as most of the magazines use poetry. Dr. Inman urged this great body of women to keep on working with the arts, along with their war work, and hold to this assurance that peace will come, and that it will bring a wonderful future, if we remain calm and courageous, and adding a last statement he said: 'Where friendship is built, battleships never ply.' He was commending the general federation with that statement, for being able to give a whole week to a program on Pan Americanism. Going back to his point on "friendship" he said, 'friendship doesn't grow and develop in a day.'

"As a summary for the fine arts, Dr. Inman said, 'music soothes and fears. Beautiful paintings warm and stir the heart, poetry inspires and feeds the soul, and all true art is a divine thought.' He reminded us that we should take stock of our lives and hearts and be able to give good cheer at this time, as never before, for we who are left at home are the custodians of the home, and we are the ones 'to keep the home fires burning.'

"As Dr. Inman spoke, I was reminded of what Mr. Hoover said when he left the White House. He said, 'perhaps what the world needs today is a great poem.'

"From Clement Wood, 'poetry is the concentrated expression of the heart's desire. The very intensity of the concentration causes that rhythm-repetition that constitutes poetry in our cultures. We never desired more, collectively, than now: when the freedom-loving nations of the world are engaged in an all-out effort to restore civilized standards, peace and freedom for all, throughout the world. We must have sayers—tongues—for these desires. These tongues must be our poets—speaking as naturally and directly as we desire. Without such poets, we are a 100 per cent all-out effort—completely dumb, and without a voice, except diffuse unconcentrated prose. Where there is such a need, the poets will not fail us."

"The poet teaches us the essential worth of the human spirit, a fact so tragically disregarded by all military aggressions. The poet asserts for us the values of simple things—a book, a mountain flower, a sunset—values inevitably overlooked in the grasping after power and renown, profits and trade. The poet restores us to the fundamental emotions; to friendship and the love of one's mate and children. The poet enables us to view the brawls and feuds of the moment 'under the aspect of eternity'; the poet equips us to interpret and to see with perspective. In other words, the poet restores our balance, our sanity. He lifts the fiery mists of the world's illusion and points out the forgotten realities.

"This has always been the case with true poets. Certainly, the prophets of Biblical times, uttering their poetic peachments, did more for the world than any warrior buckling on a shield. Certainly, the lines of Shakespeare's 'histories' have had a more rousing effect upon posterity than did the martial heroes of an old England whose exploits they celebrate. Certainly, the King Arthur of legend—the idealistic, romantic inhabitant of a Camelot that never existed outside the poet's pages, has accomplished more to uplift the spirit of man than the great majority of actual kings. And when the last war drum has been sounded, assuming that any member of our species remains on that good day, it will be in the pages of the poets that the world will find the most living picture of the conflict; in the pages of the poets, the mask will be lifted above war's glamor and false acclaim and the truth will be inscribed most memorably."

"This has always been the case with true poets. Certainly, the prophets of Biblical times, uttering their poetic peachments, did more for the world than any warrior buckling on a shield. Certainly, the lines of Shakespeare's 'histories' have had a more rousing effect upon posterity than did the martial heroes of an old England whose exploits they celebrate. Certainly, the King Arthur of legend—the idealistic, romantic inhabitant of a Camelot that never existed outside the poet's pages, has accomplished more to uplift the spirit of man than the great majority of actual kings. And when the last war drum has been sounded, assuming that any member of our species remains on that good day, it will be in the pages of the poets that the world will find the most living picture of the conflict; in the pages of the poets, the mask will be lifted above war's glamor and false acclaim and the truth will be inscribed most memorably."

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, Inc., is twenty-four years old, and National Business Women's week will be sixteen years old when it is observed from October 10-16, 1943. The week has become absorbed into the federation's fiber and is looked upon as one of the outstanding publicity events of the year. It is a stimulus to program interpretation; and to membership stabilization and gains. Coming, as it does, in October, it is the springboard for launching the club's work for the winter.

The Monroe club members have mapped out a full week of activity with their annual banquet Tuesday night highlighting the program from a social angle. Today they will attend church in a body following a friendly interlude in the home of Miss Alice Baur where coffee will be served.

Club Women To Hold Convention Nov. 2-3

According to Mrs. Fenn A. Leaming, president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs, the forty-fourth annual convention will be held at Shreveport, November 2-3, 1943. The Washington-Youree hotel will be headquarters for the convention. Each club throughout the state is being urged to send delegates to the convention as the present triennium closes at this time and election of new officers will be held. The highlight of the convention will be the address by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, has spent five and a half weeks in England, as the guest of the British government, studying women's activities and methods of handling social problems in wartime. She returned with a strengthened conviction that the hope of the future is in world cooperation.

"When you traverse great distances from one continent to another within a few hours by plane, as I did," says Mrs. Whitehurst, "you are forced to drop all ideas of isolationism. The people of the United States must devote more time to the study of economics, customs and geographies of other countries. We should cast out all the maps in our geography books and substitute the polar maps which show the true geographical relationship in the present aviation era."

A study of peace plans and post-war problems was inaugurated by Mrs. Whitehurst among the 2,500,000 members of the federation several months ago, and at that time Mrs. Whitehurst wrote two books, "Peace and Post-War Planning" and "Reciprocal Trade Agreements," to assist clubs in their study.

The "Buy a Bomber" campaign, launched in every state by Mrs. Whitehurst, is well under way—with one or more bombers already assured by the Maryland, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Colorado and Massachusetts Federations. The goal is a powerful fleet of bombers, made possible through the purchase of war bonds. These battleships of the air will carry the names of the state and district federations and clubs providing them.

The recruitment of no less than 20,000 student nurses is another continuing objective of the federation. The program, initiated by Mrs. Whitehurst, in cooperation with the American Red Cross and the National Nursing council for war service, provides scholarships, usually of $250, for students recruited. Scholarships raised to date total approximately $200,000. The plan has been enlarged to include help to girls desiring a year's college training before entering the school of nursing and to assist women who are training for practical nursing.

Other important federation programs, directed by Mrs. Whitehurst, include a nation-wide campaign to reduce deliquency through cooperation of law enforcement and welfare agencies and the provision of worthwhile, spare-time activities for youth; conservation and rationing programs; salvage drives; nutrition classes; nurses' aide, first aid and home nursing courses; gardening and canning; recruitment of labor for farms and industry; recruitment of women volunteer for military services; and nursery care for children.

As editor-in-chief of the General Federation Clubwomen, Mrs. Whitehurst has devoted every issue to promoting war service and international understanding. The October, 1943, magazine carries a record of her own experience in England, and her impressions of the British people.

Mrs. Whitehurst not only heads the largest women's organization in the world, but she serves on thirty national advisory committees. She is the only woman member and secretary of the board of regents, University of Maryland, and of the state board of agriculture. She serves as the only woman member of the Maryland council of defense and resources—in which capacity she organized the women of Maryland for war service.

Mrs. Whitehurst was born in Philadelphia, studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, and had come to Baltimore to specialize in psychiatry at Johns Hopkins university when she met Mr. Whitehurst and changed her mind about a medical career. The Maryland Federation of Women's clubs drafted her for president from 1930 to 1932. In the General Federation she served as vice-chairman of legislation from 1932 to 1935; as chairman of education, 1935-1938; and as vice-president, 1938-1941.

Mrs. Whitehurst is tall and distinguished looking—equally as attractive as she is intelligent. She prefers dark clothes for the platform, and on every occasion is dressed with impeccable taste.

EARLY FALL BRIDE

Mrs. Carl Hessick, formerly Miss Myrra Flanigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Flanigan whose marriage to Lieutenant Hessick was an interesting event of September 27.

Literary Guild Holds Year's First Meeting

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale and Mrs. E. D. Holloway were hostesses to the Literary Guild in the home of Mrs. Holloway, Monday afternoon when the first meeting of the year was held. Officers for this year are: Mrs. C. U. Johnson, president; Mrs. Wharton Brown, vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Wilson, treasurer; Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, secretary, and Mrs. Duncan Cook, reporter.

During the business session committees for the year were appointed and delegates to the State Federation meeting to be held in Shreveport November 2 were also appointed. Mrs. Brown will be in Shreveport as alternate to the president and Mrs. W. M. Harper and Mrs. J. P. Brown will serve as delegates.

Mrs. W. M. Harper in a delightfully informal manner capably reviewed "Origins of the American Revolution," by John C. Miller. This book written from an impartial viewpoint serves to elucidate and correct many misconceptions of the causes underlying our Revolution against England. Henry Seidel Canby says, "This is a book that every American able to use his brains should, sooner or later, read. For it tells the story of a revolution that began with the struggle for independence and has not yet ended. This is the great central theme of American history and those who do not understand it will never understand their own United States."

"It has been said by a competent authority to be the best book ever written on the American Revolution, regared not as a series of battles but as a great ideological struggle involving the future of the English speaking communities and of Anglo-Saxon influence throughout the World."

Mrs. J. G. Durrett gave clear and concise review of "Reflections on the Revolution of our Time," by Harold J. Laski. A brief outline which would give an idea of the range of Mr. Laski's book and of the basic importance of the material he discusses would include: The discussion of the role fear as the dominant factor in the outloook of the ruling classes today.

A new analysis of the Russian Revolution, and a magnificently just balance sheet of the virtues and defeats, the strengths and weaknesses of the Soviet regime.

An assessment of the influence of the Communist International on groups outside of Russia.

An acute analysis of the class nature of Fascism, and the psychology of the Fascist movements.

A discussion of Churchill and his place in history, and the role of the British Labour Party and its leadership.

A critique of the various plans for European unity and world federation, showing their approach to the basic problems of property and power.

A discussion of what to do with Germany after the war.

An exposure of the nature of the counter-revolution, not only in Fascism, but also as latent in the clash between capitalism and democracy.

A discussion of the practibility of "revolution by consent."

An evaluation of freedom in a planned democracy.

Both of these books are recommended as an excellent means of becoming more familiar with the problems the world is facing today.

Coffee, cake and salted nuts were served in the dining room, with Mrs. W. M. Harper presiding at the tea table. Beautiful radiance rose buds were used in all the reception rooms.

Those present in addition to the hostesses were: Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. P. L. Perot, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Mrs. Wharton Brown, Mrs. C. K. Crandall, Mrs. Herbert Dickard, Mrs. C. U. Johnson, Mrs. B. M. McKoin, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Herbert Breard, Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, Mrs. J. G. Durrett.

Miss Myrra Flanigan Weds Lieut. Hessick

Claiming the interest of a wide circle of friends in the marriage of Miss Myrra Flanigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Flanigan of this city and Lieutenant Carl S. Hessick, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Hessick of DeWitt, Mich., at the First Baptist church parsonage with the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings, officiating.

Wartime simplicity characterized every detail of the ceremony witnessed by members of the family and a few intimate friends.

Lieutenant Charles J. Pratt served in the capacity of best man.

The bride wore a beautiful advanced fall model of aqua light weight wool with a small black velvet hat and shoulder length veil and a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Hessick is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Northeast Junior college. For the past year she has been employed at Selman field.

Lieutenant Hessick is a graduate of DeWitt High school and was graduated from the advanced navigation school at Selman field in July. Since that time he has been in training in Chicago.

Miss Flanigan's betrothal to Lieutenant Hessick was announced to a few intimates in the home Mrs. Harvey H. Benoit where many charming courtesies were extended. Beautiful crimson roses arranged with considerable artistry were everywhere in evidence.

Mrs. Benoit introduced a clever contest suggestive of the approaching nuptial event. The lucky contestants, Mrs. David Garrett and Miss Mary Joyce Darcy, were presented with lovely gifts. They in turn presented them to the guest of honor.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of beautiful gifts of a miscellaneous nature to Miss Flanigan.

Mrs. Frank Patterson, co-hostess on this occasion assisted Mrs. Benoit in serving delectable refreshments.

Atheneum Club Hears Talk By Mrs. Harper

The Atheneum club members were delightfully entertained in the home of Mrs. John Barr, with Mrs. D. E. Elliott as co-hostesses. The program was exceptionally interesting and very timely. Mrs. John Harper 're-viewed "The Seventh Cross," by Anna Seghers. This is the story of seven men who escaped from a concentration camp in Germany and what happened to the people who sought to aid them. Seven trees were stripped and made to resemble crosses in the court yard of the camp. As each of the prisoners were returned they were hung upon the crosses. George Heisler, the important character, alone remains free, and the tree, now bare designated for him remains a symbol of hope for an oppressed people, under the heel of Nazi rule. It spells failure of the Gestapo to fell a prisoner as well as the free spirit of the people.

Mrs. Harper told club members a little of the life of the author. She said: "Anna Seghers is a German, born in the Rhine valley of Jewish parents. Her father recently died and her mother was deported to Poland. When Hitler came into power she and her husband, a Hungarian, fled to Paris. Later they came to Mexico, where she continues her writing. She has a quiet style of writing, capable of arousing great feeling in the reader."

Skipping to the other side of the world, Mrs. D. L. Nicol ably reviewed "The Three Bamboos," by Robert Standish, a novel of the treachery of the Japanese. It is the story of the Fureno family whose emblem is the three bamboos. There is an old folk tale about those who tie themselves to the oak tree during a passing huricane and are uprooted and blown away. Those who tie themselves to the bamboo sway with the storm and always spring back erect. The three generations of the Furenos have chosen this idea. The sons of the family are sent to America early in the nineteenth century to learn and devour the western man's ways of living and learning and fighting. Armed with this knowledge generations of Japanese prepare to conquer the world. With the story the awful truth unfolds. Japan has emerged from a little agricultural island group to an industrial power which the whole Allied world must fight to subdue.

After the program, refreshments, suggesting Halloween were served to the following members and guests, Mesdames: W. C. Curry, A. I. Dickerson, Agnes Dickerson, T. Gallien, Fred Grant, John Harper, S. D. Kennedy, C. C. Miller, W. C. Minniear, D. L. Nicol, W. Morris, Fred Sanders.

Mrs. Whitehurst not only heads the largest women's organization in the world, but she serves on thirty national advisory committees. She is the only woman member and secretary of the board of regents, University of Maryland, and of the state board of agriculture. She serves as the only woman member of the Maryland council of defense and resources—in which capacity she organized the women of Maryland for war service.

Mrs. Whitehurst was born in Philadelphia, studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, and had come to Baltimore to specialize in psychiatry at Johns Hopkins university when she met Mr. Whitehurst and changed her mind about a medical career. The Maryland Federation of Women's clubs drafted her for president from 1930 to 1932. In the General Federation she served as vice-chairman of legislation from 1932 to 1935; as chairman of education, 1935-1938; and as vice-president, 1938-1941.

Mrs. Whitehurst is tall and distinguished looking—equally as attractive as she is intelligent. She prefers dark clothes for the platform, and on every occasion is dressed with impeccable taste.

EARLY FALL BRIDE

Mrs. Carl Hessick, formerly Miss Myrra Flanigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Flanigan whose marriage to Lieutenant Hessick was an interesting event of September 27.

Literary Guild Holds Year's First Meeting

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale and Mrs. E. D. Holloway were hostesses to the Literary Guild in the home of Mrs. Holloway, Monday afternoon when the first meeting of the year was held. Officers for this year are: Mrs. C. U. Johnson, president; Mrs. Wharton Brown, vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, treasurer; Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, secretary, and Mrs. Duncan Cook, reporter.

During the business session committees for the year were appointed and delegates to the State Federation meeting to be held in Shreveport November 2 were also appointed. Mrs. Brown will be in Shreveport as alternate to the president and Mrs. W. M. Harper and Mrs. J. P. Brown will serve as delegates.

Mrs. W. M. Harper in a delightfully informal manner capably reviewed "Origins of the American Revolution," by John C. Miller. This book written from an impartial viewpoint serves to elucidate and correct many misconceptions of the causes underlying our Revolution against England. Henry Seidel Canby says, "This is a book that every American able to use his brains should, sooner or later, read. For it tells the story of a revolution that began with the struggle for independence and has not yet ended. This is the great central theme of American history and those who do not understand it will never understand their own United States."

"It has been said by a competent authority to be the best book ever written on the American Revolution, regared not as a series of battles but as a great ideological struggle involving the future of the English speaking communities and of Anglo-Saxon influence throughout the World."

Mrs. J. G. Durrett gave clear and concise review of "Reflections on the Revolution of our Time," by Harold J. Laski. A brief outline which would give an idea of the range of Mr. Laski's book and of the basic importance of the material he discusses would include: The discussion of the role fear as the dominant factor in the outloook of the ruling classes today.

A new analysis of the Russian Revolution, and a magnificently just balance sheet of the virtues and defeats, the strengths and weaknesses of the Soviet regime.

An assessment of the influence of the Communist International on groups outside of Russia.

An acute analysis of the class nature of Fascism, and the psychology of the Fascist movements.

A discussion of Churchill and his place in history, and the role of the British Labour Party and its leadership.

A critique of the various plans for European unity and world federation, showing their approach to the basic problems of property and power.

A discussion of what to do with Germany after the war.

An exposure of the nature of the counter-revolution, not only in Fascism, but also as latent in the clash between capitalism and democracy.

A discussion of the practibility of "revolution by consent."

An evaluation of freedom in a planned democracy.

Both of these books are recommended as an excellent means of becoming more familiar with the problems the world is facing today.

Coffee, cake and salted nuts were served in the dining room, with Mrs. W. M. Harper presiding at the tea table. Beautiful radiance rose buds were used in all the reception rooms.

Those present in addition to the hostesses were: Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. P. L. Perot, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Mrs. Wharton Brown, Mrs. C. K. Crandall, Mrs. Herbert Dickard, Mrs. C. U. Johnson, Mrs. B. M. McKoin, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Herbert Beard, Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, Mrs. J. G. Durrett.

Miss Myrra Flanigan Weds Lieut. Hessick

Claiming the interest of a wide circle of friends in the marriage of Miss Myrra Flanigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Flanigan of this city and Lieutenant Carl S. Hessick, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Hessick of DeWitt, Mich., at the First Baptist church parsonage with the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings, officiating.

Wartime simplicity characterized every detail of the ceremony witnessed by members of the family and a few intimate friends.

Lieutenant Charles J. Pratt served in the capacity of best man.

The bride wore a beautiful advanced fall model of aqua light weight wool with a small black velvet hat and shoulder length veil and a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Hessick is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Northeast Junior college. For the past year she has been employed at Selman field.

Lieutenant Hessick is a graduate of DeWitt High school and was graduated from the advanced navigation school at Selman field in July. Since that time he has been in training in Chicago.

Miss Flanigan's betrothal to Lieutenant Hessick was announced to a few intimates in the home Mrs. Harvey H. Benoit where many charming courtesies were extended. Beautiful crimson roses arranged with considerable artistry were everywhere in evidence.

Mrs. Benoit introduced a clever contest suggestive of the approaching nuptial event. The lucky contestants, Mrs. David Garrett and Miss Mary Joyce Darcy, were presented with lovely gifts. They in turn presented them to the guest of honor.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of beautiful gifts of a miscellaneous nature to Miss Flanigan.

Mrs. Frank Patterson, co-hostess on this occasion assisted Mrs. Benoit in serving delectable refreshments.

Atheneum Club Hears Talk By Mrs. Harper

The Atheneum club members were delightfully entertained in the home of Mrs. John Barr, with Mrs. D. E. Elliott as co-hostesses. The program was exceptionally interesting and very timely. Mrs. John Harper "reviewed "The Seventh Cross," by Anna Seghers. This is the story of seven men who escaped from a concentration camp in Germany and what happened to the people who sought to aid them. Seven trees were stripped and made to resemble crosses in the court yard of the camp. As each of the prisoners were returned they were hung upon the crosses. George Heisler, the important character, alone remains free, and the tree, now bare, designated for him remains a symbol of hope for an oppressed people, under the heel of Nazi rule. It spells failure of the Gestapo to fell a prisoner as well as the free spirit of the people.

Mrs. Harper told club members a little of the life of the author. She said: "Anna Seghers is a German, born in the Rhine valley of Jewish parents. Her father recently died and her mother was deported to Poland When Hitler came into power she and her husband, a Hungarian, fled to Paris. Later they came to Mexico, where she continues her writing. She has a quiet style of writing, capable of arousing great feeling in the reader."

Skipping to the other side of the world, Mrs. D. L. Nicol ably reviewed "The Three Bamboos," by Robert Standish, a novel of the treachery of the Japanese. It is the story of the Fureno family whose emblem is the three bamboos. There is an old folk tale about those who tie themselves to the oak tree during a passing hurricane and are uprooted and blown away. Those who tie themselves to the bamboo sway with the storm and always spring back erect. The three generations of the Furenos have chosen this idea. The sons of the family are sent to America early in the nineteenth century to learn and devour the western man's ways of living and learning and fighting. Armed with this knowledge generations of Japanese prepare to conquer the world. With the story the awful truth unfolds. Japan has emerged from a little agricultural island group to an industrial power which the whole Allied world must fight to subdue.

After the program, refreshments, suggesting Halloween were served to the following members and guests, Mesdames: W. C. Curry, A. I. Dickerson, Agnes Dickerson, T. Gallien, Fred Grant, John Harper, S. D. Kennedy, C. C. Miller, W. C. Minniear, D. L. Nicol, W. Morris, Fred Sanders.

Reader's Clique Hears Talk By Mrs. Archibald

Address On Painting Features Meeting At Which Mrs. Cheshire Is Hostess

The members of the Reader's Clique met Thursday afternoon in the clubroom of the Recreation center with Mrs. J. L. Cheshire, hostess.

Mrs. Henry Loeb, president, called the meeting to order and the club collect was read in unison. After the usual business meeting Mrs. W. M. Ryland, Jr., introduced Mrs. Stanley B. Archibald, who gave a most interesting and inspiring talk.

She said "I like to paint—to dab with colors—I like to smell paint and turpentine and linseed oil. Every time I find a bare space of as much as six inches in my house I run for my paint box and have myself a most delicious time. Then someone comes along and says "I wish I could do that." Well, you can—we will! right now before you get too comfortably seated let's go to the nearest reliable paint store where we will purchase white enamel and oil colors. With these you can make any colors you like. Now, some brushes—turpentine—have clean rags, paper towels, clean jars or glasses and wax paper.

"Now every time I see someone who has taken an old machine and made it into a delightful hall or porch table or a old round oak dining table and made it into a huge low coffee table or cut it in half for a hall console or made barrels into yard furniture or used milk jugs with flat cushion tops for stools to sit on around a barbecue table—I am entranced and enchanted. With energy and ingenuity we could do the same original things and have more fun than anything.

"There are lots of ideas for painting—use gay colors—paint names—phrases—make toy chests—have color in the children's rooms—paint children's names on their drawers in the chests—put decorations on them—airplanes, boats, trains, flowers, hearts or bows. I'm not talking about your new period piece in solid mahogany, becaues the child probably won't get that until he or she is ready to go away to college.

"Your home should be a cheery place and a place where members of your family are eager to come at the close of day. A comfortable place where they can be happy and not thwarted—yours is a big job—you have to go like a windmill all day and yet be a delightful, poised mistress of the smoothly run house when the day is done. That home is your own especially created kingdom. You are the queer—it's a wonderful profession—it will never grow dull if you keep changing it—clinging to some old doo-dad for sentimental reasons—I panning a new color scheme—new slip covers—new paint jobs—you have to do this and it doesn't mean big expense, just brush off or hide away some of the collection of things you have had laying around for the last eight years and start all over putting things out again, so the moment people enter your living room they won't quickly date you and say 'From the looks of things I'd say she has been married about twenty years.' Don't have a dated living room. Have some pictures that you like on the walls of your home too. There is no job you could take anywhere that gives back the joy and precious memory that your profession as homemaker does—if well done. "He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much, who has enjoyed the trust of pure women, the respect of intelligent men."

Mrs. Archibald closed her talk with a beautiful poem:

"We bought a house today! A guest oak spreading
Its branches wide to all wild things and shy,
Six slender thorn trees with their frail leaves threading
A patterned lace across an oval sky.
Stout beams and rafters overlaid with shingles,
Two tall red chimneys and a carven door,
And honeysuckle with barberry mingles,
Beside a shaded porch with red tiled floor.
So much of beauty! We would ask Thy Guiding
Let all who cross the threshold of this place
Find hope and courage, friendliness abiding,
And added to these, grant Thy gift of Grace,
Let peace that passes understanding rest
Upon this house, and us, and every guest."

After the distribution of club books, delicious refreshments were served to the following members and guests:

Mrs. Henry Loeb, Mrs Raymon John, Mrs. J. S. Sumerall, Mrs. E. T. Robinson; Mrs. Alvin Furlough, Mrs. Skeeter Morgan, Mrs. Fred Hemler, Mrs. Fred Parrish, Mrs. Louis Peters, Mrs. W. M. Ryland, Jr., Mrs. Wilbur Ross, Mrs. Sidney Gill. Mrs. Russell Cook, Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. Oliver Lowery, Mrs. Burl Hollis. Guests: Mrs. Richard Paige, Mrs. J R. Chandler, and Mrs. Stanley B. Archibald.

PERSONALS

Highlighting the social calendar for the month of October is the Junior Charity League ball at Lakeside country club. Plans for this event are now being whipped into shape by the league president, Mrs. Foster Wallace and members of the committee. Mrs. William Conley is serving as general chairman and is being assisted by Mrs. George Weaks, Jr. Mrs. James Standley is publicity chairman and Mrs. Henry Hinkle is ticket chairman. Tickets have been placed on sale and can be purchased at this time from Mrs. Hinkle.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be used by the league for expenses attached to their free baby clinic and milk for underprivileged children.

Mrs. Charles Mitchell left last night for New Orleans where she will represent Fort Miro chapter Daughters of the American Revolution at the meeting presided over by the state regent, Mrs. T. F. Moody, who will present the American Red Cross with a mobile unit. Fort Miro chapter on Tag Day, October 2, raised more than $600 for this fund. The mobile unit will be used for transportation of staff in gathering blood. It gets A-1 priority right up to the battle line. It is possible to give a soldier blood plasma 10 minutes after he is wounded and thus save his life.

Mrs. A. V. Landry, Mrs. Jennie Harrison, Mrs. W. L. Tillman, David Powell and Gilbert L. Talbert, all of Mangham, La., have returned from a recent visit with friends and relatives in Baton Rouge.

Members of the Monroe Garden club have been notified that Miss Carolyn Dorman, noted Louisiana naturalist, will be unable to appear as guest speaker on their program Monday afternoon.

Her lecture, "Our Heritage of Beauty," has already been prepared and will be read by Mrs. James A. Noe. The lecture contains some interesting and valuable material and all gardeners who are interested are extended an invitation to be present. The meeting will be held in the Butterfly room of the Frances hotel.

Times have certainly changed. In years gone by the public was urged to purchase Little Theater tickets. Now the public is asking for them. One of the reasons perhaps for the splendid interest displayed by the public generally in the Little Theater's production this season is the presentation of "Rebecca," one of the most widely read novels of the year.

"Rebecca" will be presented later in the month under the direction of Mildred Merrill. A notable cast has been selected for the opening night performance and interest is running high in Little Theater circles at this time.

All those who desire to purchase their Little Theater season tickets at this time will find them on sale in room 616 Bernhardt building.

Miss Abbie Laurie McBride, assistant director of Young People's Work for the Presbyterian Synod of Louisiana, will be the guest speaker of the meeting at the First Presbyterian church tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Miss McBride is an inspirational speaker and will have a message of vital importance to all young people of the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson of 104 North 4th street in West Monroe, have just returned from a two weeks' visit with Mr. Wilson's relatives in Missouri. It was the first time in 41 years he had seen his brothers and sisters.

Red Cross To Hold Course In Nutrition

Complying with Red Cross requirements, courses in nutrition will begin shortly in order that interested women may qualify to participate in the canteen class which will follow, and qualify to participate as members of the Red Cross Canteen corps.

On October 18 at 2 p.m. at Red Cross headquarters, anyone interested in the 20-hour nutrition course is urged to be present in order that definite dates may be set for the classes to begin immediately. If there are sufficient numbers desiring a night class one will be formed. Anyone interested who can not be present at the meeting can register by calling Mrs. Nicol, 5485-R or vice chairman, Mrs. R. L. Conway, Jr. 3580, or Red Cross headquarters.

The objectives of the nutrion course is as follows:

To impart information of the relation of food to physical and mental efficiency, stamina, strength, nervous conditions, courage and morale.

To present the facts about food needs, food values and the newer principles of food preparation and service.

To encourage good individual, and family food and health habits.

To investigate community needs in nutrition and available resources for meeting the needs.

To train volunteers to assist in the national nutrition program through community activities in nutrition.

To train lay volunteers to assist in family and group feeding under emergency conditions.

This nutrition course is open to those who are interested in bettering their home and community by newer knowledge of the relation of food to health. Another aim of the nutrition course is to develop good practices in the selection, preparation and purchase of foods and to encourage the daily practice of desirable food and health habits.

Those completing the nutrition course are qualified to take the 20-hour canteen course. It is hoped that those who have time to give to the activities of the Red Cross canteen, make plans now to take these classes and join the ranks of the volunteers who are assisting at the USO snack bar, Red Cross recreation hall at Selman field hospital, and at the Red Cross canteen on the Selman field flight line which will soon open for transient flyers.

Any member of a local P.-T. A. unit can contact their study group chairman who will be glad to give further information. Classes so organized can be counted as a study group.

Welcome Branch Book Club Plans Benefit

Members of the Welcome Branch Book club are busy making plans for the second annual benefit card party to be held the afternoon of November 2 at the Monroe Recreation center located at 1702 South Grand street. Two worthy young women have entered the St. Francis school of nursing as a result of the work of club members and the splendid response given this project by the public. This scholarship was formed in answer to a call made by our government for nurses. The cry for more nurses is even greater now than before, as the demand is increasing daily for nurses on both the battle front and home front.

Persons attending this party are assured a pleasant afternoon socially. They will also derive considerable satisfaction in knowing they have contributed toward a worthwhile project.

Mrs. Lewis Addresses Welcome Garden Club

The Welcome Garden club met in the K. P. hall for their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. John P. Lewis, president, presided and minutes of the preceding meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. John Harper, and approved.

A letter was read from Mr. R. C. White, regarding the Ouachita parish war fund drive, and members voted to give the usual donation.

The state president urged the club to send a representative to the fall board meeting in New Orleans, October 27.

Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, chairman of the Streets and Park committee, gave a splendid report.

A committee was appointed to cooperate with the new residents in the new housing project in the south part of town. Mrs. John Harper and Mrs. W. A. Smith will cooperate with Mrs. Tidwell and her committee, and see what can be done about helping the new residents beautify their new surroundings.

Mrs. Jack Bagwell, chairman of committee to assist in beautifying the lounge at the Red Cross Recreation hall at Selman field, asked members to let her know if they have any plants available for this room.

In the absence of the program chairman, Mrs. Lewis introduced the speaker, Mrs. H. V. Collins, who spoke on the subject of "Strawberries."

Mrs. Collins stated that in picking your strawberry plants, emphasize flavor and best eating quality. No need to pick varieties which ship well, like commercial planters. Have a well-drained spot, with sunshine, and preferably on high ground. Necessary humus of barnyard manure is needed. Best time to plant is in the fall. Reader's Clique Hears Talk By Mrs. Archibald

Mrs. Henry Loeb, president, called the meeting to order and the club collect was read in unison. After the usual business meeting Mrs. W. M. Ryland, Jr., introduced Mrs. Stanley B. Archibald, who gave a most interesting and inspiring talk.

She said "I like to paint—to dab with colors—I like to smell paint and turpentine and linseed oil. Every time I find a bare space of as much as six inches in my house I run for my paint box and have myself a most delicious time. Then someone comes along and says "I wish I could do that." Well, you can—we will! right now before you get too comfortably seated let's go to the nearest reliable paint store where we will purchase white enamel and oil colors. With these you can make any colors you like. Now, some brushes—turpentine—have clean rags, paper towels, clean jars or glasses and wax paper.

"Now every time I see someone who has taken an old machine and made it into a delightful hall or porch table or a old round oak dining table and made it into a huge low coffee table or cut it in half for a hall console or made barrels into yard furniture or used milk jugs with flat cushion tops for stools to sit on around a barbecue table—I am entranced and enchanted. With energy and ingenuity we could do the same original things and have more fun than anything.

"There are lots of ideas for painting—use gay colors—paint names—phrases—make toy chests—have color in the children's rooms—paint children's names on their drawers in the chests—put decorations on them—airplanes, boats, trains, flowers, hearts or bows. I'm not talking about your new period piece in solid mahogany, becaues the child probably won't get that until he or she is ready to go away to college.

"Your home should be a cheery place and a place where members of your family are eager to come at the close of day. A comfortable place where they can be happy and not thwarted—yours is a big job—you have to go like a windmill all day and yet be a delightful, poised mistress of the smoothly run house when the day is done. That home is your own especially created kingdom. You are the queen—it's a wonderful profession—it will never grow dull if you keep changing it—clinging to some old doo-dad for sentimental reasons—I panning a new color scheme—new slip covers—new paint jobs—you have to do this and it doesn't mean big expense, just brush off or hide away some of the collection of things you have had laying around for the last eight years and start all over putting things out again, so the moment people enter your living room they won't quickly date you and say 'From the looks of things I'd say she has been married about twenty years.' Don't have a dated living room. Have some pictures that you like on the walls of your home too. There is no job you could take anywhere that gives back the joy and precious memory that your profession as homemaker does —if well done. "He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much, who has enjoyed the trust of pure women, the respect of intelligent men."

Mrs. Archibald closed her talk with a beautiful poem:

"We bought a house today! A guest oak spreading
Its branches wide to all wild things and shy,
Six slender thorn trees with their frail leaves threading
A patterned lace across an oval sky.
Stout beams and rafters overlaid with shingles,
Two tall red chimneys and a carven door,
And honeysuckle with barberry mingles,
Beside a shaded porch with red tiled floor.
So much of beauty! We would ask Thy Guiding
Let all who cross the threshold of this place
Find hope and courage, friendliness abiding,
And added to these, grant Thy gift of Grace,
Let peace that passes understanding rest
Upon this house, and us, and every guest."

After the distribution of club books, delicious refreshments were served to the following members and guests:

Mrs. Henry Loeb, Mrs Raymon John, Mrs. J. S. Sumerall, Mrs. E. T. Robinson; Mrs. Alvin Furlough, Mrs. Skeeter Morgan, Mrs. Fred Hemler, Mrs. Fred Parrish, Mrs. Louis Peters, Mrs. W. M. Ryland, Jr., Mrs. Wilbur Ross, Mrs. Sidney Gill, Mrs. Russell Cook, Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. Oliver Lowery, Mrs. Burl Hollis. Guests: Mrs. Richard Paige, Mrs. J R. Chandler, and Mrs. Stanley B. Archibald.

PERSONALS

Highlighting the social calendar for the month of October is the Junior Charity League ball at Lakeside country club. Plans for this event are now being whipped into shape by the league president, Mrs. Foster Wallace and members of the committee. Mrs. William Conley is serving as general chairman and is being assisted by Mrs. George Weaks, Jr. Mrs. James Standley is publicity chairman and Mrs. Henry Hinkle is ticket chairman. Tickets have been placed on sale and can be purchased at this time from Mrs. Hinkle.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be used by the league for expenses attached to their free baby clinic and milk for underprivileged children.

Mrs. Charles Mitchell left last night for New Orleans where she will represent Fort Miro chapter Daughters of the American Revolution at the meeting presided over by the state regent, Mrs. T. F. Moody, who will present the American Red Cross with a mobile unit. Fort Miro chapter on Tag Day, October 2, raised more than $600 for this fund. The mobile unit will be used for transportation of staff in gathering blood. It gets A-1 priority right up to the battle line. It is possible to give a soldier blood plasma 10 minutes after he is wounded and thus save his life.

Mrs. A. V. Landry, Mrs. Jennie Harrison, Mrs. W. L. Tillman, David Powell and Gilbert L. Talbert, all of Mangham, La., have returned from a recent visit with friends and relatives in Baton Rouge.

Members of the Monroe Garden club have been notified that Miss Carolyn Dorman, noted Louisiana naturalist, will be unable to appear as guest speaker on their program Monday afternoon.

Her lecture, "Our Heritage of Beauty," has already been prepared and will be read by Mrs. James A. Noe. The lecture contains some interesting and valuable material and all gardeners who are interested are extended an invitation to be present. The meeting will be held in the Butterfly room of the Frances hotel.

Times have certainly changed. In years gone by the public was urged to purchase Little Theater tickets. Now the public is asking for them. One of the reasons perhaps for the splendid interest displayed by the public generally in the Little Theater's production this season is the presentation of "Rebecca," one of the most widely read novels of the year.

"Rebecca" will be presented later in the month under the direction of Mildred Merrill. A notable cast has been selected for the opening night performance and interest is running high in Little Theater circles at this time.

All those who desire to purchase their Little Theater season tickets at this time will find them on sale in room 616 Bernhardt building.

Miss Abbie Laurie McBride, assistant director of Young People's Work for the Presbyterian Synod of Louisiana, will be the guest speaker of the meeting at the First Presbyterian church tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Miss McBride is an inspirational speaker and will have a message of vital importance to all young people of the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson of 104 North 4th street in West Monroe, have just returned from a two weeks' visit with Mr. Wilson's relatives in Missouri. It was the first time in 41 years he had seen his brothers and sisters.

Red Cross To Hold Course In Nutrition

Complying with Red Cross requirements, courses in nutrition will begin shortly in order that interested women may qualify to participate in the canteen class which will follow, and qualify to participate as members of the Red Cross Canteen corps.

On October 18 at 2 p.m. at Red Cross headquarters, anyone interested in the 20-hour nutrition course is urged to be present in order that definite dates may be set for the classes to begin immediately. If there are sufficient numbers desiring a night class one will be formed. Anyone interested who can not be present at the meeting can register by calling Mrs. Nicol, 5485-R or vice chairman, Mrs. R. L. Conway, Jr. 3580, or Red Cross headquarters.

The objectives of the nutrion course is as follows:

To impart information of the relation of food to physical and mental efficiency, stamina, strength, nervous conditions, courage and morale.

To present the facts about food needs, food values and the newer principles of food preparation and service.

To encourage good individual, and family food and health habits.

To investigate community needs in nutrition and available resources for meeting the needs.

To train volunteers to assist in the national nutrition program through community activities in nutrition.

To train lay volunteers to assist in family and group feeding under emergency conditions.

This nutrition course is open to those who are interested in bettering their home and community by newer knowledge of the relation of food to health. Another aim of the nutrition course is to develop good practices in the selection, preparation and purchase of foods and to encourage the daily practice of desirable food and health habits.

Those completing the nutrition course are qualified to take the 20-hour canteen course. It is hoped that those who have time to give to the activities of the Red Cross canteen, make plans now to take these classes and join the ranks of the volunteers who are assisting at the USO snack bar, Red Cross recreation hall at Selman field hospital, and at the Red Cross canteen on the Selman field flight line which will soon open for transient flyers.

Any member of a local P.-T. A. unit can contact their study group chairman who will be glad to give further information. Classes so organized can be counted as a study group.

This scholarship was formed in answer to a call made by our government for nurses. The cry for more nurses is even greater now than before, as the demand is increasing daily for nurses on both the battle front and home front.

Persons attending this party are assured a pleasant afternoon socially. They will also derive considerable satisfaction in knowing they have contributed toward a worthwhile project.

Irs. Petty Addresses Welcome Branch Club

lk On Stalin Features Interesting Meeting Whose Theme Is Russian Affairs

Russia was the subject chosen for study when the memrs of the Welcome Branch Book club met Wednesday afteron at the Monroe Recreation Center.

Mrs. Paul T. Wright gave a short talk on "Life on the ussian Frontier" as seen by Wendell L. Willkie. A large aviaon plant located outside of Moscow and collective farms and eir relation to the Russian war front were described. Mrs. right closed with these remarks: "No, we do not need to ar Russia. We need to learn to work with her against our mmon enemy, Hitler. We need to learn to work with her in e world after the war. For Russia is a dynamic country, a tal new society, a force that cannot be by-passed in any fure world."

Irs. J. D. Petty reviewed in a most eresting manner "Stalin" by Emil dwig. She said in part:

Since the beginning of Stalin's dicorship his state has been threatened no one so much as the Germans. vertheless, as he confided to Mr. dwig, the memory of the old corl relationship between the two nans was still in his heart. All the e Year Plans had been conceived anticipation of a German attack. e same anticipation prompted Stalin look for future allies in the west. tried for 15 years to gain England's nfidence. When the British recoged the Soviets in 1924 they did this th utmost reluctance and for the ly reason that they were jealous of e German competition. Stalin's atmpts to win the sympathy of France re more dramatic. He had to be nient with Japan while his arms re weak and even sacrificed the stern-Chinese railway. He did this o for the purpose of increasing the iction between Japan and the United ates. With Italy dogmatically the h enemy of Bolshevism, Stalin conded a pact of friendship in 1933. hile on all sides corrupt diplomats themselves be pushed around by reatening events, Stalin did two ngs: He joined the League of Nans and doubled his armaments. us in one breath he avowed and ded an ideal just as the League of ations itself had done for the last years.

"This graying dictator, who learned e art of revolution at the age of 18 d the art of war at 38, finds himself day, perhaps without personal enees, conducting a world war. When consider what there is at stake for m, his ideal, his state, his power and s life, we can better understand the ry with which he and the millions his countrymen defend themselves brilliantly against the foreign contors. In the summer of 1941 when e Nazi armies rolled across the Rusan border all the people of the ited Nations gained another new ro—Stalin—the man who refused to w to the German storm and sudnly became the defender of deocracy.

"Through personal contact this aur presents Stalin as he has never en presented before. He explains far as is possible to explain one n to another, Stalin's curious pernality, or rather impersonality, hich allowed him to kill in cold ood his old associates when he ought Russia would benefit thereby.

"But more and more as the war ogresses we realize that we owe our eedom, perhaps our very lives to alin and the Russian people."

Mrs. W. E. Sandel presided in the sence of the president, Mrs. T. H. ott. Routine reports were given at s time and plans are being made to ve the annual card party sponsored the Club for the purpose of proding funds for the Welcome Branch ook Club Student Nurse Scholarp. The party will take place Wedsday afternoon, November 10, at e Monroe Recreation Center. The blic is invited.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale announced that e state convention of the L. F. W. C. ll be held November 2 and 3 in reveport, La. This year's convention ll be highlighted by the presence the national president, Mrs. John Whitehurst who recently returned om a tour of England as a guest of e British government.

When the British recog- ed the Soviets in 1924 they did this th utmost reluctance and for the ly reason that they were jealous of e German competition. Stalin's at- mpts to win the sympathy of France re more dramatic. He had to be nient with Japan while his arms re weak and even sacrificed the stern-Chinese railway. With Italy dogmatically the h enemy of Bolshevism, Stalin con- ded a pact of friendship in 1933. hile on all sides corrupt diplomats themselves be pushed around by reatening events. Stalin did two ngs: He joined the League of Na- ns and doubled his armaments. us in one breath he avowed and de- d an ideal just as the League of tions itself had done for the last years.

"This graying dictator, who learned e art of revolution at the age of 18 d the art of war at 38, finds himself day, perhaps without personal ene- ies, conducting a world war. When e consider what there is at stake for m, his ideal, his state, his power and s life, we can better understand the ry with which he and the millions his countrymen defend themselves brilliantly against the foreign con- erors. In the summer of 1941 when e Nazi armies rolled across the Rus- an border all the people of the ited Nations gained another new ro—Stalin—the man who refused to w to the German storm and sud- nly became the defender of de- ocracy.

"Through personal contact this au- or presents Stalin as he has never en presented before. He explains, far as is possible to explain one n to another, Stalin's curious per- nality, or rather impersonality, hich allowed him to kill in cold od his old associates when he ought Russia would benefit thereby.

"But more and more as the war ogresses we realize that we owe our edom, perhaps our very lives to alin and the Russian people."

Temple Sisterhood To Hear Mrs. Kauffmann

Member Of Executive Board Of National Federation To Address Group Oct. 13

Mrs. Norman J. Kauffmann of New Orleans, member of the executive board of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, world's largest Jewish women's religious organization, will be guest speaker at a meeting of Monroe's Temple B'nai Israel N. F. T. S. sisterhood, Wednesday, October 13. This announcement has just been released from Cincinnati headquarters where Mrs. Kauffman is listed as a member of the speakers bureau.

Mrs. C. M. Strauss is president of the Monroe NFTS unit. Other local officers include Mrs. Sam Smith, first vice-president; Mrs. Louis Goldman, second vice-president; Mrs. Stewart Doernberg, recording secretary; Mrs. Dave Aron, treasurer; Mrs. Dero Annish, auditor; and Mrs. Louis Masur, parliamentarian.

The B'Nai Israel Temple Sisterhood of Monroe has been affiliated with the National Federation since 1924 and has a membership over one hundred.

As a unit of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, the Monroe Sisterhood as a group plays a part in national emergency work. The federation has organized a special committee on war service. Local sisterhoods cooperate with it through corresponding local projects.

Emergency training institutes have also been inaugurated by the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods in order to orient members to the present crisis.

The National Federation has already purchased $17,000 worth of war bonds. Through a new project, "The Book of Living Judaism," NFTS purchases war bonds and stamps monthly. After the war when bonds are redeemed the federation will use the money as the nucleus of a fund for building a new home for the Union of American Hebrew congregation, central organization of liberal Judaism in America.

Mrs. Kauffmann serves as president of the Louisiana State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, which is an affiliate of the National Federation, and is vice chairman of the national committee on State Federations. She is a past president of the Sinai Temple Sisterhood of New Orleans, of which she still is an active member.

An affiliate of the Union of American Hebrew congregations, NFTS engages in a broad program of service to Jewish and humanitarian causes. It contributes large sums annually to the union for scholarships and religious educational work especially youth activities. These scholarships are for students at Hebrew Union college in Cincinnati. The college, the oldest American Jewish theological seminary, has a dormitory which was a gift of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods.

Special funds established by NFTS provide for publication of religious school textbooks, correspondence courses in Jewish history and literature for those in isolated communities, and institutes for adults and religious school teachers.

To meet the present national and international emergency, the work of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods has been developed in several ways. Immediate problems are met by active cooperation with Red Cross, British War Relief, and United Service organizations. Through a special project, an annual silver coin collection, NFTS also aids by contributing money for after school activities sponsored by Liberal Jewish congregations in Palestine for refugee children in the Holy Land.

Facing post-war problems, one NFTS national committee is directing study courses in social betterment and plan for world reorganization.

Aid to new Americans, transcription of books into Braille for the blind, and child study and parent education are among other NFTS projects.

Made up of 385 local units in six countries; the United States, Canada, Cuba, Panama, Scotland and South Africa, the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods has a roster of over 60,000 individual members.

Mrs. Hugo Hartmann of Winnetka, Inninois, is national president of the federation.

IR SERVICE COMMAND PLAYS IMPORTANT PART AT SELMAN

Task Is Supplying and Maintaining Thousands Of Aircraft

is the 78th Sub-Depot, which tains, supplies and repairs the air- es that are used by the Naviga- school.

obably few persons realize that Air Service command is to be d on Selman field, or know much t the tremendous organization of h the 78th Sub-Depot is a part.

e of the principal subdivisions of now gigantic United States army forces, the Air Service command headquarters at Patterson field, e command is on an equal level the A. A. F. training command, ort Worth, Tex., the division of the orces to which Selman field and ther training stations belong.

der Major General Walter H. k, commanding general of the , the units of the far flung or- zation carry out the functions of lying and maintaining the thous- upon thousands of aircraft fferent types which are operated he army air forces.

e supply and maintenance duty es not only to the aircraft them- s, but also to the instruments accessories and the installations ssary to operate them. Thus, dis- tion equipment for high octane instrument repair, parachute ntenance and equipment for op- ons offices all are included in province of the command.

lman field's 78th Sub-Depot comes r the jurisdiction of the Air Serv- command through an intermedi- eadquarters, the Mobile Air Serv- command, at Mobile, Ala. The le organization is commanded by dier General James A. Mollison, roughly equivalent in the overall nization of the ASC to the A. A. entral Flying training command, andolph field, Tex., an intermedi- eadquarters between Selman field the training command.

e Mobile Air Service command is f a number of geographical subdivisions of the Air Service command, as the Central Flying training command is of the training command.

Commanded by Captain Enos Payne, of Bogalusa, La., and Tylertown, Miss., the 78th Sub-Depot has three sections, engineering, supply and personnel and training.

The engineering section, headed by Captain Russell M. Cunningham as engineering officer and Lieutenant William G. Howorth as assistant engineering officer provides replacements and repairs for airplanes and their accessories.

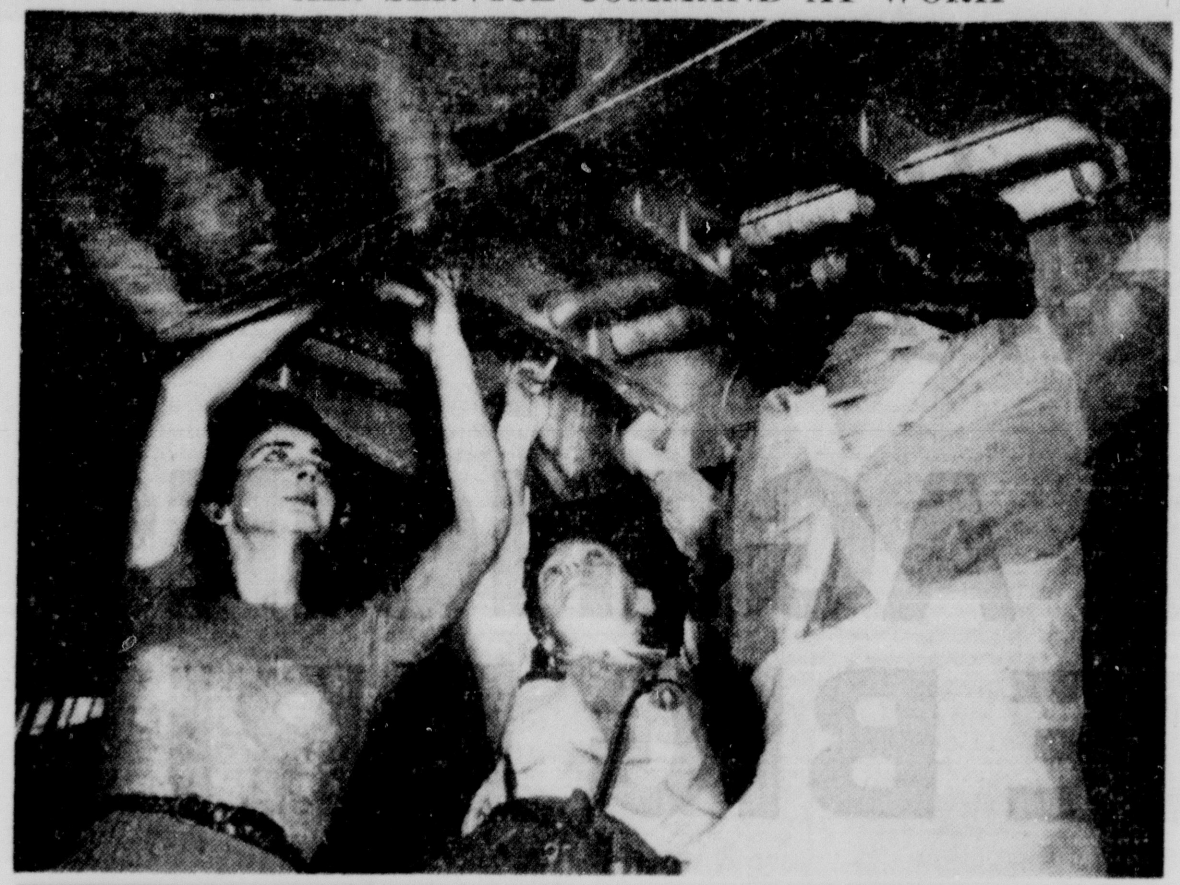
The supply section, under Lieutenant James A. Desmond, procures, stores and issues whatever the engineering section needs to carry out its varied and exacting task.

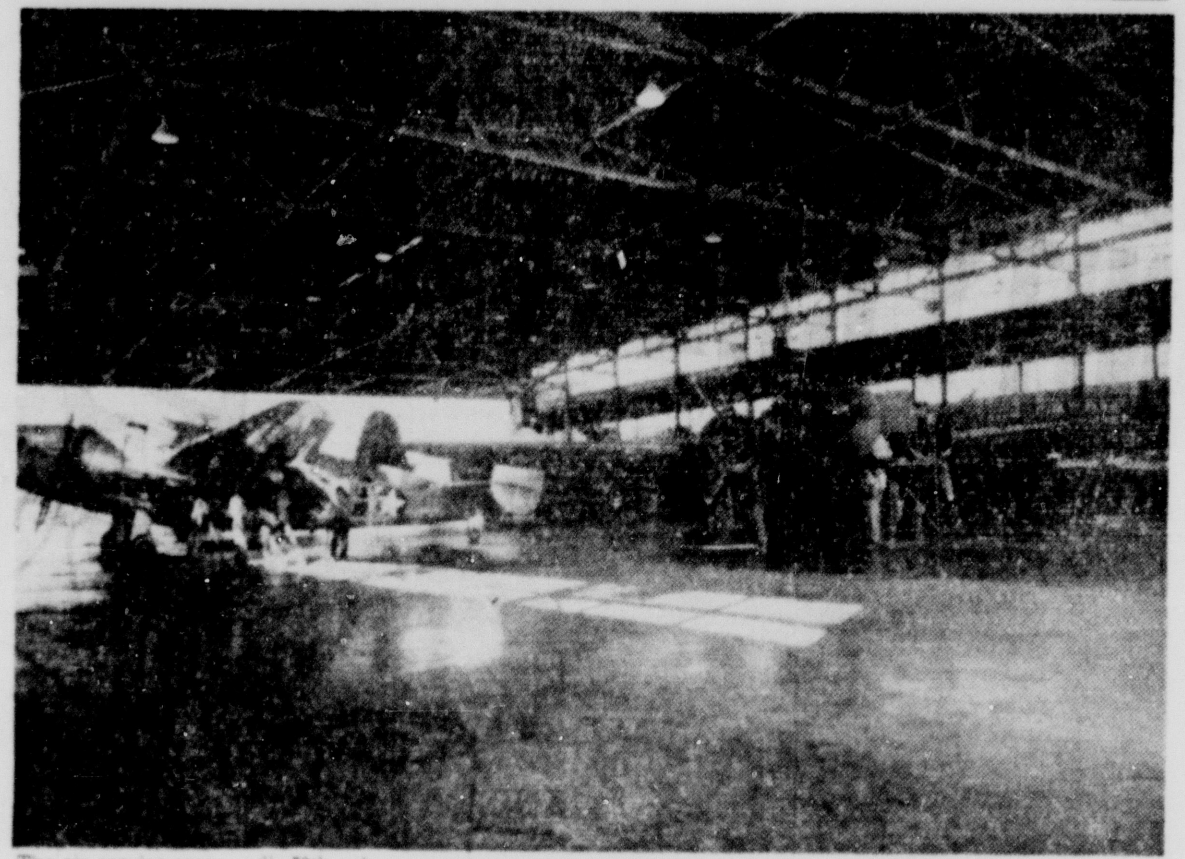
Supervision of the personnel and training section has been divided between Captain Walter L. Scarborough, post civilian personnel officer, and Captain Payne. Captain Scarborough is charged with the entire personnel phase of the work. Civilians compose virtually the entire roster of the Sub-Depot. Training is delegated to Captain Payne.

Lieutenant Donald R. Roberts, of the Signal corps, is the Sub-Depot signal officer. To him is entrusted the job of repairing and calibrating the delicate instruments of flight and navigation.

An indication of the fact that the 78th Sub-Depot is the Air Service command is the insignia of a cogwheel with propeller blades for spokes which all officers of the local unit wear. It is worn all over the world, and wherever you find it, you find the Air Service command.

THE AIR SERVICE COMMAND AT WORK





The air service command's 78th subdepot at Selman field looks to women (top) for the performance of many of the tasks encompassed by its threefold function of maintenance, supply and procurement and training of personnel. Here three women work on the wing of an airplane in the air service command's main hangar at Selman field. Left to right, they are the Misses Myrtis Mitchell and Ruth Gulley, of Sterlington, and Mrs. Almeda Brown, of 306 Pargoud.

This (center) is an interior view of the principal hangar of the air service command at Selman field. The air service command is probably better known locally by the name of its unit at Selman field, which is the 78th Sub-Depot. In this hangar repair and maintenance of airplanes of all types, as well as accessories to the aircraft, are carried on day and night.

One of the jobs the air service command does at Selman field, through its local organization, the 78th Sub-Depot, is to provide and maintain parachutes. In every plane aloft there is always a parachute for every occupant. The folding, drying, drop testing and record maintenance of these life savers is a story in itself. Here (lower) Miss Sunshine Took, of 906 North Second street, handles a 'chute in Selman field's air service command shop.

ORLEANS PRISONERS TO BE DOGCATCHERS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Prisoners in the city house of detention will be drafted to fill New Orleans' critical dogcatcher shortage.

Miss Marie Rosato, secretary of the Louisiana S. P. C. A., said today Mayor Robert S. Maestri had agreed to assign a prisoner to each of the city's two dog-pound trucks, along with a driver and a city policeman. The action was taken because of a shortage of help and an increase in stray dogs.

Recently the city attempted to relieve the situation by employing a woman dogcatcher.

ONE COMMERCE COURSE IS FREE

N. J. C. To Have Class Formed In Cost Accounting

Opportunity to earn certificates upon completion of a course in cost accounting is offered without expense to students by the United States office of education. The commerce department of Northeast Junior college has been authorized by Dr. Marion B. Smith, director of the general extension division of Louisiana State university, to organize a class in this work. J. T. Johnson, head of the commerce department, will teach the class.

Cost accounting is one of the courses being stressed by the government in its engineering, science and management war training program. The need for qualified men and women to hold accounting positions in war plants and related industries, government offices and other types of business prompted the offer to give this training without any cost except for the purchase of texts, Mr. Johnson explained.

A meeting to organize a class in cost accounting is scheduled Tuesday night, October 19, in room 204 of the administration building. Only 10 persons are required to enroll in order to offer the course.

The class will be limited to those who can meet certain requirements. To be eligible for the work one must have had practical experience in accounting and be now unemployed; must now hold an accounting position, or be a high school graduate who has had a first year course in accounting.

The course will emphasize a thorough study of modern cost accounting systems. It will cover a sixteen-week period with meetings twice each week for two hours each night. The work will not carry college credit but a certificate will be granted those who satisfactorily complete the course, Mr. Johnson said.

Those who are interested in making inquiries regarding qualifications to enroll in the class may call Mr. Johnson at 4200 during the day or 4989-J at night.

CHAPTER XI

Imhof grew aware of a change in the night, which had been tugging at his absorption for some time. He listened and realized. The silence! Complete and undisturbed. The darkness was no longer alive with the throbbing drone of engines. The raid was over, the last bomber gone.

A yoo-hoo sounded from the smithy and Imhof hastened back. Pat had done a good job on the trousers.

"You look as if you'd been dug out of bomb ruins," Imhof approved.

Pat smiled, a little wanly. "I'm sinking into the ground, the way I feel. I'll have to be dug out if I don't get something to eat soon."

"Why didn't you say so before?" Imhof flashed in his pockets and produced a waterproof packet.

He unwound the oiled silk and brought forth his emergency rations, two bars of chocolate and some concentrated food tablets. The chocolate was soft from the warmth of his body and stuck smearily to the waxed paper, but it tasted like manna to Pat.

Imhof rolled what was left in the oiled silk and restored the package to his pocket, glanced at his watch and frowned.

"Coblenz?" Pat inquired, a sparkle in her eye belying the casualness of her tone.

"Pretty soon," said Imhof. "We want to be right on the edge of the town when the all-clear sounds. That won't be for a bit yet, though. Now we'd better settle what we're to do in Coblenz. Clothes for you, of course. Right off. There may be anti-looting patrols out and we'll be looting, so we'll have to look sharp. Then we must get rid of this uniform. After that we'll have to hang around unobtrusively till we can get out of the town."

"When you change your clothes," he continued, "you must change your whole personality, Pat. From then on you're my sister—no, half-sister. Won't hurt to confuse the Nazis a little. You're a bad case of blitz-shock—don't know who or where you are. You don't remember your name or address—well, maybe your first name you do," Imhof amended. "You act all dazed. When anybody speaks to you, you don't seem to know it, or even hear them, and you don't answer, of course. Perhaps you'd better play being actually deaf and dumb. What do you think? Can you do it?"

"I suppose so, if I have to," Pat said slowly. "I don't know how good an actress I am." She looked at him with a puzzled air, blinking a little, as she often did when mystified. "I don't quite see the point, though."

Pat threw back her head and laughed merrily.

"But I do speak it!" she gurgled.

"You do!" Imhof shouted joyfully. This was a windfall! "Why didn't you say so?" he expostulated.

"But you never asked me," she pointed out.

Imhof sobered. Her German had to be really good or it would be of little or no use to meet the demands of the situation.

"Let's see," he said, in German, and proceeded to put her through her paces. He found that she spoke far better than he had dared to hope, fluently and correctly, yet not too elegantly—and, best of all, without a trace of English accent. Yet an accent she had, one that puzzled him to identify. Some dialect—Vorarlberger, or was it East Swiss? He asked her about it.

"Every summer the family—"

"No English!" Imhof pulled her up, still in German. "From now on never breathe a word of English, not even if we're alone, unless I give you the green light."

"I'll remember," Pat promised soberly.

"Now what about the family?"

Pat explained. For years the Danforths had summered in Switzerland as paying guests of a certain Swiss household. The practice had begun when the twins were young children and continued up to the outbreak of the war. The use of English on these vacations had been frowned upon with the result that brother and sister had learned to speak German with great fluency. But more than a trace of local accent had persisted.

"Well, I'll be hanged," Imhof grinned. "Who'd think of an English girl speaking German with a bit of Swiss burr or brogue, if she spoke it at all. It's a disguise! Well, let's get going," he went on, and they left the smithy and started downhill towards the out-skirts of Coblenz.

When they came to the municipal cemetery on the edge of the city Imhof halted.

While they waited for the all-clear, Imhof found himself hoping that he would be able to find becoming clothes for Pat, somehow or other, in Coblenz. She would do the best full justice. The thought made him turn and look at her. Feeling his gaze on her, Pat turned to meet it. What she saw in his eyes made her lower her own, a little breathlessly.

Suddenly a long sobbing wail rent the silence.

"Here we go," said Imhof, springing up.

Side by side, and walking swiftly, they entered Coblenz.

At Selman field, the 78th Sub-Depot reproduces on a smaller scale the same organization as the higher echelons of the command.

Commanded by Captain Enos Payne, of Bogalusa, La., and Tylertown, Miss., the 78th Sub-Depot has three sections, engineering, supply and personnel and training.

The engineering section, headed by Captain Russell M. Cunningham as engineering officer and Lieutenant William G. Howorth as assistant engineering officer provides replacements and repairs for airplanes and their accessories.

The supply section, under Lieutenant James A. Desmond, procures, stores and issues whatever the engineering section needs to carry out its varied and exacting task.

Supervision of the personnel and training section has been divided between Captain Walter L. Scarborough, post civilian personnel officer, and Captain Payne. Captain Scarborough is charged with the entire personnel phase of the work. Civilians compose virtually the entire roster of the Sub-Depot. Training is delegated to Captain Payne.

Lieutenant Donald R. Roberts, of the Signal corps, is the Sub-Depot signal officer. To him is entrusted the job of repairing and calibrating the delicate instruments of flight and navigation.

An indication of the fact that the 78th Sub-Depot is the Air Service command is the insignia of a cogwheel with propeller blades for spokes which all officers of the local unit wear. It is worn all over the world, and wherever you find it, you find the Air Service command.

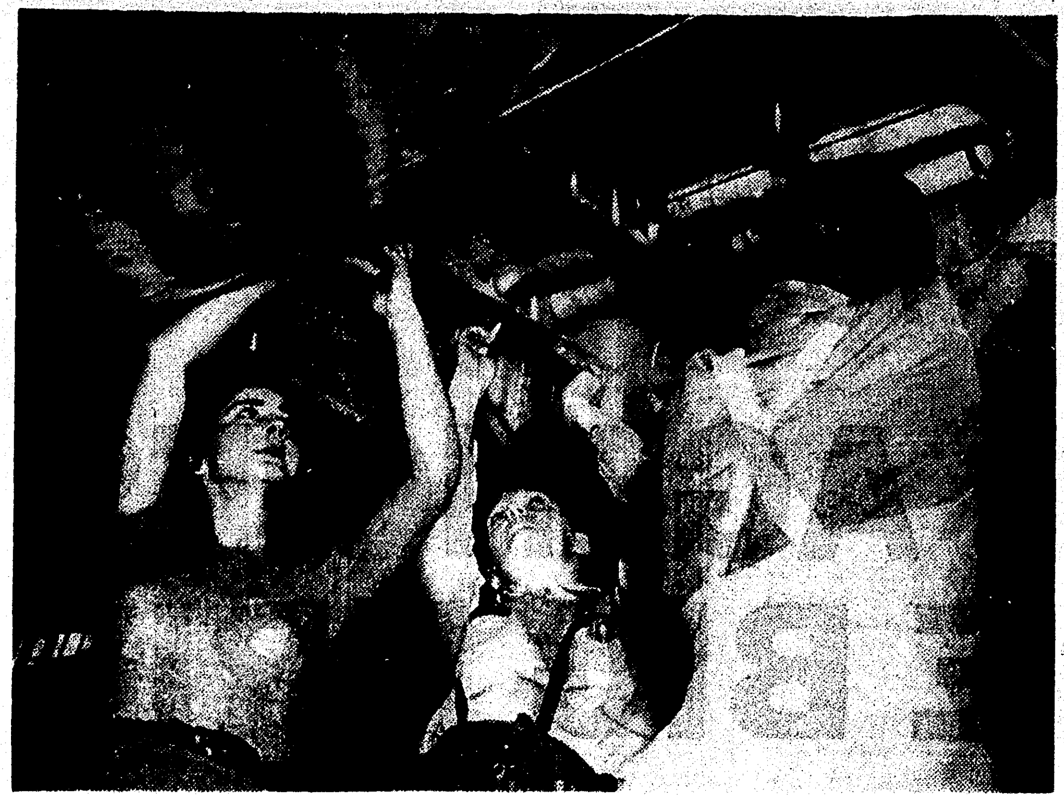
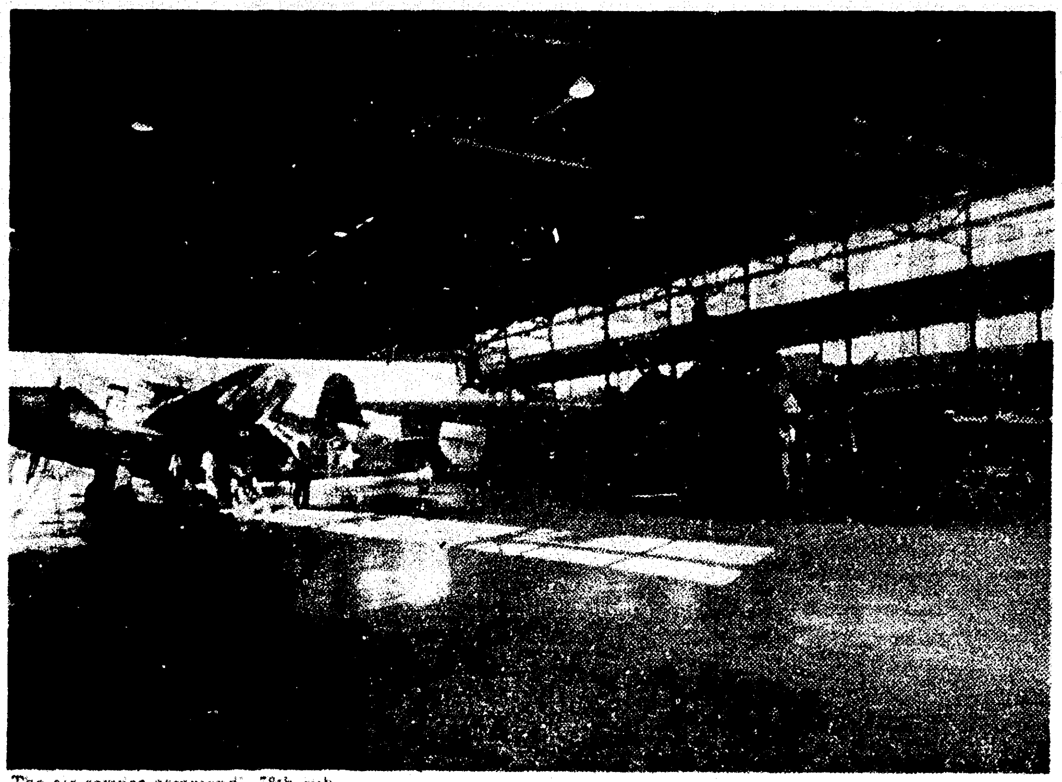
THE AIR SERVICE COMMAND AT WORK





The air service command's 78th subdepot at Selman field looks to women (top) for the performance of many of the tasks encompassed by its threefold function of maintenance, supply and procurement and training of personnel. Here three women work on the wing of an airplane in the air service command's main hangar at Selman field. Left to right, they are the Misses Myrtis Mitchell and Ruth Gulley, of Sterlington, and Mrs. Almeda Brown, of 306 Pargoud.

This (center) is an interior view of the principal hangar of the air service command at Selman field. The air service command is probably better known locally by the name of its unit at Selman field, which is the 78th Sub-Depot. In this hangar repair and maintenance of airplanes of all types, as well as accessories to the aircraft, are carried on day and night.

One of the jobs the air service command does at Selman field, through its local organization, the 78th Sub-Depot, is to provide and maintain parachutes. In every plane aloft there is always a parachute for every occupant. The folding, drying, drop testing and record maintenance of these life savers is a story in itself. Here (lower) Miss Sunshine Took, of 906 North Second street, handles a 'chute in Selman field's air service command shop.

ORLEANS PRISONERS TO BE DOGCATCHERS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Prisoners in the city house of detention will be drafted to fill New Orleans' critical dogcatcher shortage.

Miss Marie Rosato, secretary of the Louisiana S. P. C. A., said today Mayor Robert S. Maestri had agreed to assign a prisoner to each of the city's two dog-pound trucks, along with a driver and a city policeman. The action was taken because of a shortage of help and an increase in stray dogs.

Recently the city attempted to relieve the situation by employing a woman dogcatcher.

N. J. C. To Have Class Formed In Cost Accounting

Opportunity to earn certificates upon completion of a course in cost accounting is offered without expense to students by the United States office of education. The commerce department of Northeast Junior college has been authorized by Dr. Marion B. Smith, director of the general extension division of Louisiana State university, to organize a class in this work. J. T. Johnson, head of the commerce department, will teach the class.

Cost accounting is one of the courses being stressed by the government in its engineering, science and management war training program. The need for qualified men and women to hold accounting positions in war plants and related industries, government offices and other types of business prompted the offer to give this training without any cost except for the purchase of texts, Mr. Johnson explained.

A meeting to organize a class in cost accounting is scheduled Tuesday night, October 19, in room 204 of the administration building. Only 10 persons are required to enroll in order to offer the course.

The class will be limited to those who can meet certain requirements. To be eligible for the work one must have had practical experience in accounting and be now unemployed, must now hold an accounting position, or be a high school graduate who has had a first year course in accounting.

The course will emphasize a thorough study of modern cost accounting systems. It will cover a sixteen-week period with meetings twice each week for two hours each night. The work will not carry college credit but a certificate will be granted those who satisfactorily complete the course, Mr. Johnson said.

Those who are interested in making inquiries regarding qualifications to enroll in the class may call Mr. Johnson at 4200 during the day or 4989-J at night.

CHAPTER XI

Imhof grew aware of a change in the night, which had been tugging at his absorption for some time. He listened and realized. The silence! Complete and undisturbed. The darkness was no longer alive with the throbbing drone of engines. The raid was over, the last bomber gone.

A yoo-hoo sounded from the smithy and Imhof hastened back. Pat had done a good job on the trousers.

"You look as if you'd been dug out of bomb ruins," Imhof approved.

Pat smiled, a little wanly. "I'm sinking into the ground, the way I feel. I'll have to be dug out if I don't get something to eat soon."

"Why didn't you say so before?" Imhof flashed in his pockets and produced a waterproof packet.

He unwound the oiled silk and brought forth his emergency rations, two bars of chocolate and some concentrated food tablets. The chocolate was soft from the warmth of his body and stuck smearily to the waxed paper, but it tasted like manna to Pat.

Imhof rolled what was left in the oiled silk and restored the package to his pocket, glanced at his watch and frowned.

"Coblenz?" Pat inquired, a sparkle in her eye belying the casualness of her tone.

"Pretty soon," said Imhof. "We want to be right on the edge of the town when the all-clear sounds. That won't be for a bit yet, though. Now we'd better settle what we're to do in Coblenz. Clothes for you, of course. Right off. There may be anti-looting patrols out and we'll be looting, so we'll have to look sharp. Then we must get rid of this uniform. After that we'll have to hang around unobtrusively till we can get out of the town."

"When you change your clothes," he continued, "you must change your whole personality, Pat. From then on you're my sister—no, half-sister. Won't hurt to confuse the Nazis a little. You're a bad case of blitz-shock—don't know who or where you are. You don't remember your name or address—well, maybe your first name you do," Imhof amended. "You act all dazed. When anybody speaks to you, you don't seem to know it, or even hear them, and you don't answer, of course. Perhaps you'd better play being actually deaf and dumb. What do you think? Can you do it?"

"I suppose so, if I have to," Pat said slowly. "I don't know how good an actress I am." She looked at him with a puzzled air, blinking a little, as she often did when mystified. "I don't quite see the point, though."

"You're stalling," he explained, "covering up, so people won't know you don't speak German."

Pat threw back her head and laughed merrily.

"But I do speak it!" she gurgled.

"You do!" Imhof shouted joyfully. This was a windfall! "Why didn't you say so?" he expostulated.

"But you never asked me," she pointed out.

Imhof sobered. Her German had to be really good or it would be of little or no use to meet the demands of the situation.

"Let's see," he said, in German, and proceeded to put her through her paces. He found that she spoke far better than he had dared to hope, fluently and correctly, yet not too elegantly—and, best of all, without a trace of English accent. Yet an accent she had, one that puzzled him to identify. Some dialect—Vorarlberger, or was it East Swiss? He asked her about it.

"Every summer the family—"

"No English!" Imhof pulled her up, still in German. "From now on never breathe a word of English, not even if we're alone, unless I give you the green light."

"I'll remember," Pat promised soberly.

"Now what about the family?"

Pat explained. For years the Danforths had summered in Switzerland as paying guests of a certain Swiss household. The practice had begun when the twins were young children and continued up to the outbreak of the war. The use of English on these vacations had been frowned upon with the result that brother and sister had learned to speak German with great fluency. But more than a trace of local accent had persisted.

"Well, I'll be hanged," Imhof grinned. "Who'd think of an English girl speaking German with a bit of Swiss burr or brogue, if she spoke it at all. It's a disguise! Well, let's get going," he went on, and they left the smithy and started downhill towards the out-skirts of Coblenz.

When they came to the municipal cemetery on the edge of the city Imhof halted.

While they waited for the all-clear, Imhof found himself hoping that he would be able to find becoming clothes for Pat, somehow or other, in Coblenz. She would do the best full justice. The thought made him turn and look at her. Feeling his gaze on her, Pat turned to meet it. What she saw in his eyes made her lower her own, a little breathlessly.

Suddenly a long sobbing wail rent the silence.

"Here we go," said Imhof, springing up.

Side by side, and walking swiftly, they entered Coblenz.

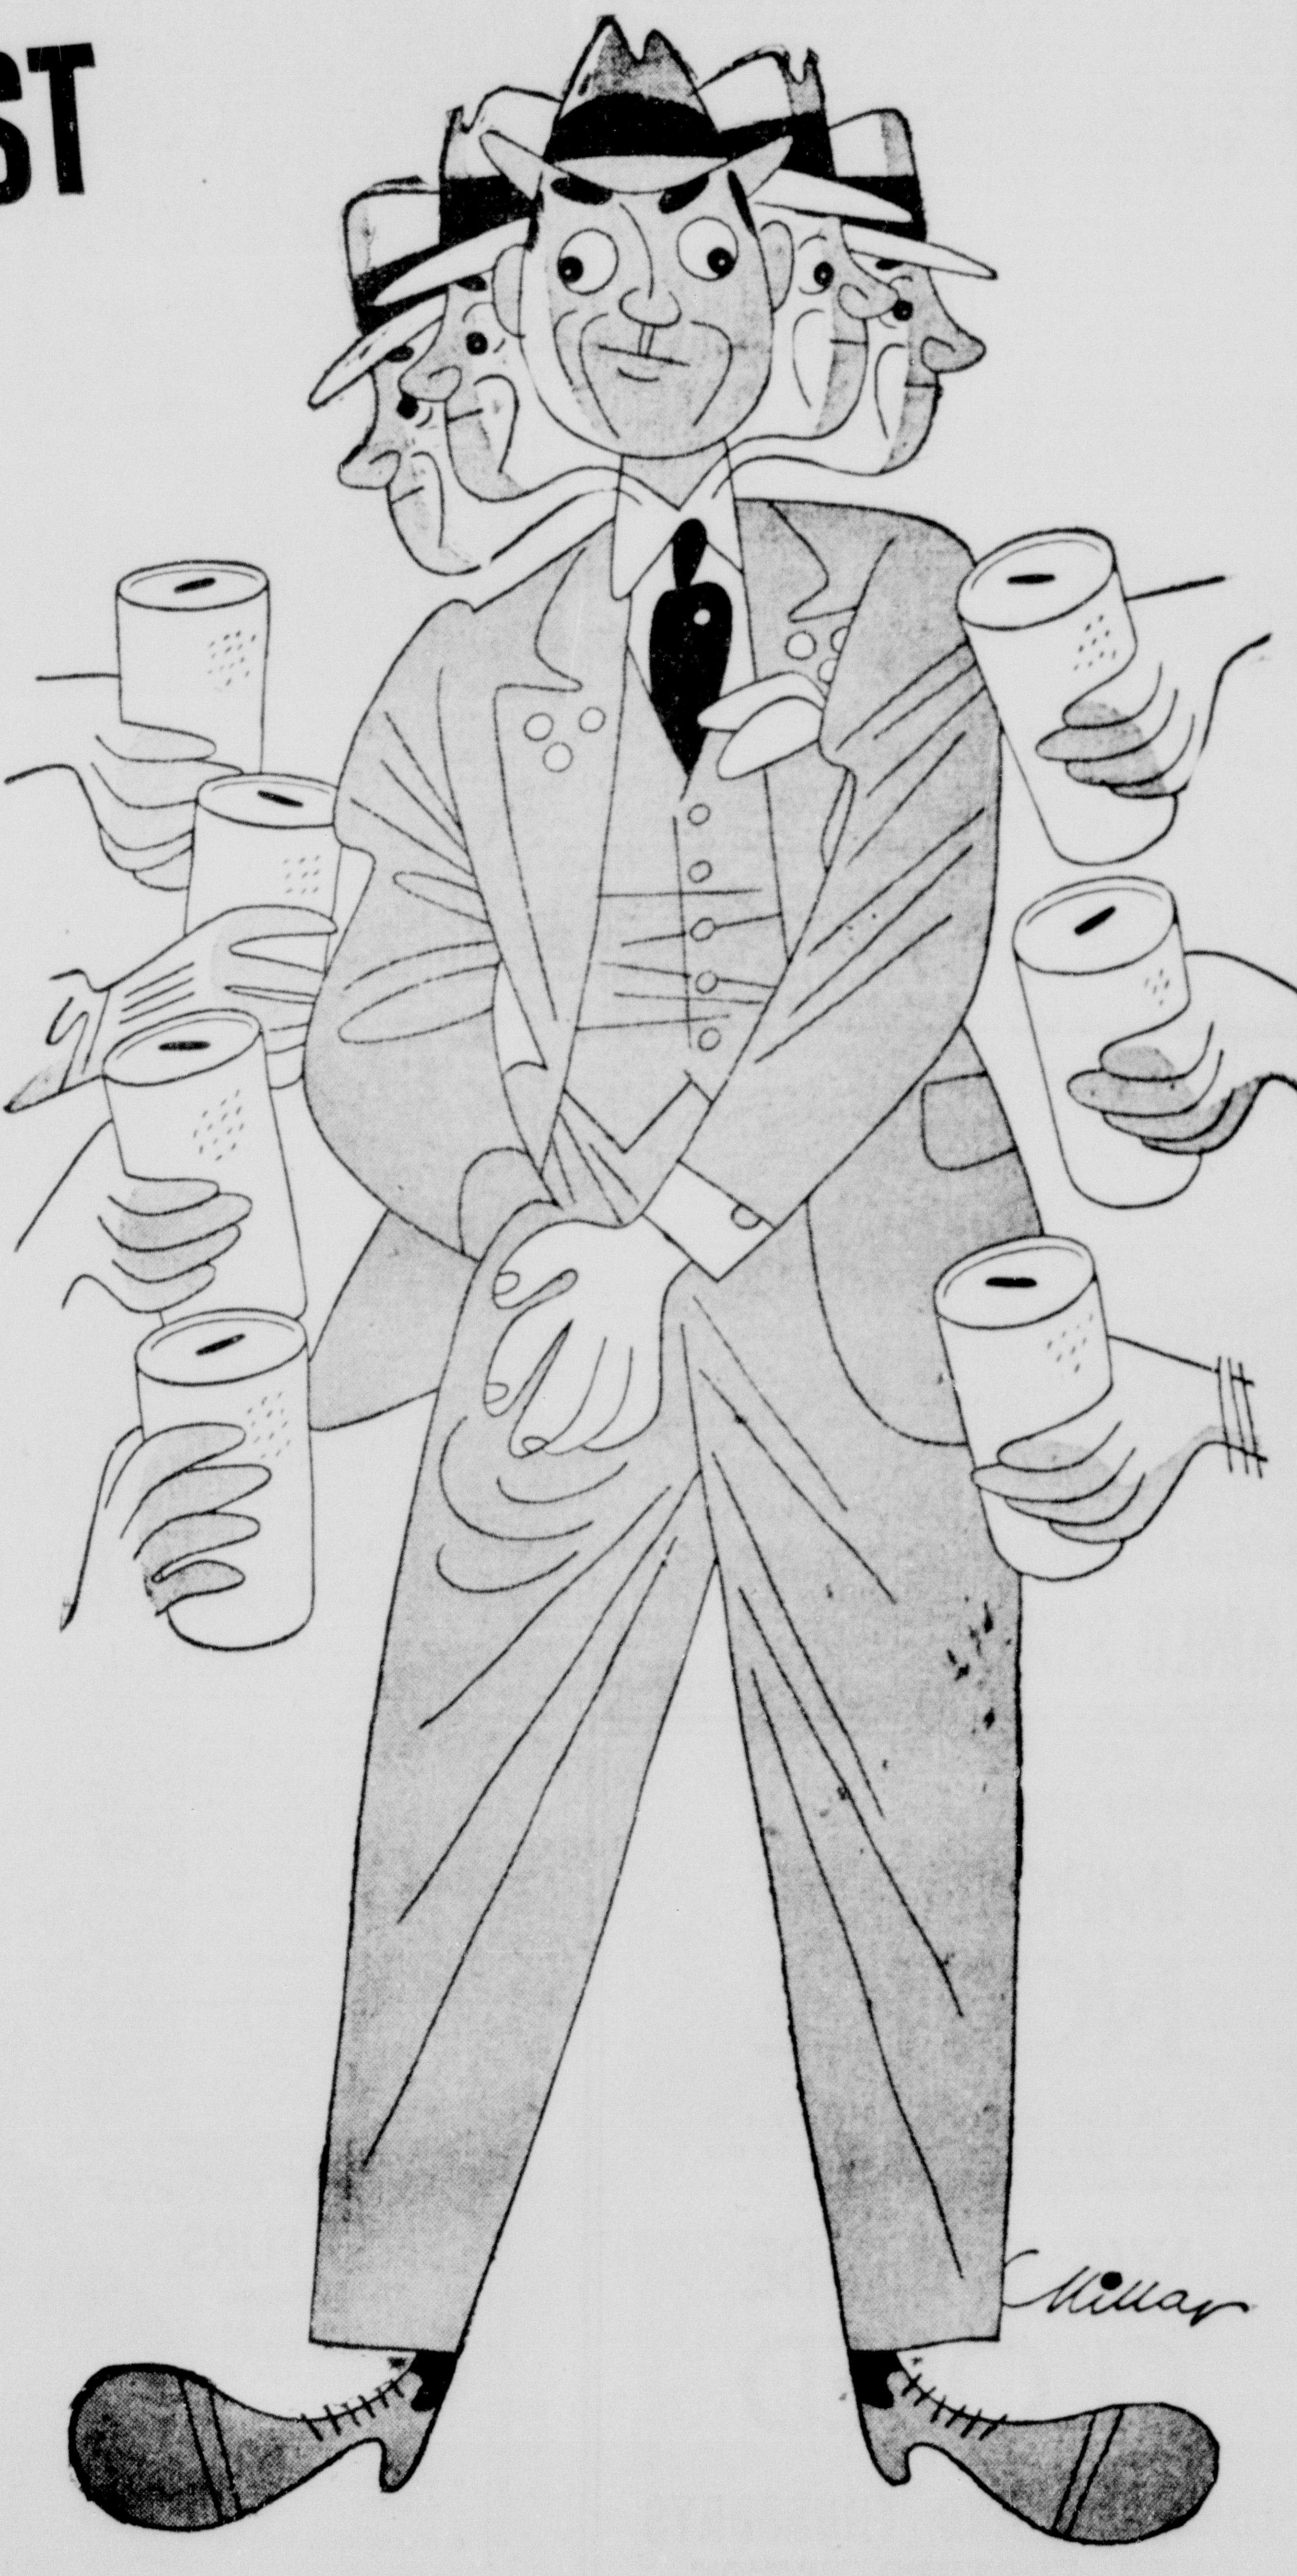
NOW ALL AGENCIES UNITED INTO ONE BIG DRIVE....

UNITED WAR FUND AND TWIN CITY COMMUNITY CHEST



Here's The Story....

Seventeen war agencies together with local community chest agencies are coming to you for funds . . . combined into ONE BIG DRIVE. There are many of these agencies; there had to be. In the past they all have come to you for money and your heart could say "no" to none . . . but it WAS confusing.

Now, in order to eliminate that confusion, a very sensible thing has been done. United War Relief Agencies have been combined into one campaign with our own Twin City Community Chest. You give to this unified fund and you have given to all. You give once, for all these!

The United War Fund is officially endorsed by the President. It has the backing of the Government as an improvement over the old confusing way of raising money. It permits you to budget your wartime giving more easily. It makes sense. That's why the two drives have been consolidated.

The money you will give will work around the world and at home . . . right in our own community. Ouachita Parish quota is $75,154. Part of it will be used for the USO, War Prisoner's Aid, China Relief, Greek War Relief and all the others. Part of it will be retained to carry on the social services needed to keep Ouachita Parish at war healthy and efficient.

GIVE generously. Add up your total gifts . . . then DOUBLE IT. GIVE MANY TIMES MORE than last year . . . to COVER ALL AGENCIES that you have given to in the past. We have never failed before . . . WE WILL NOT FAIL THIS TIME.

'A Lady Takes A Chance' Opens Monday At Paramount

Arthur And Wayne Star In New Hit

PACKED with hilarious and unexpected comedy from start to finish and with light-hearted, tender romance of a novel kind, "A Lady Takes a Chance" co-stars Jean Arthur and John Wayne in what is said to be one of the year's most entertaining pictures.

A transcontinental bus trip from New York City to the Pacific coast and back is the idea of the story but nearly all the action takes place in eastern Oregon. There Mollie, a Manhattan bank clerk on her first vacation in years, meets Duke, a rodeo rider who is tossed right into her lap by a bucking broncho.

Mollie has never met anyone like Duke before, and vice versa. Their stormy and picturesque romance sweeps headlong, punctuated by hilarious situations in a frontier gambling room, a rickety hotel, on the desert and at an auto camp, as Mollie, who has missed her bus in all the excitement, hitch-hikes across the state to catch the vehicle on its return trip.

Mollie decides she wants to marry the tall, capable westerner, but Duke has no intention of letting any filly drop a matrimonial loop over his neck. Waco, Duke's rotund elderly pal, loyally tries to dissuade the determined girl from her wedding plans, and apparently succeeds. But when the travel-weary party gets back to New York City, unexpected things begin happening around the bus terminal where the trip began.

Miss Arthur has seldom had a better role for her special brand of comedy. Wayne proves himself all outstanding partner for her in an equally well-fitted part. Charles Winninger as the skeptical Waco and Phil Silvers as an irritating tour guide head the supporting cast, which also numbers Mary Field, Don Costello, Grant Withers, Grady Sutton, Hans Conried and John Philliber among the more prominent players in the gay RKO Radio film.

BETTER RELATIONS PROGRAM PROPOSED

A better relationship program between white and colored citizens of West Monroe will be held at St. Joseph Baptist church in that city, Sunday at 3 p.m. Mayor D. C. Golson and other officials of the city as well as busines sand professional men and religious leaders of both races will participate. The theme is "Back the Attack with Better Relationship on the Home Front."

The program is being sponsored by the West Monroe Colored Civic and Recreational club and Lealye M. Statum, supervisor of colored schools of Ouachita parish.

This meeting will be one of a series for the securing of a better understanding between the races.

'Heaven Can Wait' Here At Capitol

NOTHING'S sacred when Ernst Lubitsch gives that grand new touch to the gay old nineties!

That, in a nutshell, is the saucy, sparkling story of Lubitsch's production of "Heaven Can Wait," the technicolor hit which opens at the Captiol theater.

The spicy film is the story of Grandpa and the French Mademoiselle . . . and ladies fair who gave their lovers the air! And when it comes to what went on after the gas lights went out—the famed "Lubitsch Touch" becomes a wallop.

Don Ameche and Gene Tierney top the featured cast of "Heaven Can Wait." Don is a scion of a staid New York household—and his antics stand the family on its ear. Gene is the lady fair whom he woos—and wins—but Don is a flighty person, while Gene is not what you could call a submissive sort of a gal. Which means that even after they're happily married there are lots of fireworks—and plenty of opportunities for Director-Producer Lubitsch to inject his distinctive "touch!"

"Heaven Can Wait" is a frank, frolicking, frivolous comedy aided immeasurably by the caliber of its performers. In addition to Miss Tierney and Ameche, others in the large and capable cast include Charles Coburn, Marjorie Main, Laird Cregar, Spring Byington, Allyn Joslyn, Eugene Pallette and Signe Hasso.

Still others who have important roles are Louis Calhern, Helene Reynolds, Aubrey Mather and Michael Ames.

The screen play was by Samson Raphaelson, based upon the play "Birthday" by Lazio Bus-Fekete.

It's a shipboard romance, only in this case the ship is a streamlined freighter in the process of construction and Claire Trevor and Jess Barker are two of America's home front heroes working as welders aboard ship. This scene is from "Good Luck, Mr. Yates," which plays Thursday only at the Capitol.

Gene Autry is the star of "South of the Border," playing at the Joy theater Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

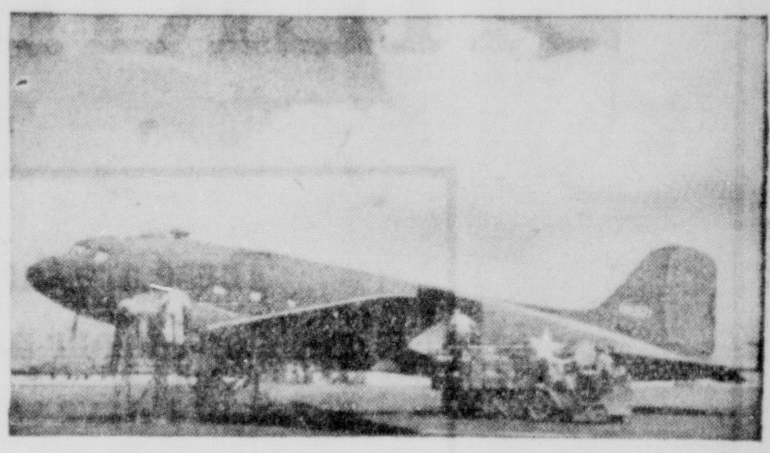
They're in love, Bill Carter and Marguerite Chapman, who play the romantic leads in Charles Coburn's new comedy "My Kingdom for a Cook," which is the midnight show attraction at the Paramount Saturday night.

Allyn Joslyn doesn't realize the mistake he's making in introducing Gene Tierney to Don Ameche in this scene from "Heaven Can Wait," which plays today through Tuesday at the Capitol. This picture is a peek through the keyhold at those naughty nineties, when the bustles rustled, and a French mademoiselle was the talk of the town, and the ladies fair gave lovers the air.

George Sanders and Marguerite Chapman, shown above, are enemies in the super-spy story "Appointment in Berlin," playing Wednesday only at the Capitol theater, but they fall head over heels in love when each keeps his appointment with destiny in the Nazi capital.

"Sahara," starring Humphrey Bogart, Bruce Bennett and Lloyd Bridges, tells of the adventures of an American tank crew which gets detached from its command in Lybia. In its travels the crew acquires British, Italian and Nazi survivors who pool their defenses, all but two of the personnel dying at the defense of El Akeneub. This story is the attraction at the Paramount theater Thursday through Saturday.



Huge ships of the United States Army's Air Force transport command, shown in March of Time's "Airways to Peace," playing at the Paramount Monday through Wednesday, insure the swift arrival not only of troops or technicians, but of thousands of critical items of equipment needed to keep bombers or fighters in the air in distant war zones.

There's humor as well as horror in "Revenge of the Zombies," starring John Carradine, Robert Lowery and Gale Storm, which is the story of a scientist collaborating with the Nazis. This horror show plays Friday and Saturday at the Capitol theater.

'A Lady Takes A Chance' Opens Monday At Paramount

It's a shipboard romance, only in this case the ship is a streamlined freighter in the process of construction and Claire Trevor and Jess Barker are two of America's home front heroes working as welders aboard ship. This scene is from "Good Luck, Mr. Yates," which plays Thursday only at the Capitol.

Arthur And Wayne Star In New Hit

PACKED with hilarious and unexpected comedy from start to finish and with light-hearted, tender romance of a novel kind, "A Lady Takes a Chance" co-stars Jean Arthur and John Wayne in what is said to be one of the year's most entertaining pictures.

A transcontinental bus trip from New York City to the Pacific coast and back is the idea of the story but nearly all the action takes place in eastern Oregon. There Mollie, a Manhattan bank clerk on her first vacation in years, meets Duke, a rodeo rider who is tossed right into her lap by a bucking broncho.

Mollie has never met anyone like Duke before, and vice versa. Their stormy and picturesque romance sweeps headlong, punctuated by hilarious situations in a frontier gambling room, a rickety hotel, on the desert and at an auto camp, as Mollie, who has missed her bus in all the excitement, hitch-hikes across the state to catch the vehicle on its return trip.

Mollie decides she wants to marry the tall, capable westerner, but Duke has no intention of letting any filly drop a matrimonial loop over his neck. Waco, Duke's rotund elderly pal, loyally tries to dissuade the determined girl from her wedding plans, and apparently succeeds. But when the travel-weary party gets back to New York City, unexpected things begin happening around the bus terminal where the trip began.

Miss Arthur has seldom had a better role for her special brand of comedy. Wayne proves himself all outstanding partner for her in an equally well-fitted part. Charles Winninger as the skeptical Waco and Phil Silvers as an irritating tour guide head the supporting cast, which also numbers Mary Field, Don Costello, Grant Withers, Grady Sutton, Hans Conried and John Philliber among the more prominent players in the gay RKO Radio film.

'Heaven Can Wait' Here At Capitol

NOTHING'S sacred when Ernst Lubitsch gives that grand new touch to the gay old nineties!

That, in a nutshell, is the saucy, sparkling story of Lubitsch's production of "Heaven Can Wait," the technicolor hit which opens at the Captiol theater.

The spicy film is the story of Grandpa and the French Mademoiselle . . . and ladies fair who gave their lovers the air! And when it comes to what went on after the gas lights went out—the famed "Lubitsch Touch" becomes a wallop.

Don Ameche and Gene Tierney top the featured cast of "Heaven Can Wait." Don is a scion of a staid New York household—and his antics stand the family on its ear. Gene is the lady fair whom he woos—and wins—but Don is a flighty person, while Gene is not what you could call a submissive sort of a gal. Which means that even after they're happily married there are lots of fireworks—and plenty of opportunities for Director-Producer Lubitsch to inject his distinctive "touch!"

"Heaven Can Wait" is a frank, frolicking, frivolous comedy aided immeasurably by the caliber of its performers. In addition to Miss Tierney and Ameche, others in the large and capable cast include Charles Coburn, Marjorie Main, Laird Cregar, Spring Byington, Allyn Joslyn, Eugene Pallette and Signe Hasso.

Still others who have important roles are Louis Calhern, Helene Reynolds, Aubrey Mather and Michael Ames.

The screen play was by Samson Raphaelson, based upon the play "Birthday" by Lazlo Bus-Fekete.

BETTER RELATIONS PROGRAM PROPOSED

A better relationship program between white and colored citizens of West Monroe will be held at St. Joseph Baptist church in that city. Sunday at 3 p.m. Mayor D. C. Golson and other officials of the city as well as busines sand professional men and religious leaders of both races will participate. The theme is "Back the Attack with Better Relationship on the Home Front."

The program is being sponsored by the West Monroe Colored Civic and Recreational club and Lealye M. Statum, supervisor of colored schools of Ouachita parish.

This meeting will be one of a series for the securing of a better understanding between the races.

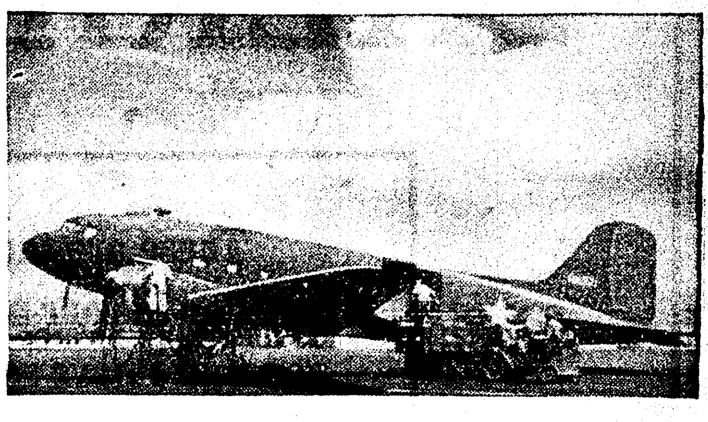
They're in love, Bill Carter and Marguerite Chapman, who play the romantic leads in Charles Coburn's new comedy "My Kingdom for a Cook," which is the midnight show attraction at the Paramount Saturday night.

Allyn Joslyn doesn't realize the mistake he's making in introducing Gene Tierney to Don Ameche in this scene from "Heaven Can Wait," which plays today through Tuesday at the Capitol. This picture is a peek through the keyhold at those naughty nineties, when the bustles rustled, and a French mademoiselle was the talk of the town, and the ladies fair gave lovers the air.

George Sanders and Marguerite Chapman, shown above, are enemies in the super-spy story "Appointment in Berlin," playing Wednesday only at the Capitol theater, but they fall head over heels in love when each keeps his appointment with destiny in the Nazi capital.

"Sahara," starring Humphrey Bogart, Bruce Bennett and Lloyd Bridges, tells of the adventures of an American tank crew which gets detached from its command in Lybia. In its travels the crew acquires British, Italian and Nazi survivors who pool their defenses, all but two of the personnel dying at the defense of El Akeneub. This story is the attraction at the Paramount theater Thursday through Saturday.



Huge ships of the United States Army's Air Force transport command, shown in March of Time's "Airways to Peace," playing at the Paramount Monday through Wednesday, insure the swift arrival not only of troops or technicians, but of thousands of critical items of equipment needed to keep bombers or fighters in the air in distant war zones.

There's humor as well as horror in "Revenge of the Zombies," starring John Carradine, Robert Lowery and Gale Storm, which is the story of a scientist collaborating with the Nazis. This horror show plays Friday and Saturday at the Capitol theater.

Announcing the Candidacy of

GARLAND MAY

for Election as

SHERIFF OF OUACHITA PARISH

These are the things which I have in my mind as I announce my candidacy for this important position in your parish government. I do not believe in so-called "platforms" for the simple reason that I have seen many printed and few followed. I can and do say that if you honor me by electing me as your Sheriff then I shall certainly give you an honest, intelligent and economical administration of my public office. This is the first campaign for public office that I have ever entered and with the feeling of a duty toward those whom I ask to support me the following statement is made:

1. That I will devote my entire time to the performance of official duties, maintaining no outside business interests and assuming full responsibility for the proper discharge of both criminal and civil affairs.

2. That all persons serving as Deputy Sheriffs will be citizens of this Parish, of high character and possessing proper qualifications and actual experience in the work to which they are assigned. They will be people you know and respect.

3. That during my term of office there will be absolutely no meddling with the affairs of other public offices filled by duly elected authorities, nor will there be any attempt to participate in factional politics. I am running for only ONE office and expect to be held responsible for that office alone and bear no responsibility or obligation whatsoever to the affairs of other offices.

4. That I shall conduct the office of Tax Collector according to law and under a proper business administration designed to honestly and economically make collections of the large sums of money involved and insure a proper accounting as to such sums.

5. That I shall file a detailed and itemized report of the finances handled by my office during each fiscal year. I believe the taxpayers of this Parish are entitled to have that statement.

6. That the business of my office will always be conducted in a courteous, fair and impartial way. For the past several years I have served as a law enforcement officer under civil service statute, have never before announced for public office nor participated in political campaigns. I owe no obligation to any group or faction, parish or state, and either I become your Sheriff in that same spirit or I remain a private citizen.

7. That when I assume the duties as your Sheriff I shall at once set up a night patrol of Deputy Sheriffs to be available for immediate call anywhere in Ouachita Parish. A Deputy Sheriff will be on duty at my office to receive calls and such calls will be immediately put on Police Radio Station KPML and answered by our radio equipped patrol cars. I want immediate protections and investigation. There will be no dead telephones at the Sheriff's office.

8. That certain matters which I now believe to be working against the best interest of this Parish will receive prompt and proper handling if the people of this Parish elect me as their Sheriff.

9. That all requests and complaints of civic organizations will be examined and studied, with the understanding that action will be taken regardless of the persons or interests involved. There are adequate laws now in force to control juvenile delinquency and other undesirable situations existing in Ouachita Parish and I intend to enforce those laws without asking for additional ordinances or special officers.

10. That, as your Sheriff, I shall cooperate with and assist the people and their representatives in the industrial and social development of Ouachita Parish. This is our home and it will always be just what we make it. The years ahead of us are going to bring many troubles and it will take cooperation and independent action to solve our problems.

11. That the Sheriff's Office will own and maintain a pair of certified bloodhounds for immediate use at all times. Some people believe the work of bloodhounds is old-fashioned, but I know you will find them most valuable not only in locating criminals but in preventing acts of crime. When these dogs are properly handled it is possible in most cases to apprehend the guilty party in a matter of hours and save much expense and danger to citizens.

12. That every benefit of experience and knowledge gained in my many years of law enforcement work will be directed toward the handling of the affairs of my office as Sheriff. Long service as patrolman, desk sergeant and night captain of the Monroe Police Department has given me a chance to know most of the troublemakers in this territory and understand the way in which they operate against the public good. I can handle them. My knowledge of the identification system recommended by the Federal Bureau of Investigation will assure you of an efficient set of records at all times. The methods and work of crime detection constantly changes and I intend to keep up with these changes and my Deputies will be required to attend the quarterly meetings of peace officers sponsored by the F. B. I. and it is my hope that one or more of them will be admitted for training at the National Police Academy at Washington, D. C. The protection of life and the security of property requires special training and the Sheriff of Ouachita Parish owes it to his people to see that law enforcement is ready and capable of handling any situation that comes up.

I respectfully request the active aid and support of all members of the Democratic party of Louisiana, duly registered voters in Ouachita Parish, at the election to be held in January, 1944. I can offer no better or no less a recommendation than my record as a peace officer of many years experience and as a citizen of this parish. I am not entering new fields, but seeking an advancement in the field of work in which I have been engaged these past years.

UNDER ATTACK
BY STRANGE GOOD FORTUNE TARZAN FOUND THAT HIS OPPONENTS IN THE TOURNAMENT WERE HIS FRIENDS.
"HOW DO WE ESCAPE?" ASKED CARLLIS; "THE WALLS ARE SO HIGH."
"I DO NOT WISH TO ESCAPE YET," SAID TARZAN — "WE STILL HAVE A TASK TO DO."
SO THEY MARCHED TOWARD THE SULTAN'S BOX - TARZAN, CARLLIS, LETHOR THE LION, BOHGDU THE APE.
THOUGH AMAZED BY THIS REMARKABLE MAN, THE SULTANS DID NOT BELIEVE HE COULD MOUNT THE HIGH WALL.
BUT AS TARZAN CONTINUED HIS GRIM ADVANCE, KAN-DULLAH ORDERED HIS SPEARMEN TO HURL A VOLLEY.
HARDLY WAS THE JUNGLE LORD WITHIN RANGE WHEN THE EAGER LANCERS HURLED THEIR MISSILES.
NOW TARZAN WAS FREE TO ACT. HE CALLED HIS STRANGE COHORTS. THEN LIKE A TRAINED COMBAT TEAM, THEY TROTTED TOWARD THE SULTANS' BOX FOR THEIR NEXT BOLD MOVE.
THE BODYGUARDS OF THE OTHER SOVEREIGNS ADDED THEIR SPEARS TO THE VOLLEY.
BUT TARZAN AVOIDED THEM EASILY. SOON THE WEAPONS WERE EXHAUSTED.

PLOD THROUGH MUD IN ITALY

Similarly Heavy Going Is Encountered By British Army

CROSSING DIFFICULT

By Noland Norgaard

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Oct. 11—(AP)—Plodding forward on foot through Italian mud which made motor transport almost useless and against stiffening German resistance, Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's Fifth army captured Pontelandolfo 12 miles northwest of Benevento, in a further flanking move against the Volturno river, Allied headquarters announced today.

Similarly heavy going was encountered by the Eighth army of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery on the Adriatic front where gains of two to three miles were chalked up against the enemy who was being put under constant pressure.

Along the swollen Volturno, where the Fifth army has established a 44-mile front, General Clark's troops made no fresh gains, official reports indicated.

Patrols already have been skirmishing with the Germans on the north bank of the stream, but Clark's forces were mainly engaged in consolidating their positions and laboriously bringing up guns and ammunition through the mud.

The crossing of the Volturno, 20 miles north of Naples, in force in a frontal attack appeared to be a difficult proposition, with enemy artillery concentrations prepared to lay down a withering fire on minutely charted bridging sites.

The winding stream, varying in width from 100 feet to 200 yards and with steep banks 10 to 15 feet high at most places, presented a major military obstacle particularly at its present high water stage. The water normally is only waist deep, but recent rains had greatly increased its depth.

Nevertheless, Clark was reported confident of his ability to beat the 24 days required by Garibaldi to get his army across the obstacle in 1859 when he was engaged in a march on Rome from Naples in the effort to unify Italy.

Pontelandolfo, on the eastern flank of the Volturno where it turns northward, lies in the fold of the hills ne-

CONGRESS ENDS BLANK CHECKS

Serves Notice War Department Must Account For Every Dollar

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—The days of fast-action, blank check appropriations for the war and other departments appear to be about over.

Fiscal leaders of both the house and senate made it clear in separate interviews today that from now on every dollar must be accounted for.

Chairman Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, of the senate military appropriations subcommittee said he had instructed army budget officers to get down to brass tacks when they want money hereafter and to forget about generalized lump sum appropriations such as congress has thumped through during the last two years.

"So far as I am concerned, and I think so far as our committee is concerned," Thomas said, "we are going to know just what the army intends to spend the money for in its next appropriations bill. I think there are some things that we may be able to cut out without hurting the war effort."

And from Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, of the house appropriations committee came this statement:

"We're over the hump. We're past the spending peak. There will be no need in the 1945 (fiscal year) appropriations bill to include huge sums of money for construction and for facilities to produce munitions."

While predicting retrenchments "hardly dreamed of," Cannon empha-

JUSTICE STONE 71 YEARS OLD TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—This is Chief Justice Stone's 71st birthday.

The jurist's program consisted for the most part of presiding over a session of the supreme court to announce whether nearly 300 petitions filed during the summer have been granted or denied.

Stone appears to be in A-1 condition after a summer vacation in New England. He has not been absent once from the bench because of illness since early in 1937.

Friends say that he will continue to serve as chief justice as long as his health permits.

A New England Republican, he was appointed an associate justice in 1925 by President Coolidge, his Amherst college mate. After gaining a nationwide reputation as a "liberal," he was promoted to chief justice in 1941 by President Roosevelt.

COURT TO HEAR INDUCTION CASE

Will Determine Whether Objector Legally Taken Into Army

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—The supreme court agreed today to determine whether a draft registrant was taken legally into the army when the induction oath was read to him after he had refused to take it.

This was one of approximately 300 review petitions acted upon today by the tribunal. It involved Arthur Goodwyn Billings, a former teacher at the University of Texas, who described himself as a conscientious objector.

The court declined to pass on a five-year penitentiary sentence given Walter Ford Gormly of Milwaukee for refusing to report for work at a conscientious objectors' camp. He contended that such work would make him "a participant in the war machine and an accessory to murder on the battlefield."

The justices deferred action on a petition by William T. Reid of New Orleans, convicted on a charge of threatening to kill President Roosevelt. Reid was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment.

Cases which the tribunal agreed to review will be set for argument within the next few months, after which a written opinion will be delivered. Denial of a review means that the decision appealed from remains in effect.

Billings said he notified Ottawa county, Kansas, draft board on his registration card that he would never serve in the army. After being classified as 1-A, he was denied reclassification as a conscientious objector on the ground that his objection to war was "rational rather than religious."

He said that he intended when he reported at Fort Leavenworth for the final physical examination, to refuse to be inducted, if he passed, and to submit himself to civil authorities for punishment.

Instead, he said the oath was read

SAYS U. S. STIRRING BITTER JEALOUSIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—Senator Butler, Republican, Nebraska, who recently made a one-man survey of Latin America, declared today that the United States is stirring up bitter jealousies among some of the smaller South American nations through unequal allocation of lend-lease supplies, especially military airplanes.

Added to reports of lend-lease discontent in other parts of the world, laid before the senate by its special war inspection committee in two days of secret sessions, Butler's statement underscored the difficulty faced by senators anxious to write a formal statement of America's post-war aims.

The Nebraska senator said lots of "disgusting and nutty" projects were being carried out in South America with American money, and that one of the greatest potential trouble-breeders involved the military planes.

"If one country gets a few less planes than one of its neighbors," he said "it immediately figures the United States is building up the neighbor for some ulterior purpose."

Senators of both parties conceded the administration of lend-lease is certain to figure heavily in debate on any resolution the foreign relations committee brings out attempting to state the nation's post-war intentions.

YOUNG WOMAN, THREE MEN KILLED IN 2 AUTO CRASHES

Student Nurse And Three Oil Field Workers Victims

Four persons met death in two automobile accidents that occurred over the week-end in Monroe. Two other persons were also seriously injured. Three automobiles were almost total wrecks as a result of the two accidents and a truck also was damaged.

The dead:

Miss Susie George, student nurse at St. Francis sanitarium.

Dan W. Hadwin, oil field operator, Shreveport.

L. L. Ernest, oil field operator, Shreveport.

C. M. Fisher, oil field operator, Shreveport.

Miss Gay Albritton, Monroe student nurse.

Louis Rodriguez, Shreveport.

The first fatal accident occurred last Saturday night. Scene of the wreck was on Forsythe avenue, near the east end of the street. A car driven by Dr. B. F. Spencer, Sterlington physician, and occupied by the physician, Misses Susie George and Gay Albritton, student nurses at the St. Francis school of nursing crashed into a second auto, a 1942 Dodge owned by Stafford Kees who lives on Spurgeon Drive.

The Dodge appeared to have been traveling west on Forsythe at a slow rate of speed. Two hundred yards from the intersection at 18th street the Chrysler driven by Dr. Spencer and also going west reportedly at high speed, attempted to pass. The right rear of the auto hit the left front of the Kees car and turned over, police report stated, killing Miss George instantly and injuring Miss Albritton.

The funeral of Miss George was held

WINANT'S SON'S PLANE DOWNED

Lieutenant Reported Missing After Raid On Muenster

A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, Oct. 11—(AP)—Lieutenant John G. Winant, Jr., 21-year-old son of the American ambassador to Britain, was reported missing from yesterday's raid on Muenster, Germany, his 13th mission into enemy territory as a Flying Fortress pilot.

Fellow fliers said they saw German fighters machinegun parachutists that trailed from his stricken and falling plane.

Others in his group said swarms of Focke-Wulf and Messerschmitt fighters attacked the returning formation and that three concentrated on Winant's plane, the "Tech Supply."

Several fliers agreed they saw five parachutes open and one "free fall" with the 'chute probably opening later. Staff Sergeant Fred P. Livingston, of Sayre, Okla., said he saw three and a free fall.

"Then the ship straightened out and flew toward the left," Livingston added. "The ship was under attack by three fighters. They each made a pass at each of the 'chutes and then resumed their attacks on the Fortress."

Livingston explained that he "knew it was his (Winant's) ship because its name was painted in white and none of the other ships' is."

The "Tech Supply" went down at 25,000 feet 15 minutes after unloading its bombs on Muenster. It was one of 30 Fortresses lost in yesterdays raids.

Other fliers said the German fight-

Want More Information On Sons

Live In Stillest Silence

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11—(AP)—Forty silent men and women—the parents of the missing—crowded into the little home of Mrs. Ralph Herrick, to share their sorrow and to search, together, for new hope.

Most of the women gripped tightly the worn and crumpled "missing in action" telegrams from the war department—the messages that had lined a dull, eternal weariness into their faces.

Mrs. Herrick had called them together in the hope they might jointly appeal to the war department for more information.

"We are living in the stillest silence" she said. "We only want the truth. . . . We think a way can be found to tell us more. It's the waiting and not knowing that hurts. . . . We are the forgotten mothers."

She listed 127 Kansas City boys about whom no additional official word has been received, and the meeting approved a suggestion the list be sent to Missouri's congressional delegation, to the army and navy, the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Herrick said she waited weeks after her son, Sergeant Marion Boren, was reported missing last June 13 over German-occupied territory. Then at last she wrote to the queen of England.

The queen got action, Mrs. Herrick said. She exhibited a letter from Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, European theater, which said her son's plane last was seen on its way back from a successful mission over enemy territory. Even that much helped, she told the little group.

The group elected officers, with Mrs. Herrick as president, and named a committee to issue appeals for news. Meetings will be held every two weeks.

Mrs. Herrick said she thought it would be nice if they prayed together for their boys.

Nazi Plane Losses In 3 Days Boosted Above 300

JAPS RECEIVE NEW SETBACKS

Stunning Successes Scored By American Troops In Pacific

FEROCITY INCREASES

(By Associated Press)

A stream of stunning American successes in the central and south Pacific brought clarity today to Primier Tojo's recent warning to Japan that "the war situation is gaining in ferocity day by day."

Unofficial estimates from the south Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., placed Japanese casualties in clearing out of the central Solomons area at approximately 5,000 men. An equal number was thought to have escaped in evacuations running over a period of several weeks. Large stocks of supplies and materiel were left behind.

Besides a heavy loss in manpower, the enemy suffered these reverses:

1. Loss of Vila air field and all of Kolombangara to American forces who occupied the island without a shot being fired. It gave the United States strategic control of the central Solomon islands.

2. Loss of 61 planes and at least temporary neutralization of Japanese army and navy installations on Wake island in the mid-Pacific. Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, disclosed that 320 tons of bombs were loosed by American carrier-borne and land-based bombers in a series of coordinated strikes October 5 and 6. In addition, powerful United States warships battered the enemy with deadly effect without encountering surface opposition. At least two small ships were sunk at Wake, obstructing habor facilities.

3. Apparent loss of the once important enemy seaplane base at Rekata bay, Santa Isabel island, 100 miles south and east of Kolombangara. Without Allied confirmation, Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch describing a Japanese air raid on the former enemy base.

4. Liquidation of a stubborn rearguard force of Japanese holding a road block inland from Finschhafen.

REDS PUT MORE ACROSS DNIEPER

Pravda Says 'Our Divisions Have Penetrated Far Beyond River'

MOSCOW, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Red army of the Dnieper river, greatly aided by large forces of guerilla warriors behind the withdrawing German lines, pushed reinforcements in men and material across the river today to aid in solidifying their bridgeheads on the west bank.

The captured area on the west side of the river north of Kiev was rapidly being turned into a large operational zone, threatening the whole sectors to the north and south.

"Our divisions have penetrated far beyond the river," said the Communist party organ Pravda in a dispatch from the front, "and have captured the defense zone of the Germans along the river and dozens of settlements on the western bank."

The Soviets have large, representative forces across the Dnieper replete with tanks and heavy artillery and the Germans are being consistently beaten back.

A large guerilla force, assisting the Red army on the western bank of the river, added to the current confusion of the German commanders trying to halt the tide that swelled beyond the waterway.

Pravda said that after helping regu-

NAZI-PLANTED BOMB KILLS 25 IN NAPLES

NAPLES, Oct. 10.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Twenty-three American officers and men were killed and more than 30 injured when a heavy charge of dynamite exploded today, demolishing an entire wing of the Naples building where they were quartered.

NAPLES, Oct. 10.—(Delayed)—(AP)—A German-planted time bomb exploded this morning in an artillery barracks here, killing 25 and injuring at least 30 men.

Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark visited the scene and it was stated that buildings in the vicinity which are believed to be dangerous were ordered evacuated.

The artillery barracks had been inspected, but the Germans apparently had tunneled under the structure and placed several tons of explosives where they could remain undiscovered.

Americans Blast Transportation Centers Of Muenster, Coesfeld

LONDON, Oct. 11—(AP)—Boosting Nazi plane losses to more than 300 in three days, American Flying Fortresses and escorting Thunderbolts shot down 102 enemy planes yesterday as the big bombers tore through stubborn defenses to blast the important German transportation centers of Muenster and Coesfield.

Thirty bombers and two fighters, a communique said, were lost by the American formations, which also hit an enemy airfield near Enschede, Holland, in the blazing climax to a weekend of violent Allied aerial activity that riddled the Germans' fighter strength.

While the size of the attacking American formations was not officially disclosed, there was reason to believe that they may have approximated the record concentrations of 400 bombers which hammered German targets on each of the two preceding days.

The American raids reached a new high in strength of numbers on Friday, when Fortresses and Liberators bombed the Stuka factory in Bremen and submarine shipbuilding yards at Vegesack nearby, and on Saturday, when they flew a round trip of 1,800 miles—their deepest penetration of Nazi territory—to hit the former free city of Danzig, the former Polish city

PLAQUEMINES PARLEY FIXED

Legal Action May Be Taken Against Resisting Factions

POINTE-A-LA-HACHE, La., Oct. 11—(AP)—Attorney General Eugene Stanley was to confer with Governor Sam Jones today as to what legal action—if any—the state will take against the men of Plaquemines parish who made necessary the expensive but bulletless battle of the parish courthouse here Saturday.

Stanley said at Baton Rouge yesterday that in his conference with Jones they would review "all the facts in the Plaquemines situation" and decide particularly whether legal prosecution would be required to recover records removed from the courthouse by the parish faction which opposed Jones' appointee as sheriff, Walter J. Blaize.

Dr. Ben Slater was removed from office Saturday by state guardsmen, after Jones had sent hundreds of state troops into this town to install Blaize as sheriff. Anticipated opposition from special deputies melted before the troops arrived, but the troops remained on the scene yesterday and their commanding officer, Brigadier General Thomas Porter said none of the guard units would be released immediately.

Company A of the state guard left New Orleans Sunday, arriving at Pointe-a-la-Hache last night. Numbering 85 officers and men, the New Orleans unit is the sixth to be sent into the parish.

Meantime Sunday, other guardsmen discovered a cache of guns and ammunition near the courthouse.

The cache was found in a negro's shack and included a sub-machine gun, three shotguns, and a revolver. Blaize identified the arms and ammunition as belonging to the sheriff's office. Both the 70-year-old negro who

SAYS VOLUNTARY WORK INADEQUATE

BOSTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, told the A. F. of L. convention today that the voluntary system of manpower control had not yet proved itself adequate and listed six conditions which must be met.

McNutt reminded the delegates that some persons believe the voluntary system has failed and are asking for national service, but he did not state directly his own position on such proposed legislation.

McNutt named these six "things that have to be done:"

Turnover must be solved, transfers from non-essential to war jobs must be speeded up, productivity per worker must go up, more people must be hired and held in the "hot, stuffy, unglamorous, disagreeable and relatively less-paid jobs," more women workers must be obtained, and withholding of contracts from tight labor areas needs to be accepted and understood.

McNutt said that in overall terms "we must have 11.3 million people at work in munitions production by July of next year. Despite cutbacks—about which there is lots of talk, but relatively little cutting—the rate of increase in war employment required in the next six months is about three times as great as that achieved during the past months."

Most of the convention's business was still ahead of the delegates.

CHANDLER AND COOPER PITCH

Cardinal Righthander Fans First Five Men To Face Him

DICKEY HITS HOMER

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11—(AP)—Spurred by a two-run rally in the sixth inning in which Bill Dickey drove a home run to score Keller ahead of him, the New York Yankees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, to win the 1943 world series, four games to one.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. LOUIS, Oct. 11—(AP)—With the St. Louis Cardinals on the short end of a 3 to 1 count and seemingly on the way to defeat, the fans were slower coming out for today's fifth game of the world series than for any of the previous four.

In sharp contrast to the early jam in unreserved seats in the three games in New York and Sunday's first game here, the left and center field bleachers and the pavilion in right were barely two thirds full at 10:30 a.m. central war time.

There was no change in the weather, however, which has favored this series so far. For the fifth straight day the sun burned down and shirt sleeves popped out of coats early in the bleachers.

With two of the series winners to date going to the mound for the rival clubs, the betting for what may be the last game of the set was as close as the buttons on your vest.

Shooting with Spud Chandler, their right-hand ace and opening game winner, the New York Yankees were 4 to 5 choices to win this game and start for home tonight, champions of the world again. The Cardinals, with Mort Cooper, their right-hand fireball star, on the hill, were even money.

The band took up its spot just behind home plate at 9:30 and went to work in a manner to disturb the early sleepers in the bleachers. Most popular bit of musical entertainment came when one of the musicians, with a tenor of sorts, gave out with a solo "Pistol Packin' Mama" to the accompaniment of a clarinet player, who drew a long cheer for his "ride on the licorice stick."

The first sign of baseball "life" came when the Cardinals' bats were spread out along the front of the home team dugout. The dugouts for

YOUTH SAYS HE KILLED MOTHER

Little Rock Lad Confesses Slaying Her In Fit Of Anger

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 11—(AP)—The 10-day investigation into the bizarre bludgeon slaying of Mrs. Julia Koers Browning, 56, widow of a prominent Little Rock physician, ended with a confession of the crime, Detective Chief O. N. Martin said, by her 17-year-old son, William.

The youth, former lifeguard at Little Rock's country club and a football star at Catholic High school here, where he was a senior, calmly told officers Saturday he beat his mother to death during a fit of anger over a model airplane Martin declared.

The boy notified police late in the afternoon of September 30 he had found his mother slain when he returned from school. Her body, covered with a rug, was lying in a pool of blood on the living room floor. In another room was the body of the family pet, a small spaniel, which had been beaten to death and covered with a rug. The contents of drawers and closets had been scattered about the house but nothing was missing.

Martin said the youth related his mother objected to his becoming a flier, knocked a hole in his model airplane, and he "lost his temper and grabbed up a metal rod and struck her on the head." The weapon has not been located, Martin said.

The dog began barking at the youth and he killed it and then scattered the contents of the drawers and closets to make police think there had been a robbery, Martin quoted the boy as saying.

The boy, who had resumed classes following his mother's funeral, was taken into custody Saturday forenoon. He was lodged in the county jail late Saturday night and docketed for first degree murder. An attorney visited him there yesterday.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY IN FEDERAL COURT

Like disposal was made of the two selective service violation cases considered in this morning's session of the federal court when Ardise Elbert Currie and Drew Britton were sentenced on the first count to two years each in a federal institution of the penitentiary type which will be designated by the attorney general. On the second count imposition of the sentence was suspended for five years, beginning at the end of the sentence imposed, the men being placed on probation for a term of five years beginning at the termination of their sentences.

Both Britton and Currie withdrew their former not guilty pleas to plead guilty at the morning court. Representing the two men as attorney was H. D. Montgomery.

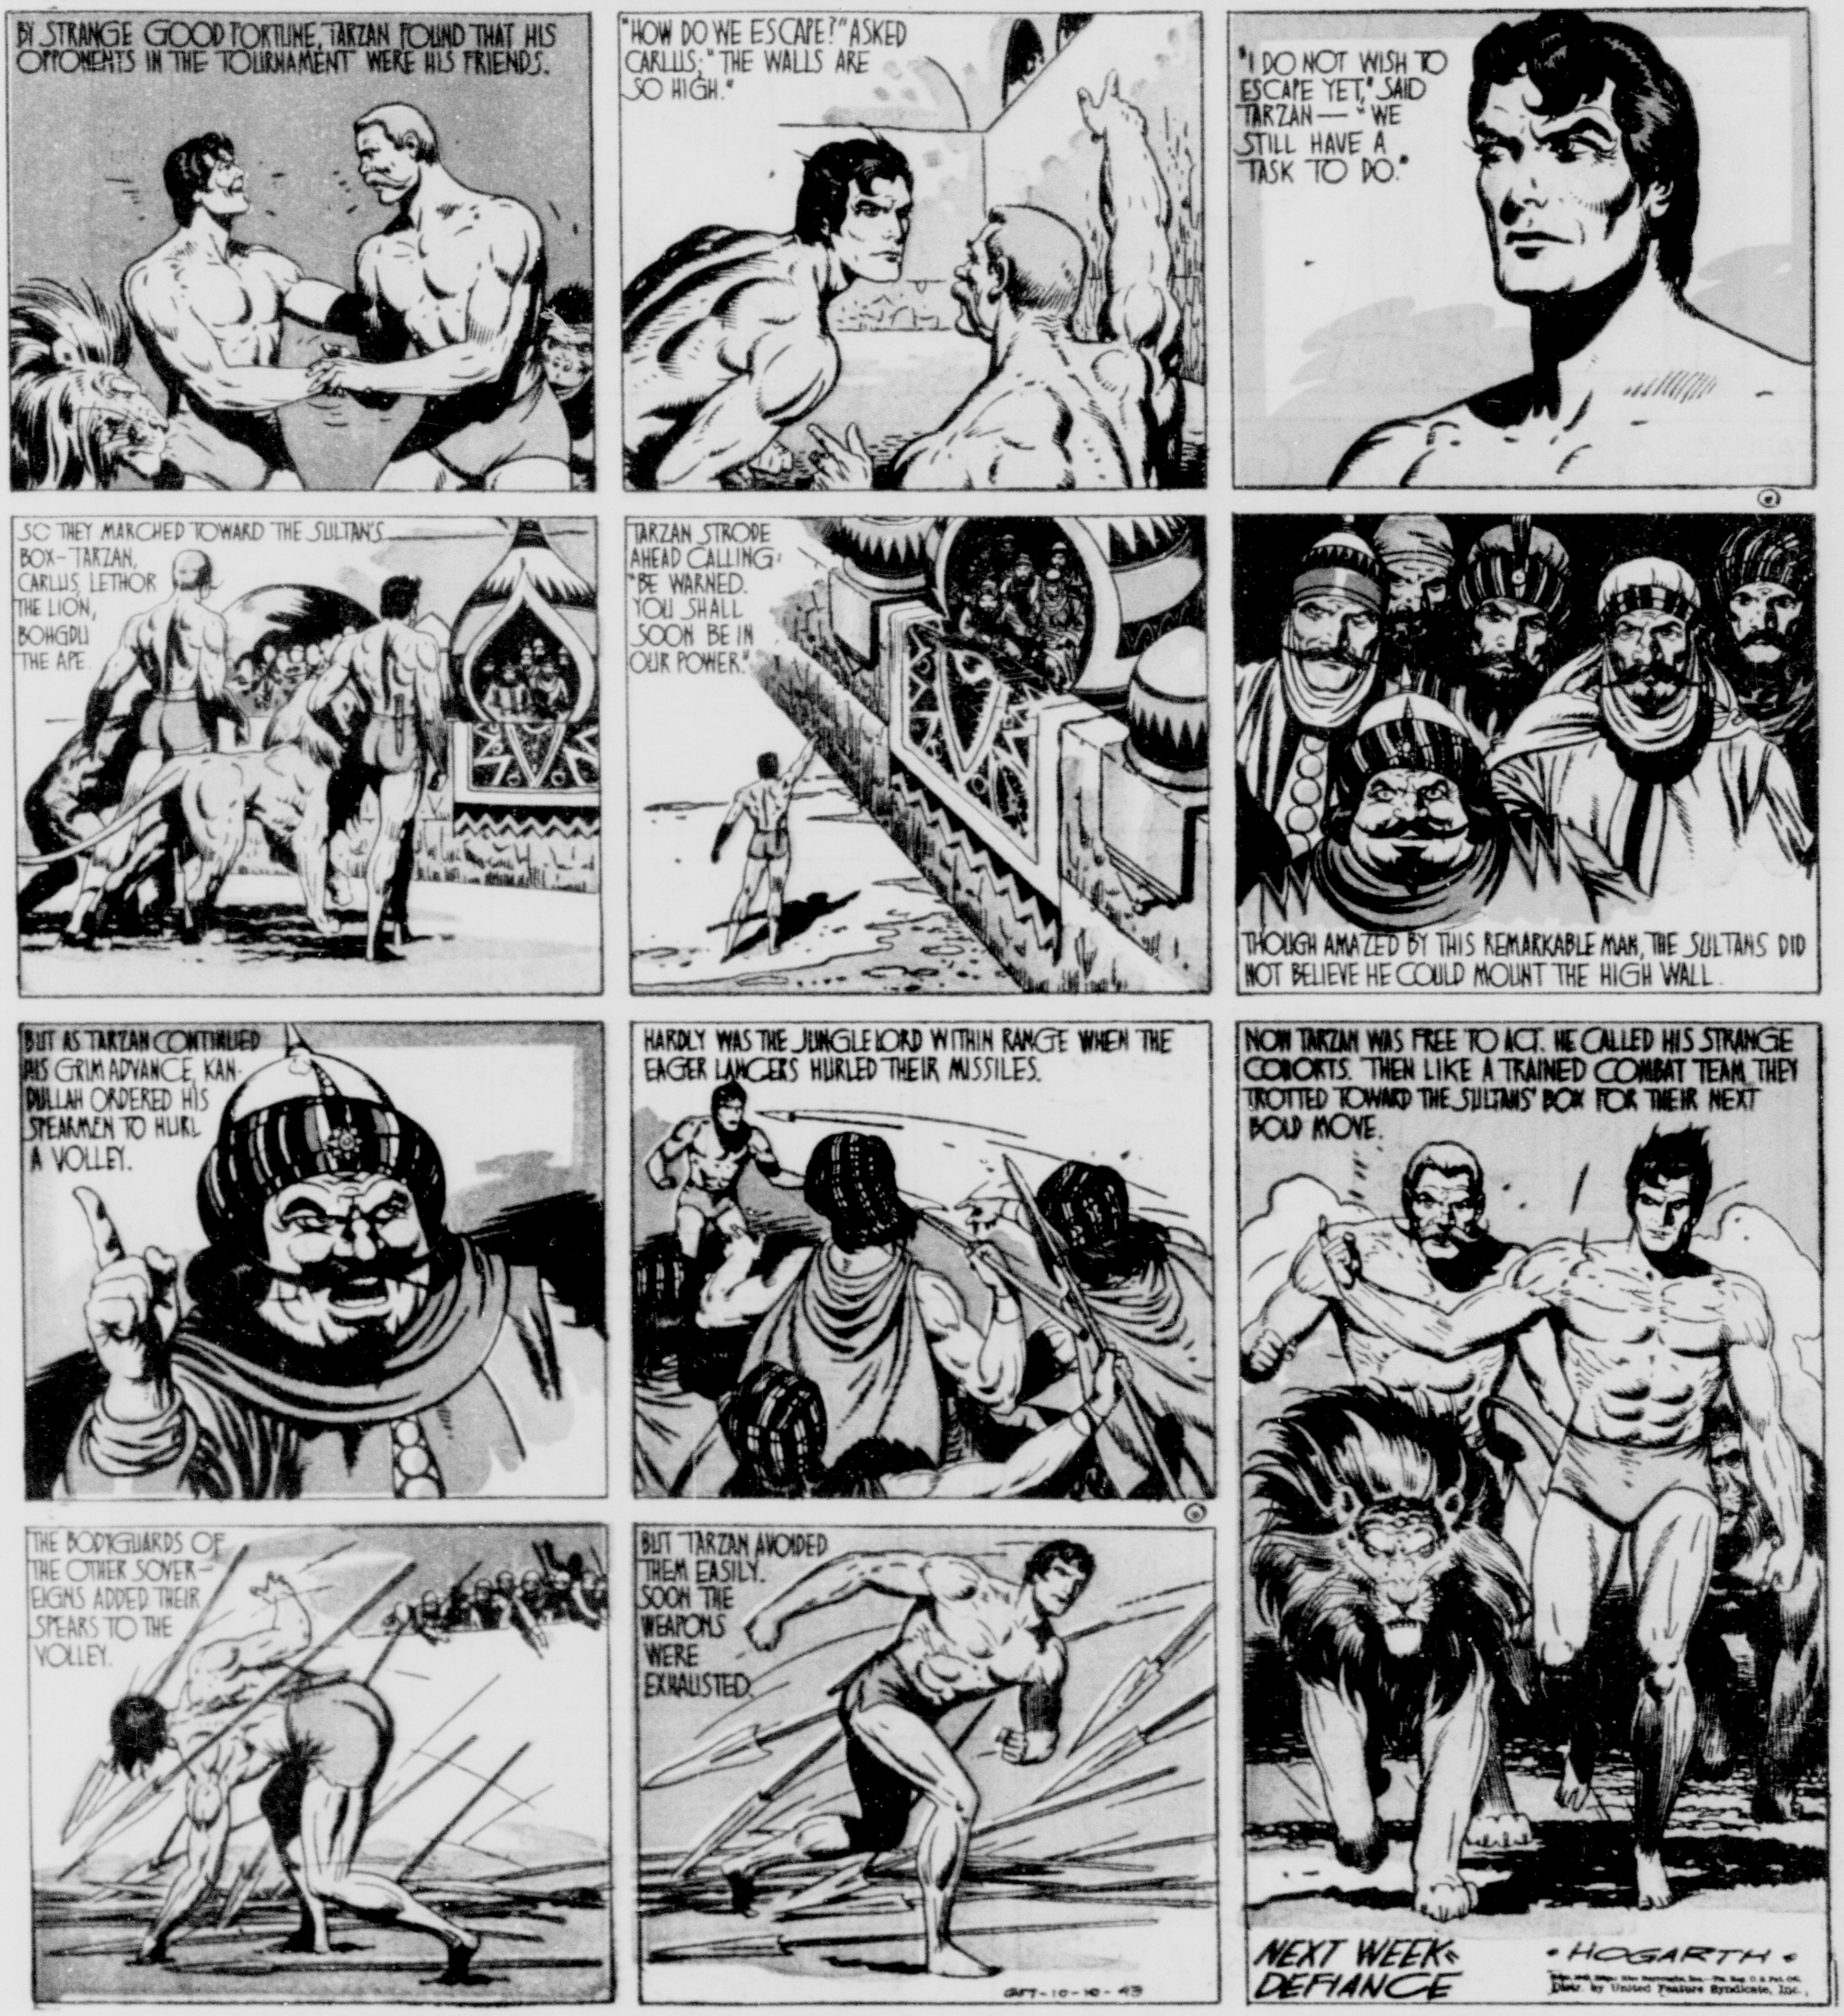
UNDER ATTACK



BY STRANGE GOOD FORTUNE, TARZAN FOUND THAT HIS OPPONENTS IN THE TOURNAMENT WERE HIS FRIENDS.
"HOW DO WE ESCAPE?" ASKED CARLUS; "THE WALLS ARE SO HIGH."
"I DO NOT WISH TO ESCAPE YET," SAID TARZAN — "WE STILL HAVE A TASK TO DO."
SO THEY MARCHED TOWARD THE SULTAN'S BOX - TARZAN, CARLUS, LETHOR THE LION, BOHGOLI THE APE.
BUT AS TARZAN CONTINUED HIS GRIM ADVANCE, KAN-DULLAH ORDERED HIS SPEARMEN TO HURL A VOLLEY.
NOW TARZAN WAS FREE TO ACT. HE CALLED HIS STRANGE COHORTS. THEN LIKE A TRAINED COMBAT TEAM THEY TROTTED TOWARD THE SULTANS' BOX FOR THEIR NEXT BOLD MOVE.
THE BODYGUARDS OF THE OTHER SOVEREIGNS ADDED THEIR SPEARS TO THE VOLLEY.
